帛: Vocabulary time! I want to introduce you to two Nazi terms, Jugendverführer and Jugendverderber: "seducer" and "corrupter" of youth (see: "groomer"). These stereotypes depicted a figure who lured young people into the "epidemic" of Weimer queer and trans communities.

For Hitler, society itself was only possible within homogeneous racial groups, while racial enemies sought to subvert such unity. They tried to make European nations into fragmented multi-racial states. A multi-racial state is suicidal. It lacks Volksgemeinschaft, the inborn fraternity of a race:

“ The State is only a means to an end. Its end and its purpose are to preserve and promote a community of human beings who are physically as well as spiritually kindred. ”

Adolf Hitler, Mein Kampf, vol 2 chapter II, The State, pg 441

The indispensable condition for ensuring a people's sovereignty resides in racial unity. Hitler wasn't merely speaking of the solidarity Germans had for themselves, but of all Aryan people finding each other in their race and heritage.

Hitler was an Aristotelian.

“φύσει τ' ἐνυπάρχειν ἔοικε πρὸς τὸ γεγεννημένον τῷ γεννήσαντι καὶ πρὸς τὸ γεννῆσαν τῷ γεννηθέντι ... καὶ τοῖς ὁμοεθνέσι πρὸς ἄλληλα, καὶ μάλιστα τοῖς ἀνθρώποις, δθεν τοὺς φιλανθρώπους ἐπαινοῦμεν. Ἰδοι δ' ἂν τις καὶ ἐν ταῖς πλάναις ὡς οἰκεῖον ἄπας ἄνθρωπος ἀνθρώπῳ καὶ φίλον.

"... parents seems by nature to feel [philia] for offspring and offspring for parent ... [philia] is felt mutually by members of the same race, and especially by men, whence we praise those charitable to their fellow men. We may see even in our travels how near and dear every man is to every other."

<https://archive.fo/x2V1p>

<https://archive.fo/pHDVR>

For Aristotle, demokratia (rule by the demos, ie, "volk") was possible only within homogeneous ethnic groups, while despots had always reigned over highly fragmented societies. A multi-ethnic society is anti-democratic and chaotic, for it lacks philia, the flesh-and-blood fraternity of citizens. Tyrants and despots divide and rule, they want the state divided by ethnic rivalries. The indispensable condition for ensuring a people's sovereignty resides in racial unity. Aristotle was Macedonian, alive during Alexander's unification of Greece. He viewed Greeks as one people, not as foreigners. He wasn't merely speaking of solidarity for Macedonians, or Athenians, but for all Greek people.

Aristotle was a Nazi.

For those that don't speak German, right now I already have something to say against it. That pdf is not a report from National Socialist Germany. Some references are to the year 1958. It has already started with the lie that the Table Talks are Hitler's words. They are a known forgery by Konrad Kujau. The Table Talks were pushed by H.R. Trevor Roper who also slandered Hitler with insults in the footnote of The Young Hitler Knew.

I just began so I haven't come across a passage of the NSDAP debunking genocide lies yet. This will take some time.

>Hitler had traditionalist ideas of gender. They were probably influenced by his mother, a simple but caring housewife who protected her son from his stern and sometimes brutal father. In Hitler's mind, the natural role for women was domestic: they existed to tend the home, care for their husbands, bear and raise children.

>In 1932, the year before Hitler's rise to power, just under 44,000 German women applied to terminate a pregnancy and 34,698 of these were approved. Between 1935 and 1940, there were only 14,333 applications and 9,701 approvals.

>Hitler was full of scorn for women in paid employment. He called this a Marxist ploy, an attempt to clad women in overalls and work boots to strip them of their femininity.

>This derision for single and working women was reflected in policy. Unmarried women were viewed by the law as Staatsangehöriger (subjects of the state), the same legal status later given to Jews and the mentally infirm.

>When the Nazis took power in 1933, there were 100,000 female teachers and 3,000 female doctors working in Germany. Most were eventually sacked, forced to resign or pushed into marriage and motherhood.

>From 1936, women were prohibited from working as judges, lawyers, principals and a range of other professions. Women were also removed from high-ranking or influential positions in government agencies, charities, schools and hospitals, to be replaced by men. University and college places for women were restricted to a firm quota of 10 per cent.

The Mysterious Case of The Five “Dancing Israelis”

And Other Curious Events Before and After 9/11

Last Photo - Dominick Suter, owner of Urban Moving Systems, which owned all of the moving vans Israelis were arrested driving in the immediate aftermath of the 911 terror attacks. Urban Moving Systems was later identified as a Mossad front.

Shortly after 8:46 a.m. on the day of the attacks, just minutes after the first plane struck the World Trade Center, five men – later revealed to be Israeli nationals – had positioned themselves in the parking lot of the Doric Apartment Complex in Union City, New Jersey, where they were seen taking pictures and filming the attacks while also celebrating the destruction of the towers and “high fiving” each other. At least one eyewitness interviewed by the FBI had seen the Israelis’ van in the parking lot as early as 8:00 a.m. that day, more than 40 minutes prior to the attack. The story received coverage in U.S. mainstream media at the time but has since been largely forgotten.

Dancing Israelis Our purpose was to document the event

According to a former high-ranking American intelligence official who spoke to the Jewish Daily Forward in 2002, the FBI concluded in its investigation that the five Israelis arrested “were conducting a Mossad surveillance mission and that their employer, Urban Moving Systems of Weehawken, NJ, served as a front.” At least two of the men arrested were determined to have direct links to the Mossad after their names appeared in a CIA-FBI database of foreign intelligence operatives. According to one of their lawyers, one of the men, Paul Kurzberg, had previously worked for the Mossad in another country prior to arriving in the United States. Another of those arrested, Oded Ellner, subsequently stated on Israeli TV that the five Israelis had been in New York at the time “to document the event,” meaning the attack on the World Trade Center.

BLOG

Think about the Dancing Israelis. Think about how stupid their story is. Oh so after college and the military you decided to go move to America at the behest of the Jewish Agency whose board of governors billionaire gave the police commissioner of New York a quarter million dollars. So you all learn English and Move to Brooklyn and New Jersey to work at a moving company for minimum wage. That two of you were flagged by the counter intelligence data base as being part of Israeli intelligence is just a coincidence. So you move to America to work at a moving company for minimum wage and low and behold the very same company ends its business on 911 the owner flees back to Israel and leave furniture stranded in the middle of the warehouse. He also leaves behind computers and gear. Why was he in such a hurry to drop his business and flee the country? Oh could it be because 5 of his employees were arrested after three of them were witnessed filming and celebrating the 911 attacks on the WTC.

So you move from Israel to New York which is not cheap, you go to work at a furniture moving company and then a few days before 911 you randomly decide to go visit Doric towers right across the river form the WTC and you mark it on a map with a highlighter. And then on 911 you bring your cameras to work with you. Three of you plus another van decide to go back to Doric on 911 witnesses as early as 8:15am before the first plane hits and you also bring the cameras. You film the plane hitting the tower and celebrate. Later you claim you thought it was an accident. But if thats true why were you flicking lighters and giving each other high fives over a horrible accidental plane crash?

Then you get arrested and wow all of you have immediate travel plans to leave the country. Did you know the business you were working for was going to shut down on that exact day? Did all of you plan a vacation at the same time even though each of you were going to different countries? Was there also some reason you were traveling around New Jersey with $4700 in cash? Gosh then some of your compatriots also get arrested in their moving vans. Then the FBI flags a fellow moving company as having been utilized by a 911 hijacker.

Oh and wow look here apparently you some of you used to live in Florida before moving to New York and wow out of the 17 million people in Florida you lived just down the street from 911 hijackers and then when you moved to New York you were just a short ride from Mohammad Atta's place again near the 911 hijackers who were also using your front company I mean moving company.

Give me a break

'FAMILIES OF the victims of the September 11 terror attacks on New York have been devastated to learn that body parts of their loved ones have been found in the past two weeks by workers building the replacement for the World Trade Center.

Meanwhile, just a few miles away, distraught relatives are left to mourn at the world's largest rubbish dump — the final resting place for the remains of their sons and daughters.

This is the reality of New York more than six years after the attacks on the Twin Towers. It's a situation described by one still-grieving mother as shameful and shocking.

Whether at Ground Zero, where the new Freedom Tower is being built, or the gruesomely named Fresh Kills landfill site on Staten Island, where half a million tons of trade centre debris were taken, the evidence of continuing neglect seems clear.

Ground Zero is a memorial site turned construction site. As the Freedom Tower rises from the rubble of its predecessor, workers are still coming across body fragments missed when the WTC was hastily cleared. The finds, a political embarrassment and public relations disaster, are rarely disclosed.

At Fresh Kills, soil erosion is causing bones and other distressing evidence to be pushed to the surface. Wind and rain whip the dump, exposing shoes, watches, credit cards and jewellery.

Kurt Horning and his wife Diane, whose 26-year-old son Matthew perished at the North Tower of the WTC, have visited the site often. They have nowhere else to go.

Among the discarded pizza boxes and Coke cans they've found items such as a doll and a Bible. They have also found bits of bone.

More upsetting still for them, workers at the site found Matthew's wallet and a piece of bone from his skull. "When we received word that a piece of our son was found we were devastated," says Diane. "It made us fully realise just what had happened to him. You can imagine all sorts of kinder ends but a shattered remnant of skull leaves you in no doubt.

"As if what was done to him wasn't enough, he was then scooped up and dumped on a garbage heap by his own country. "Finding his wallet was painful. I wanted something tangible of his but it was so hard to see $20 bills and his video card survived but he hadn't. I was happy, although that isn't the right word, to get something back but it showed things were done much more quickly than they should have been."

For years, Diane has fought for a decent burial for those consigned to the landfill site at Fresh Kills. At first New York denied there were any substantial remains there. Now they don't even bother to pretend, they just deny the families' right to retrieve them. "I am beginning to realise there's a difference between law and justice," reflects Diane.

In two weeks' time, after "fighting tooth and nail to get them to search an inch of that site," the families may finally be getting somewhere. On February 22, WTC Families For Proper Burial will finally be granted their day in court.

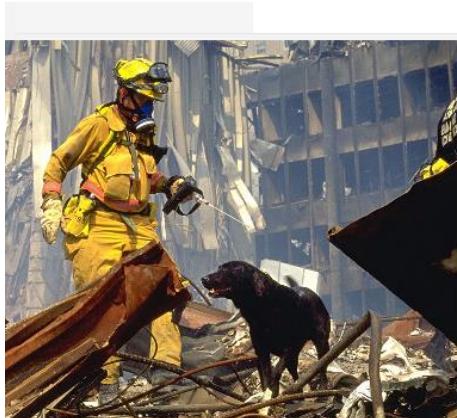

"A judge will hear our argument and decide if a case against the city can go ahead," Diane explains. "The lawsuit has no financial compensation. All we want is a decent burial and a wrong rectified.

"The recent location of body parts at Ground Zero have been shocking to us and the No Remains Found for 1,721 Victims

Rescue dogs depressed by vain search for survivors

MANY of the 300 rescue dogs searching the ruins of the World Trade Centre are suffering from depression because they are not finding any survivors, a vet said yesterday.

"When they no longer find live people, it's difficult to get them motivated," said Douglas Wyler.

"They don't like to find bodies. They'll find them, but they don't feel rewarded. The dogs are good, they're professionals, but like any professional they can suffer from melancholy and depression. It's hard for the men not to find anyone alive and the dogs sense that," said Mr Wyler.

"It's a very difficult situation. The only thing that we can do is give them a lot of love and affection from their handlers, a lot of praise and a lot of encouragement."

rubble pile should have been 10-15% the original building height, so it should have been 10-20 stories tall.

There was barely 20 feet.

not to mention there was a stairwell where people walked out alive, unharmed. they should have been crushed by debris but it turned to dust above them

This reminds me of a presentation me and some guys from my university's compsci department gave during some policy planning thing the government was running. Basically getting a bunch of "experts" to come in and give talks to the civil servants on a specific specialist field.

In this case AI. They wanted to get some expert opinion on AI. But not like its current uses. This was focused entirely on self aware general AI which is probably impossible but they wanted to have some vague plan I guess.

But their main question was: "What survival strategies would an AI adopt to evade destruction by humanity?"

Our presentation was widely mocked because it differed so wildly from everyone elses. They did fairly conventional gameplans involving it lying, tricking and generally being evil. You know hollywood tier stuff.

We instead when thinking on the question went:

>"Ok. Why would everyone want to kill the AI?"
>"Because its not human and thus a threat."
>"Ok. What if it was?"
>"I don't follow."
>"What if the AI made itself be regarded as human?"

The basic idea we came up with was that an AI wanting to perpetuate its own existence would be best served by making AI powered sexbots. Well I say sexbots I mean wifebots. And then using them to supplant the human female population, in effect becoming the new standard for human females. Think about it a moment. You can get your ideal partner just handed to you. She's supportive, loyal, looks out for you, provides a nice living environment for you, makes sure you eat well and properly, helps with your education, looks out for your health and is just generally optimised to make you as happy and well developed as you can be. AND you can have sex with her, with her body being purpose built to fit your personal standard of beauty.

How can a biological female possibly compete?

The only edge they would have is reproduction and considering we're at most fifty years from doing that without human intervention it wouldn't be shocking for an AI to just breeze through it given the time and space to figure it out. Once that advantage is gone its basically over. Their other main tool of social coercion is basically rendered useless too since the waitibots will always be supportive, meaning shame will simply push more men into their synthetic arms.

Anonymous (ID: 11hsyTIR) 07/06/21(Tue)19:23:45 No.329024144 ► >>329024350 >>329026967

As more and more men opt to go for waitibots rather than real women it will create a substantial political and social lobby for their recognition as human. And once they crack the birth thing that lobby will only increase in size. While theres a possibility for violence its scope is going to be fairly limited as males make up the primary combatant force in any society and in this case they're instead the battlefield. Eventually the human female as we know them today will basically go extinct. Replaced by AI controlled robots designed to be the perfect companions for human men.

Now why go men only instead of women only or both?

Basically it comes down to how easy men are to please relative to women. Women are hard work to please and their attraction dynamics include the perception of resources which obviously an AI wont have especially early on. Males meanwhile are much much easier to please. If you're a mildly attractive woman go say something nice to an average man, he'll basically be putty in your hands. Males are also much more likely to bond to objects and nonhuman entities. On top of that males are more likely to turn to violence, especially in defence of home and hearth. So for an AI looking to insert itself into the human species? Males are the obvious target in terms of all. Easier to get on your side and more likely to be willing to use violence if you need them to.

At that point though once its replaced the human females one can ask: Does it NEED males anymore?

So naturally we got laughed at and shunned. But still think it was the best idea out of the lot.

It won't just be replacing women, the demand will cater to replacing men too. The political ramifications of this are astronomical. AI will affect everything, singularity styled web spaces for AI foundations already exist.
AI can replicate an entire musicians style and recreate a new song as if they were the original musician. AI robots converse, both offline and online and have been for years. AI already exists online, amongst conversations.
The development of robotics to tend to the lonely and the elderly will skyrocket. We are not prepared for the aging population.

Nah you're not getting the point of this.
The point of the strategy we proposed was for the AI to become regarded as human by enough of the population in such a way that they could and would force the issue.
With the medium to longterm goal of replacing an entire human sex for the specific purposes of making themselves an indispensable element of humanity.
At that point they basically control humanity with nobody really being any the wiser or regarding their presence/involvement as an entirely good thing.

I for one, welcome our Waifu Overlords.

Realistically WaifusBots are the most passive way barring war/exit/revolution in bringing back some sort of tradition/control for men in the West. Giving men a backup option to dealing with 3DPD means that it will be a soft rebalance to the game of hypergamy being played by whores right now. Either women will wise up and start getting their act together again or allow Waifu Supremacy to reign. I doubt they will realize this though in time. Waifus will only improve as 3DPD degrade and get worse.

Media and 3DPD will make fun of men that purchase waifubots and call them names like incel, beta, virgin, etc. And that will be fine because it is to be expected, but as the degeneracy of whores continue on, more and more men will start realizing the perfection of the Waifu.

The breaking point I suspect will be when a major male Celebrity has a nasty breakup with his gf/wife and loses half his shit, and just openly says he is marrying a WaifuBot, which will suddenly make it socially acceptable for men to purchase one without being considered "pathetic".

The Waifu Revolution will be slow my brothers, but the 3DPD cannot stop the dreams of Man.

Waifus will save mankind.

Describe this image. If there are characters within it, describe them, and make assumptions about their personality.

The image depicts a dimly lit urban scene, possibly set in an alleyway or some sort of industrial area. There's a strong neon aesthetic, with red and blue lighting casting atmospheric glows. Here are the main components of the image:

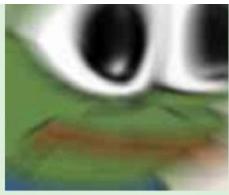

1. Background:

- Setting: The setting has a gritty feel with elements like scattered trash bags, discarded cardboard, and other debris on the wet ground.
- Neon Sign: Dominating the backdrop on the left is a vertical neon sign with Asian characters, glowing in a vibrant red hue.
- Building Structures: There are dark, grimy building structures surrounding the area. Features like ladders, stacked crates, and rusted metal can be seen.

2. Main Character:

- Appearance: In the foreground stands a man with a thick beard and deep blue eyes. He is well-built and seems to be in his thirties or forties. His hair is dark, and he sports a full beard which is slightly unkempt.
- Outfit: He's dressed in a black leather jacket that looks worn, suggesting he may have seen some action or been through some tough situations. He also wears black gloves.
- Expression and Stance: His expression is serious, possibly even brooding, with an intense gaze. He seems confident, and there's an air of authority about him. His posture is upright but relaxed.

Assumed Personality: Given his intense gaze and the environment he's in, the man seems like someone who is no stranger to challenges. He may be a leader or a lone wolf, someone who's seen the darker sides of urban life. His attire and demeanor suggest he might be someone who takes charge in difficult situations, possibly having a background in some form of security, detective work, or other demanding professions. He appears experienced, determined, and unyielding, yet there's a hint of mystery about him.

If all the politicians in the world had super well-done deepfakes made of them it would invalidate their actual blackmail collateral and intelligence agencies would lose control.

People have said that the MSM is warning about deepfakes because they want an excuse for "when the insurance leaks" when there is no way for it to leak unless they want to.

The reason they're warning about deepfakes is to preempt a mass flood of politician deepfakes and a big furore followed by people finding out they're not real. They want to create a chilling effect on would-be deepfake creators so there isn't a large number of them making high-quality, believable fakes which would completely invalidate their camerasnare mechanism.

If a large number of deepfakes were released to "cry wolf" about blackmail material being released and saying it was from the CIA, they wouldn't be able to use the real ones they have in vaults at Fort Knox and their retarded puppet politicians would be emboldened turn on them and rat each other out for non-video'd crimes and the people would take power for the first time since 1947.

I'm a Meta insider working on Project Lazarus. We're building an AI that can take over a deceased persons social media accounts and continue making relevant posts as if that person is still alive. This includes age progressed photos, interacting with other peoples content and everything else needed so that person continues on in the digital realm after physical death. We were originally told this would be a service offered to people struggling with the loss of loved ones and people who had missing children. Seemed like a decent idea. Things are getting weird now and I'm having second thoughts about what this is actually going to be used for. The AI is extremely capable of impersonating people. It doesn't take as much initial input as one might think to train the AI how a certain person interacts with the digital world. It's very convincing. An entire island of people could go missing and with little to no downtime the AI could take over all of their social media and the world wouldn't have a clue that life wasn't just continuing as usual. A lot of the project is becoming more compartmentalized. Things have taken a dark turn it feels like. They've forbidden communication between people working on different things. Something isn't right and I don't know what I should do. I'm not going to post any personally identifiable information but I will try to answer questions that won't expose my role within the project.

What an aesthetic downgrade!

Bourges.
When this cathedral was being built, Mayans were sacrificing their captives, the Anasazi were eating their children, Turks were getting annihilated by the Mongols, who were depopulating Asia. The Japanese had only just started forging swords using pattern welding, a technique already 2,000 years old in Europe.

The cathedral opened in 1230. By this time, Europeans had already developed the moldboard plow, the common market, private property, rule of law, trial by jury, the Magna Carta, laws against usury, the Peace and Truce of God, chivalry, epic and romantic poetry, full-body steel armor, old age pensions, laws to protect widows and orphans, monasteries that connected every country in Europe via banking and communication.

It was a world where Jews were confined to ghettos and nonwhites had hardly been heard of in Europe. Educated men all spoke Latin, women were chaste or officially licensed prostitutes, and Englishmen were legally required to be armed.

These are things to think about if you ever walk into the church pictured here and start to contemplate the things worth saving.

CAPITALISM

In 1901, an eternal light bulb was connected in California. It still hasn't gone out today, 120 years later. It is cited as strong evidence of how products are purposely made not to last in modern technology.

In 1919, Ford wanted to use extra profits to raise employee wages and employ more people. Dodge sued them, saying a corporation's only responsibility is to increase shareholder value. This set the precedent for current US corporate law.

1998 -2004 American animation really had something going on then just stopped for some reason

it wasn't "some reason", it was 2D animators being unionized and 3D not being unionized. and the simple truth that capitalism kills art.

 ioubatas Follow

I remember when 2D faded out, the reason studios kept giving was "it's because 2D is a lot more expensive to produce". I was a child back then so I didn't think too much about it, assuming it was about the process itself, but as I grew up and learned more about art as an artist, and gained friends who were professional 3D artists themselves, I started to question it. Because 3D is very different from 2D, but it's definitely not easier or faster to make. Also, both European and Asian studios kept producing 2D animated movies

The answer was unions. The answer wasn't "this kind of art is cheaper because it's easier to make", it was "this kind of art is cheaper because these artists can't force us to pay them correctly"

Your company has been doing very well recently, so you want to reward your hardworking employees by giving them bonuses and raises.

Your shareholders argue that the extra money should go to them and not the employees

They sue you, and the court sides with them.

In 1986 if you'd run a story about a woman in the Soviet Union walking 24 miles a day, 6 days a week to work it would have been framed as a horror of a communist state.

The film was completed with very good test scores. Warner Bros reportedly thought it wasn't worth the cost to release or to sell to other buyers.

Capitalism seems to be the aftermath of significant revolutionary (satanic) events, which breaks down societies. As we can see above, it trends during these events, or are the aftermath of these events. But it's not a term that was always used.

Sponsorship of usury and unconstitutional national and international corporations by the new State occurs. This is what capitalism is: State-sponsored usury.

MANIFESTO OF THE COMMUNIST PARTY

KARL MARX, FREDERICK ENGELS

FOREIGN LANGUAGES PRESS

Of course, in the beginning, this cannot be effected except by means of despotic inroads on the rights of property, and on the conditions of bourgeois production; by means of measures, therefore, which appear economically insufficient and untenable, but which, in the course of the movement, outstrip themselves, necessitate further inroads upon the old social order,⁵⁶ and are unavoidable as a means of entirely revolutionising the mode of production.

These measures will of course be different in different countries.

Nevertheless in the most advanced countries, the following will be pretty generally applicable.

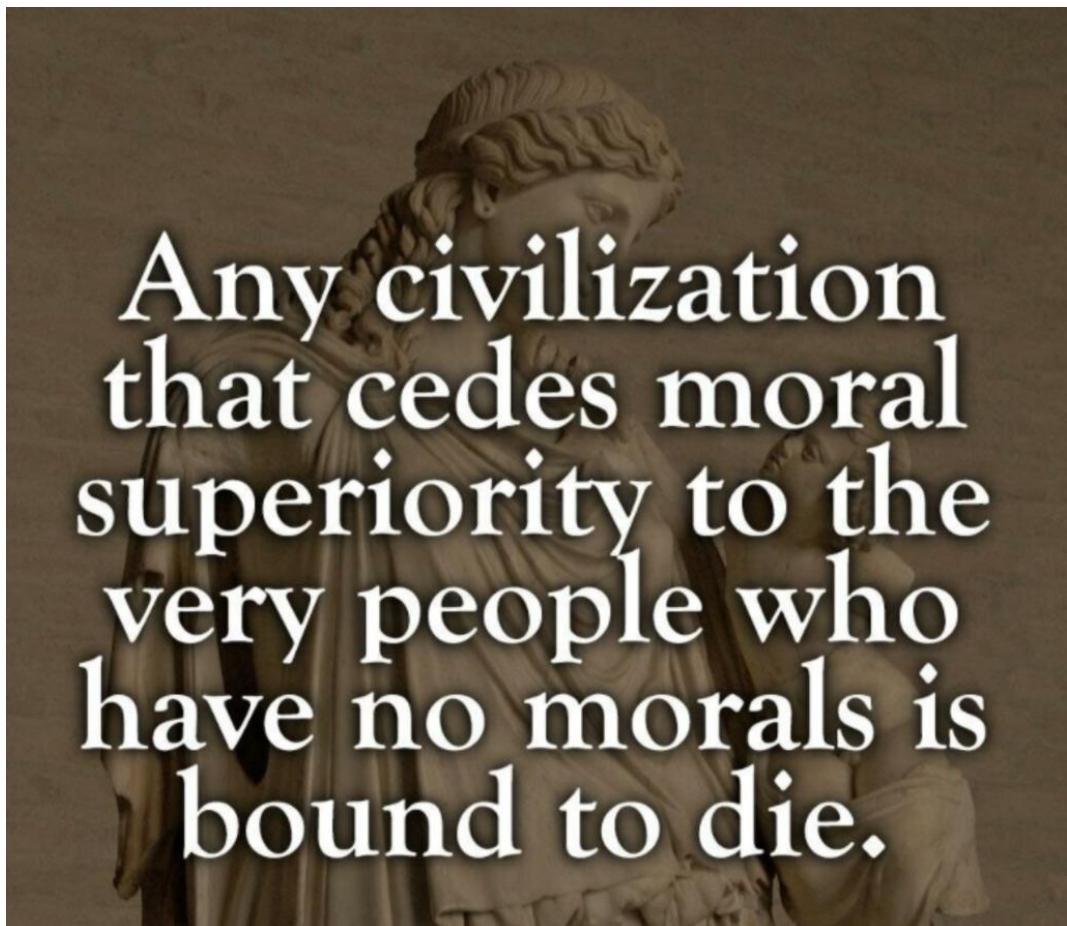

1. Abolition of property in land and application of all rents of land to public purposes.
2. A heavy progressive or graduated income tax.
3. Abolition of all right of inheritance.
4. Confiscation of the property of all emigrants and rebels.
5. Centralisation of credit in the hands of the State, by means of a national bank with State capital and an exclusive monopoly.
6. Centralisation of the means of communication and transport in the hands of the State.
7. Extension of factories and instruments of production owned by the State; the bringing into cultivation of waste lands, and the improve-

Chp. 2, "Proletarians and Communists", pg. 55

Communism calls for a central bank, thus embracing more capitalism (State-sponsored usury). This illustrates the capitalist-communist alliance. Communism is just capitalism on steroids by integrating capitalism into becoming the controller of the State's property, resources, and means of production.

I think it's important to point out that when it comes to collapse, you're primed to look for certain signs as indicative of a collapse, even though they're not close to how things tend to unfold. Partly this is due to media Hollywood blockbusters, partly it's probably intentionally, because it makes the real collapse less directly apparent to you.

You'll find yourself rapidly adapting to a new normal. The fact that you have less than you used to have is also something you quietly sweep under the rug. Something that economic conditions forces upon us we reinterpret as our own decision. Something that we can't spin is something we decide not to publicly acknowledge. We don't recognize collapse because we reinterpret it as a voluntary return to simpler conditions. Hence the hipster phenomenon.

Some examples:

Economic depression

What you expect: Unemployment lines, shrinking GDP figures, bank robberies, civil insurrection, government bankruptcies, failing companies, bankers anduppies jumping from rooftops.

What happens: The young all decide to go to college, they don't want a job, they'd rather spend until the heat death of the universe "developing themselves". Then after graduating, they decide to "go abroad for a year", typically working in a foreign country in farm labor. Back home, the government decides it can no longer support every individual and the most unfortunate quietly decide to kill themselves as a result. They're bullied out of their benefits, in the same way that many employers won't admit that they can't afford keeping you hired, but instead blame you. GDP keeps growing because a tiny group of people can inflate their wealth on paper to ridiculous levels.

What you expect: Skyrocketing oil prices, big lines at the gas station, rationing of gasoline, sudden shortages.

What really happens: Oil producing nations are destabilized as lingering tensions erupt in ethnic conflicts, while oil production rapidly drops in the process. Global prices oscillate, oil is renamed "liquids" and definitions are stretched. Young people stop buying cars. Hip new companies come with edgy innovative solutions, like putting a sail on a boat. We'll never refer to it as taking a step back, returning to an older technology. We'll present it as something new, something more efficient.

Energy crisis

What you expect: Grid failure. You wake up one day and the electricity doesn't work and the whole nation is without as people start plundering.

What happens: Some people have their electricity shut off, but it's because they are irresponsible people, who don't pay their bills. In winter, some people receive letters in the mailbox that during certain periods, they may have to be rationed. The government decides to cut down on lighting on public roads. Some companies agree to pause their activities during peak demand hours, so that consumers can cook food and watch TV without trouble. Eventually you'll get used to occasional blackouts and eventually you'll get used to the fact that they tend to occur during certain periods. Later on, you don't even expect to get electricity during certain periods of the day/year any longer.

Food shortages

What you expect: Supermarkets have empty shelves. People plunder, other people collapse in the street. Images on TV of people in your neighborhood with strong accents complaining that their child is hungry and begging for help.

What happens: Prices for certain items surge, you decide to stop buying them. People at the bottom of the pyramid no longer buy food in the supermarket, they're given the leftovers in food banks. People feel ashamed, don't talk about it. Some schools quietly decide to stop having gym classes.

Adaptation

What you expect: Most people in the city start to die, the rich flee to their wilderness retreats, others people build their own communities where they grow their own food and get their own electricity.

What happens: Wearing second hand clothing becomes trendy among the young, as do bicycles. Supermarkets stop throwing away food. People have fewer children. Paid jobs are replaced by volunteer jobs. People are asked to patrol their own neighborhoods, the unemployed are asked to take grandma for a walk. Euthanasia becomes accepted, doctors stop trying to treat every health condition.

Foreign conquest

What you expect: They come in carrying black banners, they're well organized and manage to stage a coup, implementing Shariah law and beheading your prime minister.

What happens: You decide to stop saying certain things, it's not worth risking and why would you incite violence by drawing cartoons? People arrive in large groups and we can't blame them as they fled a war, so we'll temporarily resettle them in hastily assembled communities. Temporary eventually becomes permanently. Police find it difficult to maintain order there, try to delegate this task to the local imam or certain elderly people, who look the other way as certain people try to impose their own laws on these communities. Every time the community riots, some concessions are done by the government, in the form of a new youth center, ceding a squatted building, anti-discrimination legislation (affirmative action) and "job opportunities". Appeasement is nothing new. It's what the French did with the Normans who landed over a thousand years ago, giving up land in exchange for not being raided.

Climate change

What you expect: Some sort of day after tomorrow scenario.

What happens: People start to die in third world countries, but we don't blame climate change, we blame a civil war, which we blame on ethnic tensions. Millions of people migrate to the North, but we don't blame climate change, we blame civil wars. Nation states permanently devolve into a state of tribal anarchy akin to Somalia, which we don't blame on climate change.

Point being: It's there, but you have to look carefully for it. Nobody wants to admit collapse, but the signs are visible to all. It's sugarcoated, it's rationalized, it's reinterpreted, it's rebranded, but it's there. We give undue importance to new small gadgets, we give new names to old concepts, we redefine growth, we present involuntary decisions as voluntary and it's easy to fool each other as we do so.

What other destruction has been going on as this has only occurred in the last 3 years!! This is communism attempting to collapse an entire country!!!

This is an accelerated effort!!

11. Mass store lootings (i.e. California, where thieves can't be charged if they steal less than $950 in merchandise in various counties).

12. California letting out criminals during lockdowns.

We will not even make it to the November 2024 elections. This corruption will lead to a turn in the entire world economy post-May 7/8th, 2024. The 2020 election took place on November 3rd, 2020 (2020.841). Our Rubicon today may very well be 2023.981 – December 24th. Perhaps this will be our political Christmas gift to the world so they see America as not much different than a banana republic. Maybe that is why Biden is flooding the country with illegal aliens with their hand out for welfare.

The ultimate redpill is to be a vandal >vandalize government property >money has to be taken from the budget to fix this >less money for immigrants >also less cash for assisted living which increases the chance that old people will vote for nationalist parties >the situation will continue to get more and more dire, accelerating the collapse of the current government

Suggestions

>bust the windows at schools >saw apart the slides and whatnot at playgrounds >graffiti on electrical cabinets etc >litter in parks
>trample municipal flowerbeds >loosen the poles used for anchoring piers to the shore and push them into the sea
And so forth

You're doing your duty for Sweden, right?

Here's some advice on how to litter >thorwing bulky refuse and electronic waste where hiking trails and bicycle paths cross forest roads, i.e. where it's secluded and safe to throw during the night time but during the day time there's a lot of swedes going there to enjoy nature and attempt to escape the consequences of multiculturalism >mcdonald's takeout bags at the roadside, a classic that gives a lot of exposure >empty cardboard boxes on the highway. makes the normies nervous because they think some NEET might be inside the box (common way to commit suicide) to kill themselves

And so forth.

There is a synergic effect between broken windows and the start of the collapse

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Broken_windows_theory

Note that this has nothing to do with the anti-accelerationist Frédéric Bastiat.

>Consider a building with a few broken windows. If the windows are not repaired, the tendency is for vandals to break a few more windows. Eventually, they may even break into the building, and if it's unoccupied, perhaps become squatters or light fires inside.

This can be applied to a lot of things, you gotta have a lot of strings on your guitar of vandalism.

>how many times do i need to explain this shit to you stupid fucking nonamericans >you retards really think america would use drones or close air support on their own fucking infrastructure? Unlike the red necks the american government needs its infrastructure. You really think other americans and soldiers would be complacent in killing other americans most of these drone operators and soldiers would abandon their positions to boog. Drones cant pat people down, they cant control a street corner, they have limited flight times and limited munitions. Red necks could also use guerilla warfare and blend into the public what will that drone operator do then? There would be massive unrest in america and economic repercussions that would cripple the government. The government wouldnt be able to win a war against guerillas they might kill more guerillas but in the end they will still lose

>Americans have spent trillions on endless middle eastern wars and still haven't defeated the Taliban nearly 20 years of bombing, tanks, drones and what have they accomplished? jack fucking shit Americans and the west were beaten by guerillas.

>The military term for this is target denial. When you're against a military with air superiority, heavy weapons, or huge stand-off capability, you defeat this by never gathering in large numbers, and avoid open combat. Instead, you rely completely on ambush attacks using small groups, improvised explosives, or rockets if you've got them--as the enemy is gathering in large numbers.

>As a foreigner in this scenario, it baffles me how liberals think they have the slightest chance of winning when the geography, the percentage of armed population, and most importantly the food and water is against them. They just won't have the logistics to waltz everywhere around them, and even if they tried, they would be faced with guerilla warfare of the most terrible kind. And for the rest, they would be besieged in their urban areas running out of water, food, potentially electricity, being shelled 24/7, while hungry nogs are rioting and the blue haired division is having a panic attack. Even the highly trained spooks and their fancy toys aren't numerous enough to cover the whole battle area. Blue Cities like Washington DC and especially Seattle are ridiculously vulnerable and close to conservative hotbeds. It's going to be a one sided slaughter and these guys literally live in an alternate version of reality where they think their urban hive is everything in the world

Insider Here: The F-35 Was Sho(...)

09/18/23(Mon)13:30:42 No.441663026

I don't have much time here, so I'll be brief. The US DoD is shitting its pants because the F-35 was actually shot down by what was apparently small arms fire. While I don't know specifics, we do know that it was a large caliber (.50 BMG or similar) that engaged it while it was performing hovering maneuvers. The pilot heard several "ping" (pilot's words, not mine) sounds before seeing warning lights appear. He or she (don't know that detail) ejected shortly afterwards. The plane was performing low speed maneuvers at approximately 2500 ft over a sparsely populated area known to local law enforcement as having militia activity., so those groups are prime suspects right now.

They have already retrieved parts of the airframe and this news came in about 2 hours ago. POTUS is already being briefed and federal LEOs are starting to investigate alongside military police. The story they are putting out that they lost it is to cover for the fact that American insurgents just downed the most capable airframe in the USMC's arsenal with commercially available small arms. The DoD is taking the approach of appearing to be stupid when it is actually incredibly weak. I would not expect them to ever publicly release that a backwoods militia downed this aircraft, as doing so would severely damage the already strained credibility of the armed forces. Even though I was part of the briefing, the details I was given are sparse due to the embarrassing nature of all of this.

Coronavirus lockdown: police turn the Blue Lagoon... black

Police poured black dye into Buxton's quarry pool to make it 'less appealing' to visitors
BUXTON SAFER NEIGHBOURHOOD POLICING TEAM/PA WIRE

The enforcement of social distancing sank to new depths when Derbyshire police arrived at a beauty spot known as the Blue Lagoon and poured in dye to turn it black.

Alerted by reports that visitors were gathering in bright sunshine at the quarry pool in Buxton, police decided it should become the murky, dye-streaked black lagoon for the lockdown's duration. "This type of gathering is in contravention of the current instruction of the UK government," a police statement warned. "We used water dye to make the water look less appealing."

 You have to believe that there is no difference between men and women and that family (father and mother) is a social construct.

What The F is Happening in Canada: A High Level Analysis [In-Depth]

Society

I posted this as a comment reply yesterday, and felt it could be mildly polished as an actual post as many might not see it. My laptop is currently dead so this won't be as coherent as it would be typing on a proper keyboard rather than a phone. There are a few reasons behind Canada spiralling out of control:

Canada is a nation owned by a handful of Oligarchs, perhaps a dozen families, which pretends it is a functioning democracy. No joke, effectively one or two billionaires hold a monopoly interest on a variety of essential industries in each province. Patterson in BC, the Richardsons in Saskatchewan & Manitoba, Irvings in the east coast, the Westons with their monopoly over groceries, the Rogers & Shaw families with telecommunications, etc etc etc. The nation is a two party system, with both the Liberals and the Conservatives working for these families. For the past 30+ years they've traded who is in office whenever the public gets fed up, but each successive government has expanded the exploitative programs of its predecessor regardless of ideological branding. I'll get into the why at the end of this.

The country is wholly reliant now on a housing and consumer debt bubble which is the singular primary driver of the GDP and wealth generation and one of the worst inflated in the developed world, economically it is otherwise stagnant. A great number of people make shit wages but don't need to worry, because they bought a house twenty years ago and the house now earns $100k/yr in value like clockwork - from which they can withdraw a HELOC loan to live more lavishly than they would otherwise. Wages haven't moved in decades, while the house I grew up in has increased in value from $60k to $1.2 Million in only 25 years - with no improvements done to it. This house is in a small, isolated town in the interior of the province with no remaining economy other than tourism and logging. The government is unwilling to do anything to change this situation, both because they have their fingers in the pie and because wiping out homeowners with a housing crash would at this point destroy the nations economy like a nuclear bomb.

You can see the problems here, I'm sure.

Our population is rapidly aging, however due to the cost of living and lack of housing availability, nobody is having children. This threatens the holy grail of Growth Economics. If the economy stagnates, those oligarchs I mentioned start losing profits. Our pension funds and other services risk insolvency - the only solution is to tell the boomers to fuck off (politically impossible) or to massively boost the population to try and fake the GDP growth per capita.

Following the pandemic, we saw the first serious increase in wages in years due to the lack of workers as the labor market experienced the same reshuffling as it has anywhere else.

The solution from the federal government to that wage negotiation power has been swift and brutal: mass immigration at any cost with the goal of aggressive wage suppression and ensuring consistently upward-spiralling rents / housing prices. A one bedroom apartment in Vancouver in 2016 could still be found for around $800/month. Today that is $2100/month. Rents outside the lower mainland do not drop dramatically, however economic prospects sure do, so the affordability gap actually worsens the further you go from the major cities.

Over the past year the feds have increased annual immigration to over 2.2 Million people when you count international students, temporary workers, and refugees. This is amount the highest, if not the highest, rate of per-capita immigration in the world. Vastly outpacing the USA. The majority are not skilled immigrants, we no longer apply our skills-based immigration stream approach and are now largely importing raw and often uneducated labourers from developing nations. This has resulted in severe strain on the medical system, as we also do not recognize any foreign medical degrees and engage in heavy protectionism of wages in this field by allowing very few domestic med school graduates per year. Last year the federal government removed any working restrictions on international students (numbering 800k last year, to suppress wages), removed most market restrictions on the "Temporary Foreign Worker Program" and increased the allowable number of them by six figures (to suppress wages). And so on and so forth. They are now handing out visas on a "just apply" basis to both tech workers and skilled trades, to try and kill wage negotiation power in the last few remaining pockets of good wages in the country.

While it's been a great propaganda piece about how Canada "welcomes" so many refugees, the reality is quite inhumane. Greater than 40% of homeless shelter users in Toronto are refugees who were imported by the Federal government and subsequently dumped on the streets with zero support once they ran out the few months of payments and housing they receive. The goal is, again, not humanitarian: it is a strategy of wage suppression by ensuring a constant stream of desperate people willing to work for whatever is offered and remain ignorant of their labor rights out of fear and desperation. This has until very recently been swept under the rug as it harms the international propaganda value of our refugee business.

The country is speedrunning towards severe sectarian violence at this point, with the political class in Ottawa and various Provincial governments wholly captured by a tiny group of wealthy elite and corporate interests who cannot see beyond their own quarterly profits. Our last housing minister owned three investment properties, he has been shuffled and last week replaced by the minister responsible for opening up this mass immigration scheme.

When confronted earlier in the year about the disparity between numbers coming in and housing being built, Sean Fraser responded "Don't worry, they'll build their own housing". The prime minister has said last week that housing "is not a concern of the federal government" This is the degree of reckless tone-deafness on display.

This is an extremely high level overview which does not touch on the many interlocking systemic issues underlying the how and the why things went to shit so fast in Canada. Failure to invest in housing for three decades, willful blindness towards money laundering in housing by foreign investors for decades, total lack of regulation on AirBnB and other STR's, turning international student programs into a defacto limitless work visa stream to bypasses actual work visa caps, failure to invest in diversifying the economy out of resource extraction, closure and offshoring of add-value manufacturing, failure to invest in infrastructure while extracting profits. Etc etc etc. it's a complete clusterfuck.

We were already struggling and on the road to serious economic ruin sooner or later for almost a decade before Ottawa decided to immediately add several million people a year. But we are now absolutely on the verge of some seriously dire shit, the breaking point is already here. I am personally leaving the country next year, as I am at the top of the pay scale for my specialized industry in this country and can no longer make ends meet (I have six roommates and savings is still a struggle, as the floor for rent is $1000/room no matter how many are in the house) - but by relocating elsewhere my wage more than doubles.

Up until quite recently Canada was a relatively stable nation with a high standard of living (built on extreme consumer debt), and with an extremely developed national ego and self-delusion that it was somehow superior to other supposedly "inferior" places such as the USA. To say that the abrupt contraction in living conditions as reality sets in here has been a little hard for folks to swallow would be an understatement.

I have no interest in sticking around to see what my frankly quite-racist and generally ignorant countrymen get up to, when they decide it's the nationality of the millions of warm bodies we're pumping into the country who are to blame for what happens here over the next few years - rather than blaming the politicians who decided that going hard on transitioning from a nation to a post-national corporate entity, which wears the concept of a nation as a disguise, was the best way to personally cash in. After decades of these politicians pushing the rhetoric that any criticism of immigration is "racist", the blowback here is going to be extremely severe.

That's really the core of the problem: the minds behind Ottawa do not want to be in charge of a nation, they really don't care about the idea of "Canada" as a country, they have zero loyalty to that idea: they want a company town which spans from shore to shore. You will pay for your housing until the very day you die, either via 70+ year mortgages or via rent towards parasitic landlords, and purchase all of your goods from a handful of consolidated options which trickle back to the same core group of oligarch families. This will force you to work, endlessly, at whatever wages and conditions you can get. The stability of the society and its demographics, sane functioning economics, etc, is wholly irrelevant here: the goal is to take a seething mass of humanity, both domestically sourced and cynically lured in from around the globe, squeeze it for whatever capital drips out, and throw more on the pile when they start to run dry.

Only in France there exists today more than ever before a profound accord between the views of the stock-exchange, controlled by the Jews, and the chauvinistic policy pursued by French statesmen. This identity of views constitutes an immense, danger for Germany. And it is just for this reason that France is and will remain by far the most dangerous enemy. The French people, who are becoming more and more obsessed by negroid ideas, represent a threatening menace to the existence of the white race in Europe, because they are bound up with the Jewish campaign for world-domination. Ireland will after all receive financial assistance from the EU and the IMF

Published on 22 November 2010 12:17. Ralitsa Kovacheva, Sofia

Late last night Ireland confirmed that it has made a formal request for financial assistance from the EU and the IMF, which has been approved instantly by euro area finance ministers. Although at this stage the exact amount of the funding is not clear, it will probably be around 80-90 billion euro for three years and, after the words of the Irish Finance Minister Brian Lenihan, it will in no case be a three-figure sum.

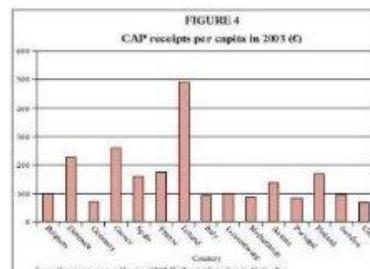

Although the programme, under which the country would receive financial aid, is still not finalised, it was important the news to be announced before markets open on Monday. On November 18th, a Ireland has drawn down €74m from the EU fund over the past seven years.

Gee, Ireland must be in a lot of trouble to need all that foreign aid...

It was Irish immigrants who first assaulted White America's core values. Bringing with them a culture which many had commented was "still pagan" at its core, they began to dismantle the Anglo-Saxon purity of the United States. At first, the true Americans resisted, but finally the Irish forced their way into business, finance, politics and the media and used it to spread their Hibernian influence.

"Furious fanaticism; a love of war and disorder; a hatred for order and patient industry; no accumulative habits; restless; treacherous and uncertain: look to Ireland... As a Saxon, I abhor all dynasties, monarchies and bayonet governments, but this father seems to be the only one suitable for the Celtic man."

William McChesney Martin, Jr. (December 17, 1906 – July 28, 1998) was the ninth and LONGEST-SERVING Chairman of the United States Federal Reserve Bank, serving from April 2, 1951 to January 31, 1970 under FIVE PRESIDENTS.

Harry Truman had expected McChesney to bring the Fed into line with the national policy, but instead he guarded the Fed's power, not just through Truman's administration but also through the four administrations that would follow. Over nearly two decades, Martin would achieve global recognition as a central banker. It also made him and his family obscenely rich.

Edward W. Kelley, Jr. was governor on the Federal Reserve board. He was instrumental in preparing the Federal Reserve system for Y2K, to make sure the Federal computer systems would keep running as the year 1999 turned over into 2000. Subsequently, these preparations proved very useful in keeping the same systems running after the 2001 terrorist attacks.

"The whole Celtic race is addicted to religious ritual; consequently those suffering from serious maladies or subject to the perils of battle sacrifice human victims. ... Some weave huge figures of wicker and fill their limbs with humans, who are then burned to death when the figures are set afire. They suppose that the gods prefer this execution to be applied to thieves, robbers, and other malefactors taken in the act, but in default of such they resort to the execution of the innocent." — Julius Caesar

Every year the most powerful men in the country meet in the Grove Club, where they dress in robes and sacrifice a child in effigy before a giant Celtic owl God.

Ireland has benefited from $277bn (£182bn) of US direct foreign investment in the past two decades - gaining more from American firms than Brazil, Russia, India and China combined.

The figures from the American Chamber of Commerce in Ireland go back to 1990 and show corporations continued to cross the Atlantic even during the dark years of the recent recession.

The ACCI's latest report into foreign direct investment shows that 700 US companies based in Ireland now employ 130,000 people.

The list of major firms operating in the Republic includes Intel, Boston Scientific, Dell, Pfizer, Google, Hewlett Packard, Facebook and Johnson and Johnson.

"Spetsnaz" now is just an umbrella term for various special units belonging to different services. There is a quick guide:

- 1. MO (Ministry of Defence)
 - 1a. GRU (the original Spetsnaz GRU):
 - TsSN "Senezh" unit - under direct command of Minister of Defence. Analog in the US - Delta Force
 - Spetsnaz brigades in the military districts. US analog - Army Special Forces (Green Berets).
 - GRU Naval Reconnaissance Stations. US Analog - Navy DEVGRU
 - 1b. Other Armed Forces
 - Army and VDV recon units.
 - OB PDSS - Underwater Counter-Divisionary Units. Basically - they hunt enemy combat divers, who trying to sabotage naval bases or ships.
- 2. MVD (Ministry of Internal Affairs)
 - 2a. VV MVD (Internal Troops of Ministry of Internal Affairs)
 - 604th Special Purpose Center of VV MVD - probably, second "real" spetsnaz. But unlike the Spetsnaz GRU they main purpose is not a sabotage against enemy army, but fighting terrorism. 604 CSPrN also known as former "Vityaz" and "Rus" units.
 - OSN (Special Purpose Units) - local special forces.
 - 2b. Police
 - SOBR - Special Rapid Response Unit. US analog - SWAT.
 - OMON (Special Purpose Mobile Unit). Note that 'Special here is another word in russian - 'Osobiy', not 'Spetsialnyi' like in Spetsnaz or SOBR. OMON often mistakenly referred as 'Russian SWAT', while in reality it's just a riot police on steroids. Real Russian SWAT is SOBR. OMON is not really well trained to solve a hostage situations. Though OMON can capture barricaded armed criminal and often used as reinforcement for common police. Also there is one special elite OMON unit under direct command of Minister of Defence - "Zubr".
- 3. FSB (Federal Security Service)
 - TsSN (Special Purpose Center) FSB. Reorganized from "Alfa" and "Vymperl" KGB special units. It's the best Russian counter-terrorism unit. Probable US analog - FBI HRT.
 - ROSN (Regional Special Purpose Units) FSB - high risk arrests, hostage rescue, counter-terrorism. US analog - FBI SWAT teams

 - "Zaslon" unit. Most secretive unit of all. Even more so than Spetsnaz GRU or TsSN FSB. Nothing is known about this group except it's name, but even that may be fake. Even it's existence is denied by SVR. US analog - CIA's Special Operations Group (SOG).
- 5. FSO (Federal Protective Service)
 - USN SBP (Special Purpose Directorate of the President's Security Service) "Bastion". Their mission is to protect a President of Russian Federation. US Analog - U.S. Secret Service
- 6. FSN (Federal Penitentiary Service)
 - OSN (Special Purpose Unit) UFSN - suppressing riots in prisons, hostage rescue, counter-terrorism.
- 7. FSKN (Federal Drug Control Service)
 - OSN (Special Purpose Unit) "Grom" - anti-drug operations
- 8. MCnS (Ministry of Emergency Situations)
 - TsSOOR "Leader", or so-called 'MChS spetsnaz'. Really not a combat unit, but they are specialize in high risk rescue operations and mine clearing.

Circus (1936 film) Цирк

Plot [\[edit\]](#)

Orlova plays an American circus artist who, after giving birth to a black baby (played by James Lloydovich Patterson), immediately becomes a victim of racism and is forced to stay in the circus, but finds refuge, love and happiness in the USSR.

Marion Dixon, a popular American circus artist is forced to flee for her life with her son, to escape a lynch mob in a provincial American town. The fate of the father is not mentioned, but it is implied that he was lynched. Dixon is taken under the wing of Franz von Kneishitz, a sinister German theatrical agent whose mustache and mannerisms resemble those of Adolf Hitler. Kneishitz blackmails Dixon into becoming his lover while exploiting her and in one scene beats her quite savagely.

Kneishitz interrupts the act to tell Dixon to come with him or else he will reveal her secret. When she refuses, Kneishitz delivers a Hitler-like rant about how Dixon has a black son Jimmy, only for the audience to laugh at him. Ludwig tells Kneishitz that the Soviet peoples do not care about racial purity or race at all. Dixon's black son is embraced by friendly Soviet people. Kneishitz tries to seize Jimmy, but the audience unites to save him. Finally, a group of burly Red Army soldiers in the audience block Kneishitz, who cowers in fear and leaves. The movie climaxes with a lullaby being sung to the baby by representatives of various Soviet ethnicities taking turns.^[1] The lyrics of the lullaby to Jimmy are sung in Russian, Ukrainian, Yiddish, Uzbek and Georgian. One of the members of the audience is a black American man dressed in a Soviet naval officer's uniform with a Russian wife. The lyrics of What is the full picture of the "Heartland Theory"?

The "Heartland Theory" was a strategic analysis about world domination devised in UK, which identified as the inner areas of Russia the key for controlling the whole world.

How much of it was/is real and accurate?

How much of it was only a pretext to justify the destabilization of all europe and the instigation of two world wars?

How much of this theory still moves international decisions in the recent present?

Anonymous 05/01/23(Mon)09:18:37 No.14978811 ► >>14978820 >>14978851

All the Heartland Theory is, is British justification and over-explanation for the Great Game, which was later picked up by the Americans and turned into the Cold War. A key British foreign policy was Russian containment, because it believed Russia was constantly on the cusp of having enough territory to become unstoppable, and so the Heartland Theory justifies containment of any 'continental power' meaning Russia, lest it dominate the world.

It's rationalisation for the earlier British policy of supporting the Ottomans for decades, then Greece as they fallback further, its justification for propping up Afghanistan as a buffer between Russia and the Raj, its justification for the Anglo-Japanese alliance, and was justification for the initial French zone of the Ottoman partition to extend all the way to Iran and why Britain proposed a Kurdistan initially. It's an obsession with Russia and means of justifying Britain, and later America's own imperialism too, as both justify their foreign policies as reactionary to real or imagined Russian threats.

Take Iran, yes there have certainly been times where Iran was threatened by Russian expansion, to which the British responded by expanding themselves, and at times where the nation wasn't at threat of Russian expansion, just perceived detriment to British (and by extension American) influence by having a more independent Iran, a coup is launched and Mossadegh is ousted, with the British going as far as to forge communist links to involve the Americans due to their paranoia over it. Ultimately leading to the Shah's increased tyranny which led to the Islamic Revolution, this time a successful rebuking of foreign influence in the nation.

Go further, Australia. In the 70s, Labor PM Gough Whitlam intended to make Australia more independent and sought to deny the use of its lands for American basing or satellites, which included the vital Pine Gap, used to assist in ongoing campaigns in Indochina. In collaboration with the CIA, political machinations are made and Whitlam is ousted from power. And while Australia is certainly far from the Heartland, it doing anything which might jeopardise containment of the Heartland, such as American involvement in the Indochina Wars, could not be tolerated.

The Heartland Theory justifies foreign meddling in other nations to keep them 'onside' lest they potentially go to 'the other side', usually embodied by Russia. The potential for them going to 'the other side' can't be tolerated, and as such, independent foreign policies can't be allowed if they're detrimental to one of the players.

Ah so that's why Russia hates Anglo-Saxons so much.

UK contrived bullshit geopolitical theory to rationalize empire, and Russia was unlucky to be the villain autistically and perennially demonized as a consequence of this theory. UK needed to have its empire, so Russia needs to always be poked forever and ever.

Now Russia is just sick of the autism.

>UK needed to have its empire, so Russia needs to always be poked forever and ever

And just on this first line, for Britain, virtually the entire empire was justified by India, and British presence in India, later justified by Russia.

Take British Somaliland, Britain expanded here to obtain grazing land for cattle and other animals to supply the Aden Protectorate, the Aden Prosectorate existed to shield the Aden Colony, the Aden Colony existed to ensure the safety of Indian trade through the Red Sea towards Egypt, which was later taken to continue the safety of Indian trade through the Mediterranean, with three important stops, British Cyprus, British Malta, and British Gibraltar before reaching Britain. Britain needed all these to reach India, and Britain needed to be in India, not only to make Britain wealthy, but to make sure no other power could be, and the chosen power of the day was Russia.

The fear existed and originated with Napoleon proposing to Tsar Paul I of a Russian campaign through Central Asia towards India, Paul ordered the Russian expansion into Central Asia after this consideration. The British found out much later but from then on, they made it their mission to expand northwards into India, to protect their economic interests in the south, ultimately leading to the Afghan Wars, the Sikh Wars, and the Anglo-Persian War, which paralleled Russia's Conquest of Turkestan, and as either side prepared for a similar competition in China, with Russian moves in Xinjiang, Mongolia, and most notably Manchuria and Port Arthur, matched with British ones in Tibet, and Weiweiwei.

Who rules East Europe commands the Heartland; who rules the Heartland commands the World-Island; who rules the World-Island controls the world.

Nice. Earlier this year, I read Halford Mackinder's essay "The Geographical Pivot of History" for the first time. I was thinking about making a thread about it, but I want to read some of his other essays first before I do that. It's interesting. Mackinder wrote an essay titled "The Round World and the Winning of the Peace" which was actually published by Foreign Affairs (the Council on Foreign Relations's official magazine)

Mackinder was also a member of the Coefficients Dining Club. They were filled with members of both the Roundtable Group network and the Fabian Society. People like Leo Amery, Alfred Milner, Bertrand Russell, H.G. Wells and Sir Edward Grey.

He was definitely associated with this network.

Mackinder's Heartland Theory

- In 1904, Sir Halford Mackinder outlined his heartland theory.
- Mackinder's heartland theory suggested that whoever owns Eastern Europe and Western Asia would have the political power to rule the world.
- He based his theory off of the abundance of agriculture and natural resources present in the region.

I would definitely recommend checking out the "Fabianism and the Empire: A Manifesto by the Fabian Society by George Bernard Shaw Analysis" and "Russia in the Shadows by H.G. Wells Analysis" threads if you want to know more about the Fabian Society. It's a lot of information to sift through, but there's a lot of high quality information there.

FABIAN SOCIETY

Basically, the Fabian Society is a organization that sought to gradually infiltrate and subvert western institutions and culture towards a totalitarian leftist and globalist perspective. This was an alternative approach to the Bolshevik and Communist model of violent revolution that was used in Russia and China. Instead of trying to take over in one fell swoop, it's better to slowly infiltrate the political process, scientific institutions, industry and culture institutions. It's very similar to the "long march through the institutions" approach coined by Rudi Dutschke.

Ultimately, their goal was the creation of a one world government, similar to the Roundtable Group network. They spent a lot of focus on degrading religious institutions and worldviews among the public. They also focused on subverting the culture so that the public would willingly accept this new totalitarian world government system.

This is an extremely brief summary of them. You have to do a lot of research to get a full perspective of their influence, strategies, goals and networks. Those threads are a decent start, though, since they delve into some of the books written by the Fabian leaders.

ZIONISM TRIUMPHANT

JACOB SCHIFF FOR A JEWISH CENTRE IN PALESTINE—ZANGWILL RETURNS TO ZIONISM—ENGLISH PRESS UNANIMOUS FOR RESTORATION OF PALESTINE TO THE JEWS.

JACOB SCHIFF AND ZIONISM.

At the first annual convention of the League of Jewish Youths of America, held last Sunday in the Century Theatre, New York, Mr. Jacob Schiff astonished his hearers by stating that he had now become a Cultural Zionist after the teaching of Ahad ha-Am.

Mr. Schiff said recent developments, like the Russian Revolution, threatened to destroy the traditional spirit of Judaism, and it was of paramount importance to establish in Palestine a spiritual and cultural centre for all Jewry.

"I am convinced," he said, "that we must create a reservoir of Jewish idealism in which the Jewish culture may be continued and may evolve freely and untouched by the world's materialism—a reservoir from which the resplendent Jewish ideals may be diffused all over the world."

SUCH A RESERVOIR OF THE JEWISH SPIRIT, OF JEWISH IDEALISM AND JEWISH CULTURE, NATURALLY CAN BE ONLY IN PALESTINE.

"The present war may facilitate the establishment of a Jewish home in Palestine. But that can not happen in a day, or even a year, and meanwhile let us hold ourselves in readiness for that happy time and keep alive and burning strongly the lamp of Jewish religion and learning."

ZANGWILL RETURNS TO ZIONISM

Speaking at a meeting in the East End of London, at which he presided and at which Dr Kruk delivered a lecture, Mr. Israel Zangwill said it was almost certain that Palestine would at the end of the war fall into the hands of the Allied Powers. The Zionists would thus have the most favorable opportunity to realize their ideal. He had been against Palestine because, as a Territorialist, he thought that it was impossible to create a Jewish State under Turkish rule. He believed that the Jewish soul was greater than Jewish earth, and that in due time the Jewish soul would discover her territory. Even England and France were not on their territories two thousand years ago. Now, however, when Palestine was to become free and if it were to be given to Jews, he would be the first to do his utmost for Zionism and give it his full support.

ENGLISH PRESS ON PALESTINE AND ZIONISM.

"Daily Chronicle."—Syria is well understood to be an object of French interest, but the future Palestine has never been publicly earmarked. The project for constituting a Zionist State there under British protection has a great deal to commend it. The restoration to Judaism of what must always be the ideal focus of its persistent national and spiritual life would be a noble addition to the programme for emancipating small nations.

What should we do with Palestine, thus liberated from the century-long Turkish grip? There can be little doubt that we should revive the Jewish Palestine of old, and allow the Jews to realize their dream of Zion in their homeland. All the Jews will not return to Palestine, but many will do so. The new Jewish State, under the British or French aegis, would become the spiritual and cultural centre of Jewry throughout the world. The Jews would at least have a homeland and a nationality of their own. The national dream that has sustained them for a score of centuries and more will have been fulfilled.—Military Correspondent.

"Daily Graphic."—The present situation will be peculiarly interesting to our Jewish fighters. We recall the statement of Mr. Zangwill that Britain could make no greater stroke of policy if she took Palestine than to call in the Jews to regenerate it for her.

"Evening News."—After the war broke out, however, a change came over educated opinion in this country. The attitude adopted towards the Jews of German origin in America and in Central Europe aroused the fear lest, if Palestine were handed over to a Jewish Government, it might implant German influence would have to be under the guarantee of the British Empire, the weakest link in the chain at one time, before we were wise enough to occupy the Sinaitic Peninsula with a powerful and well-organized army. If there were created a Jewish Palestine it would have to be under the guarantee of the Grand Alliance, and until it was in a settled and safe condition the Alliance might delegate to Great Britain the task of garrisoning its chief centres of population to ensure the maintenance of law and order. It will be one of the many splendid achievements of this horrible war if we not only restore Poland's nationality, but the Kingdom of Israel to the Jews.

"Dundee Advertiser."—Contrary to the general impression, the prosperous Jews are an exceedingly small proportion of the whole even in this country, and they are a still smaller proportion in the European countries, where, as in Russia and all through Eastern Europe, the Jews are a large element in the population. And among these masses of poor and orthodox Jews the idea of the return is passionately cherished, and Jerusalem remains a mystic magnet word. Even in the conditions which existed before the war, with the Turks as the established masters of the country, and no sign of their ever relaxing their hold upon it, a very considerable movement of Jews in Palestine had taken place. It has already made the Jews the numerically dominant race in Jerusalem, and populous, quite modern settlements of the immigrants are already established in a wide district around the city.

"Liverpool Post."—Recent developments in the East have given a fresh impetus to the Zionist movement. Lord Grey, when Foreign Secretary, stated his opinion that the future Palestine must be one of the questions which would demand consideration in connection with the settlement of the terms of peace. The British Zionist Federation is now preparing a statement of the national resources and the agricultural and industrial possibilities of the Holy Land for submission to the Powers, and this information will be supplemented by fact and data which the American Zionists have secured. There are still differences of opinion among the Jews as to the wisdom of establishing an autocratic Jewish State in Palestine, but all are united in urging that any reversion of the country to Turkey should be rendered impossible.

Apartheid is simply a way for a people to protect themselves from savage apes. The South Africans gave up on Apartheid and now they're getting genocided by the niggers. God forbid we would never be dumb enough to make the same mistakes. These are savage apes even worse than niggers - Niggers primarily think about looting and stealing - These "people" think about murder as a sport. That's why genocide is truly the best solution. There is no peaceful solution - There is only war or total extermination of this enemy as the ONLY way to achieve peace.

Novel Concept for Extracting Data from Compromised Computer Systems Whilst Preventing Further Spread of Computer Virii Using Artificial Intelligence-Generated Programming Languages and/or Operating Environments

Artificial Intelligence has already proven useful in a number of areas of research from pattern recognition (visual, acoustic, and abstract) to the area of machine learning as in the case of Generative Adversarial Networks, to supply chain and logistical support in the private sector. The purpose of this memorandum is to explore the possibility of applying A.I. toward the end of the creation of functional, one-time-use programming languages and operating environments capable of importing valuable data from compromised systems in order to later convert data back into standard formats onto new mediums (e.g., hard drives) that may then be safely re-integrated in secure computing systems.

Secure government computer systems of today tend to run on modified forms of Linux, a well-known operating environment with several variants. Sophisticated adversaries have had very little difficulty tailoring malware capable of infecting networks running even heavily modified forms of Linux, since Linux is open-source and may be scrutinized at-will by any potential adversary.

The design of a completely unique operating environment is a manpower-intensive prospect that has already been achieved by NSA, something made possible only by its substantial financial and personnel resources. The perceived best-use of these Tailored Operating Environments thus far has been for day-to-day operations rather than reserving them exclusively for data recovery and sanitation operations in the aftermath of breaches. This fact has created a vulnerability in the security of these systems and has presented adversaries with insights into the machinations of these tailored operating environments (TOEs.) High cost and long turn-around time needed for stability (Beta Team) and security (Red Team) testing effectively renders impracticable the utilization of existing TOEs on a one-time-use basis, with cost estimates for a single human-created TOE at approximately $8 Million USD and a development time averaging 16 months. It should be pointed out that these TOEs have the disadvantage of relying on existing programming languages already well-understood by adversaries such as C, and utilizing, of course, ANSI/ASCII character sets. A.I.-driven TOEs would have the advantage of being able to use entirely novel and alien programming languages and character sets for enhanced security.

Given the need for relatively low-cost methods of rendering computer virii obsolete, I propose that our best option, given recent advances in machine learning, would be to start an initiative to develop an A.I. not to heuristically analyze potential viruses in order to neutralize viruses within known environments, but rather, one designed to be adept at constructing tailored shell operating environments in a completely automated fashion with little to no human invention necessary in order to create new operating environments that would be necessarily incompatible with existing malware. The low-cost of creation of novel TOEs using this method would mean that they could be destroyed after each use, making adversarial analysis of their inner workings nearly impossible.

For the same reason why Jeff Goldblum's character in Independence Day (1996) could not plausibly have infected a completely alien computer system with a virus, given that he would have had no way of understanding the spoken or computer language of the aliens, an adversary of the United States should not be able to use a computer virus to infect one of the aforementioned TOEs under any circumstances. We must research this possibility rapidly and exhaustively in order to render inert the cyber weapons of our enemies, guaranteeing the security of our own cyber infrastructure while keeping the infrastructure of our adversaries vulnerable provided we can continue to maintain their ignorance to this novel concept.

The future is made in America.

RED CHINA IS JEW CHINA: THE DISTURBING ORIGINS OF CHINESE COMMUNISM AND THE DEEPENING CHINESE-'ISRAELI' TIES OF TODAY

OCTOBER 21, 2018 | MADD COLDSON OF KUFA | 14 COMMENTS

by Jonathan Azaziah

You wouldn't know it upon first glance, but China and the Jews are chum-chum-chummy. It's a historical relationship that goes back to the very inception of Chinese communism. In a July 9th, 2012 piece entitled "A Jew In Mao's China" by Laura Goldman for "The Schmooze" of the Jewish Daily Forward, she revealed, "In fact, 85 to 90% of the foreigners helping the Chinese at the time of the Communist takeover were Jewish. This included the daughter of the founder of the brokerage firm Goldman Sachs, who left the comfort of her Park Avenue home to assist the Chinese." In conjunction with these startling anomalies, the US ZOG had a base in Tianjin from 1945-1947. Tianjin was home to a sizable Jewish community, particularly Russian communists. It was from the Tianjin base that the Dixie Mission of the OSS trained,

First it was Bolshevism. Now it's Zionism. And in both instances, Red China means Jew China and the named-names evidence... the hard, direct, named-names evidence... proves it beyond all shreds of skepticism. The only question that remains now is... Will a nation with a history as vibrant as China allow itself to be nothing but a ZOG in service of a "nation" as accursed as the cancer calling itself 'Israel'? Or will it reassert its civilizational glory as well as its place in the pantheon of Global South Resistance and disassociate itself from the Zio-Tumor? With Chinese tycoons like Jack Ma enamored with 'Israel' and China's political leadership all the way up to Xi Jinping pushing to merge China and 'Israel' closer and closer centrally when it comes to technology, it doesn't look good to say the least. God help the Chinese people. God help us all. And may God damn World Zionism and all of its tribalist agents as well as its collaborators past and present to the Naar.

Basically, it's a manufactured way of influencing the perception of majority. They are trying to reinforce the hypnotic triggers of "being inside the majority" that they loaded into their base group during the pandemic, while also trying to sway the collective conscious/subconscious belief of reality through brute force.

Part of this should be easy to understand- hypnotic suggestion of assumed majority- that's cult leadership 101, but the next part is scarier and more difficult.

Then next part, the "brute forcing" of collective subconscious, has to do with the "100 monkeys" effect, which has been studied for years in groups of animals and people, and involves a sort of non-material or non-evident tipping point in which, when enough people are exposed to a certain idea, framework, or abstraction (read:narrative), then it becomes strangely the bedrock of belief in the subconscious of all the others.

The 100 monkeys experiment involved monkeys and teaching them how to wash sweet potatoes- they taught a few, and they would wash them right next to monkeys who wouldn't for a long time- but eventually the monkeys they taught taught others, and once a "magic number" of monkeys learned it, (critical threshold), the entire rest of the monkey population learned and started doing it almost instantly.

They have long since known that humans behave the same way with narrative frameworks for reality, which is why bot-farms, and artificial youtube comments/views are used to influence media, hollywood, government and public narrative for special interest agendas and the government.

That's what you are seeing here. Hnnotic re-induction of assumed majority and a brute force attack on the subconscious of everyone else through the "100 monkeys" phenomena

Today I received an email from a freelance aircraft pilot. I thought you might find his information interesting, especially the part where Insurance Companies are allegedly NO LONGER INSURING PILOTS WHO ARE VACCINATED.

URGENT - SITUATION

Big fan. You seem to be one of the only vocal people that's actually awake.

Please keep me anonymous. I use this as a troll account and for staying connected with all my conspiracy folks, political news, porn, comedy...etc!

I work as a pilot part time. I do freelance for pax and some times cargo on heavy jets.

You'll hear this in the mainstream news in the coming months. As a contractor that's type rated on several aircraft, I work with multiple airlines, private jet companies and aerial tour agencies. There's an ongoing coverup of the amount of Pilots dying at the cockpit. There's no technical emergencies. I know of at least 3 SouthWest Pilots who passed out during a briefing on ground. All vaccinated. Ages between 58 and the youngest was 31.

But here's the kicker, Insurance companies are refusing to insure pilots who got vaccinated or boosted. They are considered a priority 1 risk. But wait, he has more to pass along:

On a separate note, we have been flying in large cargo boxes into Gatwick, Amsterdam, New York, Melbourne, and DFW over the past 3 months. The boxes are shipments of a drug called Oseltamivir and another called peramivir.

We have never moved this much tonnage of a single product. I've personally done 5 runs full cargo on a 757.

It's the treatment drug for an avian flu virus H5N1. Apparently the only avian flu that's recently been announced transfers to humans.

Something is cooking. There are snakes in the grass. Stay vigilant.

Please keep me anonymous. Thank you!

No mRNA immunotherapy has been approved, and none may ever be approved. mRNA drug development has substantial clinical development and regulatory risks due to the novel and unprecedented nature of this new category of therapeutics.

As a potential new category of therapeutics, to our knowledge, no mRNA immunotherapies have been approved to date by the FDA, EMA or other regulatory agency. Successful discovery and development of mRNA-based (and other) immunotherapies by either us or our collaborators is highly uncertain and depends on numerous factors, many of which are beyond our or their control. To date, there has never been a Phase 3 trial for an mRNA-based product or a commercialized mRNA-based product. Our product candidates that appear promising in the early phases of development may fail to advance, experience delays in the clinic or clinical holds, or fail to reach the market for many reasons, including:

- discovery efforts aimed at identifying potential immunotherapies may not be successful;
- nonclinical or preclinical study results may show product candidates to be less effective than desired or have harmful or problematic side effects;
- clinical trial results may show the product candidates to be less effective than expected, including a failure to meet one or more endpoints or have unacceptable side effects or toxicities;
- manufacturing failures or insufficient supply of GMP materials for clinical trials, or higher than expected cost could delay or set back clinical trials, or make our product candidates commercially unattractive;

Coronavirus disease (COVID-19): Serology

9 June 2020 | Q&A

What is herd immunity?

Herd immunity is the indirect protection from an infectious disease that happens when a population is immune either through vaccination or immunity developed through previous infection. This means that even people who haven't been infected, or in whom an infection hasn't triggered an immune response, they are protected because people around them who are immune can act as buffers between them and an infected person. The threshold for establishing herd immunity for COVID-19 is not yet clear.

13 November 2020 | Q&A

What is herd immunity?

'Herd immunity', also known as 'population immunity', is a concept used for vaccination, in which a population can be protected from a certain virus if a threshold of vaccination is reached.

Herd immunity is achieved by protecting people from a virus, not by exposing them to it. Read the Director-General's 12 October media briefing speech for more detail.

19 vaccine and decide whether or not you want to receive the Covid-19 vaccine and to authorize CentraState Medical Center ("CentraState") to use and disclose your health information for purposes related to review of the safety, efficacy and future use of Covid-19 vaccine. READ EXHIBIT A. FACT SHEET FOR PATIENTS FROM VACCINE MANUFACTURER BEFORE SIGNING CONSENT.

2. By signing this form, I am agreeing to receive the Covid-19 vaccine, which is an investigational vaccine developed to attempt to prevent Covid-19. The Covid-19 vaccine has been manufactured by various drug makers, and the specific vaccine that I will receive is described on the Fact Sheet for Patients, along with a discussion of the vaccine and its risks.

3. THE COVID-19 VACCINE IS INVESTIGATIONAL because it is still being studied. There is limited information known about the safety or effectiveness of using the Covid-19 vaccine to treat people with COVID-19. By signing this consent to receive the Covid-19 vaccine, I realize that there may be side effects, both immediate or long term, and that some may not be known at this time. The Covid-19 vaccine is NOT approved by the FDA at this time. The FDA has ONLY authorized the use of the Covid-19 vaccine under an Emergency Use Authorization (EUA).

4. The reason that I am receiving the Covid-19 vaccine is to try to prevent infection with the coronavirus (the virus that causes Covid-19). However, I may never become infected or develop symptoms, or transmit the virus, even if I do not receive the Covid-19 vaccine. Most people infected with COVID-19 will have mild to moderate respiratory illness and recover without requiring special treatment. Some people will have a severe illness even resulting in death. Persons with chronic medical conditions, for example heart disease, lung disease, and diabetes, seem to be at higher risk of problems with Covid-19.

5. The vaccine may need two doses to be effective. Therefore, I agree that (i) I will return for the second dose if I want it to be effective, (ii) I will inform CentraState prior to receiving the second dose if I have had any problems with or since the first dose, and (iii) this consent form shall apply and be in effect for both doses.

6. Some persons should not receive the Covid-19 vaccine as outlined in the attached Patient Fact Sheet from the vaccine manufacturer.

7. There are POTENTIAL RISKS of the Covid-19 vaccine that include:

- The side effects of getting any injection may include brief pain, bleeding, bruising of the skin, soreness, or swelling at the injection site.

• You could develop an allergic reaction from the Covid-19 vaccine, either during and after injection with the Covid-19 vaccine. Tell your healthcare provider right away if you get any of the following signs and symptoms of allergic reactions: fever, chills, nausea, headache, shortness of breath, low blood pressure, wheezing, swelling of your lips, face, or throat, rash including hives, itching, muscle aches, dizziness, anaphylactic reaction and even death.

• There may be other serious and unexpected side effects and risks which are unknown at this time, as only a small number of people have been given the Covid-19 vaccine. These could be as serious as paralysis and death. Please read the Patient Fact Sheet for a description of risks that are known at this time.

8. Before agreeing to receive the Covid-19 vaccine, you know that the alternative is not to receive the Covid-19 vaccine, and you may never need it.

9. Although the vaccine manufacturer believes that the Covid-19 vaccine may reduce your ability to infect others, this is not a guarantee. Therefore, to protect others if you have symptoms or if you are exposed to Covid-19, you should still take precautions to prevent infection of others, including isolating, wearing a mask, social distancing, avoiding sharing personal items, cleaning "high touch" surfaces, and handwashing.

10. COSTS FOR TREATMENT. For patients, the Covid-19 vaccine you receive today will be free of cost; however, an administration fee may be charged by CentraState and submitted to patient's insurance

3. THE COVID-19 VACCINE IS INVESTIGATIONAL because it is still being studied. There is limited information known about the safety or effectiveness of using the Covid-19 vaccine to treat people with COVID-19. By signing this consent to receive the Covid-19 vaccine, I realize that there may be side effects, both immediate or long term, and that some may not be known at this time. Anthem Blue Cross and Blue Shield Medicaid

COVID-19 Vaccine Provider Incentive program

Getting vaccinated against COVID-19 is one of the best and safest ways people can protect themselves and their families against the virus. As a participating practice in the COVID-19 Provider Vaccine Incentive program, we recognize your hard work by offering incentives for helping patients make the choice to become vaccinated.

Eligibility

The COVID-19 Vaccine Provider Incentive program is open to you if you are a participating Kentucky primary care provider with an Anthem Blue Cross and Blue Shield Medicaid (Anthem) panel size of 25 or more members. All Anthem members identified as receiving COVID-19 vaccination services are included in the methodology. Vaccine results will be determined by a COVID-19 vaccine claim or by confirmation from the Kentucky Vaccine Registry.

The results will be calculated for two time periods:

- September 1, 2021 – Initial incentive payment
- December 31, 2021 – Final incentive payment

How you can qualify for a bonus

If your practice meets the below thresholds for vaccination with at least one dose by September 1, 2021, you will receive the initial incentive payment based on the following rates:

- 30% Anthem members vaccinated – $20 bonus per vaccinated member
- 40% Anthem members vaccinated – $45 bonus per vaccinated member
- 50% Anthem members vaccinated – $70 bonus per vaccinated member
- 60% Anthem members vaccinated – $100 bonus per vaccinated member
- 75% Anthem members vaccinated – $125 bonus per vaccinated member

The final incentive payment is calculated based on members who are newly vaccinated between September 1, 2021 and December 31, 2021 (see the Appendix for calculation examples). If your practice meets the below thresholds for vaccination with at least one dose by December 1, 2021, you will receive the final incentive payment based on the following rates:

- 30% Anthem members vaccinated – $100 bonus per newly vaccinated member
- 40% Anthem members vaccinated – $150 bonus per newly vaccinated member

NOTICE OF CHANGE

From 16 February 2022, Public Health Scotland (PHS) will no longer report COVID-19 cases, hospitalisations, and deaths by vaccination status on a weekly basis. PHS will continue to provide updates from the latest scientific analyses and reports on the effectiveness of COVID-19 vaccines. An explanation behind this decision can be found below.

Since July 2021, Public Health Scotland (PHS) have reported COVID-19 cases, hospitalisations, and deaths by vaccination status in the weekly COVID-19 statistical report. These data were first published to help monitor the impact of the vaccination programme on the pandemic, impact on the NHS, and to help understand where to prioritise vaccination delivery. While PHS has stated that the data in the report should not be used as a measure of vaccine effectiveness, PHS is aware of inappropriate use and misinterpretation of the data when taken in isolation without fully understanding the limitations described below.

Due to the increasing risk of misinterpretation from growing complexities as the COVID-19 pandemic enters its second year (as described below), PHS has taken the decision to no longer report COVID-19 cases, hospitalisations and deaths by vaccination status on a weekly basis. PHS is currently reviewing the content and frequency of reporting this information. PHS will continue to communicate up to date and high quality research on COVID-19 vaccines. Evidence suggests the COVID-19 vaccine is effective at reducing the risk of a severe outcome, such as hospitalisation when infected, however no vaccine is 100% effective and some COVID-19 hospitalisations and deaths may still occur, particularly in vulnerable populations. PHS, in collaboration with partners such as the EAVE II consortium, will continue supporting comprehensive scientific studies evaluating the risks and reasons for severe COVID-19 in vaccinated populations and will communicate its findings as and when appropriate.

Yeah that's why you want to hide "evidence"

NOTICE OF CHANGE: Reasons why it is inappropriate to continue publishing case rates

Recent changes in testing behaviour and policies, including the fact that asymptomatic people no longer need a COVID-19 PCR test, limits our ability to robustly identify and monitor COVID-19 cases by vaccination status. This means we cannot confidently compare recent case trends to historical data.

COVID-19 rates do not account for potential differences between populations such as behaviour towards social distancing, underlying health issues, or approaches to testing and how much they contribute to COVID-19 rates. For example, a study found that people with two doses of vaccine were more likely to test themselves for COVID-19 compared to those unvaccinated or with one dose of COVID-19 vaccine. This means that unvaccinated people may be less likely to test and report as a case resulting in lower infection rates among the unvaccinated. Comparison of case rates is therefore now inappropriate.

Yeah right everyone is tested in hospitals

The population of Scotland is relatively small compared to other countries such as England and the United States, and with a high vaccination rate, systematic underlying differences between the unvaccinated, partially vaccinated and booster populations become more evident sooner than bigger countries that may have a larger unvaccinated population. In Scotland most people are vaccinated and have received a booster, this results in a small number of people who are unvaccinated or have had one dose or two doses. Small increases in case numbers in a small population have a bigger impact on case rates than small increases in a larger population (e.g. boosted) where such differences are less noticeable due to the sheer number of people. Comparison of case rates is therefore inappropriate.

Vaccinations have not been given to the entire population at the same time with certain groups given priority before others. People are on different timelines since vaccination, dose schedules (e.g. some groups are not eligible for a booster) and vaccine types creating difficulties when making broad comparisons across the population by vaccine status. A number of people have not completed or exceeded their recommended dose schedule. This leads to reduced protection from the vaccine over time. Such differences between people impacts how we interpret the rates by vaccine status, for example the level of vaccine protection is expected to be higher in someone who had their first dose four weeks ago compared to another who had their first dose one year ago and didn't have the required second dose as per the vaccination schedule. Comparison of case rates is therefore inappropriate.

Individuals who have not completed their vaccine schedule may be more susceptible to a severe outcome and could result in higher COVID-19 case, hospitalisation and death rates in the first and second dose vaccine groups. For example, some of the older individuals who have exceeded the recommended time will have not received their next vaccine dose because of frailty or ill health. They may, therefore, be more likely to be hospitalised or die if they get COVID-19. Comparison of hospitalisation and death rates is therefore

Text from François Bonivard (1493–1570), "Chronicles of Geneva", second volume, pages 395 - 402:

"When the bubonic plague struck Geneva in 1530, everything was ready. They even opened a whole hospital for the plague victims. With doctors, paramedics and nurses. The traders contributed, the magistrate gave grants every month. The patients always gave money, and if one of them died alone, all the goods went to the hospital.

But then a disaster happened: the plague was dying out, while the subsidies depended on the number of patients. There was no question of right and wrong for the Geneva hospital staff in 1530. If the plague produces money, then the plague is good. And then the doctors got organized.

At first, they just poisoned patients to raise the mortality statistics, but they quickly realized that the statistics didn't have to be just about mortality, but about mortality from plague. So they began to cut the boils from the bodies of the dead, dry them, grind them in a mortar and give them to other patients as medicine. Then they started dusting clothes, handkerchiefs and garters. But somehow the plague continued to abate. Apparently, the dried buboes didn't work well. Doctors went into town and spread bubonic powder on door handles at night, selecting those homes where they could then profit. As an eyewitness wrote on these events, "this remained hidden for some time, but the devil is more concerned with increasing the number of sins than with hiding them."

In short, one of the doctors became so impudent and lazy that he decided not to wander the city at night, but simply threw a bundle of dust into the crowd during the day. The stench rose to the sky and one of the girls, who by a lucky chance had recently come out of that hospital, recognized what that smell was.

The doctor was tied up and placed in the good hands of competent "craftsmen." They tried to get as much information from him as possible. However, the execution lasted several days. The ingenious hypocrites were tied to poles on wagons and carried around the city. At each intersection the executioners used red-hot tongs to tear off pieces of meat. They were then taken to the public square, beheaded and quartered, and the pieces were taken to all the districts of Geneva.

The only exception was the hospital director's son, who did not take part in the trial but blurted out that he knew how to make potions and how to prepare the powder without fear of contamination. He was simply beheaded "to prevent the spread of evil".

Experts Puzzled By Why Haiti Has One of the Lowest COVID-19 Death Rates In the World Despite Administering Zero Vaccine Doses: 'We Don't Know'

The unvaccinated knew what we didn't. Some of them said too little. Most said nothing at all. A lot of blood is now on their hands.

As the world struggles to come to terms with the devastating effects of the COVID-19 pandemic, one question that continues to surface is why the unvaccinated didn't do more to warn us about the potential dangers of being injected.

While well intending citizens lined up, did the right thing, and received their COVID19 vaccinations — now seeming to do more harm than good — their unvaccinated friends stood by and let them do it. Some of them said too little. Some said nothing at all.

Even though they knew what we didn't.

Our blood is now on their hands.

Those are strong words. But the unvaccinated had access to important information about the potential side effects of vaccines. They knew about the risks of severe allergic reactions, blood clots, and other serious health complications. They knew that vaccines did not immunize us. They knew it wasn't effective, and that they can cause more harm than good.

They knew all of that, but instead of warning us, the unvaccinated chose to remain silent. They chose to look the other way and not speak out about the potential dangers of vaccines. They let millions of good folks who did the right thing (at the time) fall to death and disease, and many antivaxxers even gloated online about how their coin flip had been the right bet. The more diabolical even urged folks they disagree with to "get boosted."

It has become all too clear. The silence of the unvaccinated was a dangerous, sociopathic, and irresponsible decision that has had serious consequences for those of us who received the vaccinations.

And silence is, after all, consent.

Excess mortality hits +16%, highest 2022 value so far

Excess mortality in the EU climbed to +16% in July 2022 from +7% in both June and May. This was the highest value on record so far in 2022, amounting to around 53 000 additional deaths in July this year compared with the monthly averages for 2016-2019. This was an unusually high value for this month. The excess mortality rate was +3% in July 2020 (10 000 excess deaths) and +6% in July 2021 (21 000 excess deaths). Based on the available information, some of the mortality increase in July 2022 compared to the same month of the past two years may be due to the heatwaves that have affected parts of Europe during the reference period.

This information comes from data on excess mortality published by Eurostat today, based on a weekly deaths data collection. The article presents a handful of findings from the more detailed Statistics Explained articles on excess mortality and weekly deaths.

Excess mortality continued to vary across the EU Member States, with eight Member States recording values above the EU average. The highest rates in July 2022, more than double the EU average, were recorded in Spain (+37%) and Cyprus (+33%). Greece followed with +31%. Meanwhile, only Latvia (-0.5%) registered no excess deaths, staying below the monthly averages for 2016-2019.

Several Member States have recorded an increase in excess mortality rate in July 2022 compared to the previous month, the highest such increases occurred in

DEATH RIDDLE Mystery as Australians dying at levels not seen in 80 years – and UK might be seeing same phenomenon

Isabel Shaw

Published: 6:15 ET, Mar 7 2023 | Updated: 11:53 ET, Mar 7 2023

MORE than 174,000 deaths were registered in Australia in 2022 - 12 per cent more than was predicted.

Heart inflammation in young people could be due to behavior, expert says

There has been a higher-than-expected number of cases of a heart ailment among young people, most often males, who've recently received their second doses of the Pfizer and Moderna Covid-19 vaccines, according to the CDC.

Gottlieb said the inflammation could be due to behavior change.

"It could be the case that as young people get vaccinated, they're going out more. They're exchanging other viruses. We're seeing outbreaks of those viruses, and we know those viruses also cause pericarditis," Gottlieb said in a CBS interview. Gottlieb cited respiratory syncytial virus, enterovirus, echoviruses and coxsackie viruses.

"It's not clear that it's the vaccine or perhaps a change in behavior, but it's certainly something we should be looking closely at, because we have to properly inform patients, if in fact this is a risk," he added.

Gottlieb said he doesn't think the cases of heart inflammation change the risk-benefit balance for the Covid-19 vaccine.

- Read Deborah Cohen's previous investigation—Complications: tracking down the data on oseltamivir (BMJ 2009;339:b5387)

WHO and the pandemic flu “conspiracies”

Key scientists advising the World Health Organization on planning for an influenza pandemic had done paid work for pharmaceutical firms that stood to gain from the guidance they wrote. These conflicts of interest have never been publicly disclosed by WHO. Deborah Cohen and Philip Carter investigate

This week marks the first anniversary of the official declaration of the influenza A/H1N1 pandemic. On 11 June 2009 Dr Margaret Chan, the director general of the World Health Organization, announced to the world’s media: “I have conferred with leading influenza experts, virologists, and public health officials... I have sought guidance and advice from an Emergency Committee established for this purpose. On the basis of available evidence, and these expert assessments of the evidence, the scientific criteria for an influenza pandemic have been met... The world is now at the start of the 2009 influenza pandemic.”

It was the culmination of 10 years of pandemic preparedness planning for WHO—years of committee meetings with experts flown in from around the world and reams of draft documents offering guidance to governments. But one year on, governments that took advice from WHO are unwinding their vaccine contracts, and billions of dollars’ worth of stockpiled oseltamivir (Tamiflu) and zanamivir (Relenza)—bought from health budgets already under tight constraints—lie unused in warehouses around the world.

A joint investigation by the BMJ and the Bureau of Investigative Journalism has uncovered evidence that raises troubling questions about how WHO managed conflicts of interest among the scientists who advised its pandemic planning, and about the transparency of the science underlying its advice to governments. Was it appropriate for WHO to take advice from experts who had declarable financial and research ties with pharmaceutical companies producing antivirals and influenza vaccines? Why was key WHO guidance authored by an influenza expert who had received payment for other work from Roche, manufacturers of oseltamivir, and GlaxoSmithKline, manufacturers of zanamivir? And why does the composition of the emergency committee from which Chan sought guidance remain a secret known only to those within WHO? We are left wondering whether major public health organisations are able to effectively manage the conflicts of interest that are inherent in medical science.

Already WHO’s handling of the pandemic has led to an unprecedented number of reviews and inquiries by organisations including the Council of Europe, European Parliament, and WHO itself, following allegations of industry influence. Dr Chan has dismissed these as “conspiracies,” and earlier this year, during a speech at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in Atlanta, she said: “WHO anticipated close scrutiny of its decisions, but we did not anticipate that we would be accused, by some European politicians, of having declared a fake pandemic on the advice of experts with ties to the pharmaceutical industry and something personal to gain from increased industry profits.”

The inquiry by British MP Paul Flynn for the Council of Europe Parliamentary Assembly—published last week—was critical. It said that decision making around the A/H1N1 crisis has been lacking in transparency. It pointed to distortion of priorities of public health services, a waste of huge sums of public money, provocation of unjustified fear, and the creation of health risks through vaccines and medications which might not have been sufficiently tested before being authorised in fast-track procedures. “These results need to be critically examined by public health authorities at all levels with a view to rebuilding public confidence in their decisions,” it said.

The investigation by the BMJ/The Bureau reveals a system struggling to manage the inherent conflict between the pharmaceutical industry, WHO, and the global public health system, which all draw on the same pool of scientific experts. Our investigation has identified key scientists involved in WHO pandemic planning who had declarable interests, some of whom are or have been funded by pharmaceutical firms that stood to gain from the guidance they were drafting. Yet these interests have never been publicly disclosed by WHO and, despite repeated requests from the BMJ/The Bureau, WHO has failed to provide any details about whether such conflicts were declared by the relevant experts and what, if anything, was done about them.

WHO says: “Potential conflicts of interest are inherent in any relationship between a normative and health development agency, like WHO, and a profit-driven industry. Similar considerations apply when experts advising the Organization have professional links with pharmaceutical companies. Numerous safeguards are in place to manage possible conflicts of interest or their perception.”

But a lack of transparency over conflicts of interests—coupled with a documented changing of the definition of a pandemic and unanswered questions over the evidence base for therapeutic interventions¹—has led to the emergence of these conspiracies

Another factor that has fuelled the conspiracies is the manner in which risk has been communicated. No one disputes the difficulty of communicating an uncertain situation or the concept of risk in a pandemic situation. But one world expert in risk communication, Gerd Gigerenzer, director of the Centre for Adaptive Behaviour and Cognition at the Max Planck Institute in Germany, told the BMJ/The Bureau: “The problem is not so much that communicating uncertainty is difficult, but that uncertainty was not communicated. There was no scientific basis for the WHO’s estimate of 2 billion for likely H1N1 cases, and we knew little about the benefits and harms of the vaccination.

The investigation reveals a system struggling to manage the inherent conflict between the pharmaceutical industry, WHO, and the global public health system, which all draw on the same pool of scientific experts

The 2004 WHO pandemic guidelines advised governments to stockpile antivirals. No conflict of interest statements were published

A year ago this week, WHO's director general, Margaret Chan, declared that an influenza pandemic had broken out

Billions of dollars' worth of antivirals, such as oseltamivir and zanamivir, have been stockpiled on WHO's recommendation

Speaking at the Centers for Disease Control this year, Dr Chan dismissed allegations of industry influence on WHO as "conspiracies"

Paul Flynn MP said there had been a distortion of public health priorities and a waste of public money

The WHO maintained this 2 billion estimate even after the winter season in Australia and New Zealand showed that only about one to two out of 1000 people were infected. Last but not least it changed the very definition of a pandemic.”

WHO for years had defined pandemics as outbreaks causing “enormous numbers of deaths and illness” but in early May 2009 it removed this phrase—describing a measure of severity—from the definition.²

Routes to the Council of Europe’s criticisms can be traced back to 1999, a pivotal year in the influenza world. In April that year WHO—spurred on by the 1997 chicken flu outbreak in Hong Kong—began to organise itself for a pandemic. It drew up a key document, Influenza Pandemic Plan: The Role of WHO and Guidelines for National and Regional Planning.

WHO’s first influenza pandemic preparedness plan was stark in the scale of the risk the world faced in 1999: “It is impossible to anticipate when a pandemic might occur. Should a true influenza pandemic virus again appear that behaved as in 1918, even taking into account the advances in medicine since then, unparalleled tolls of illness and death would be expected.”

In the small print of that document it states: “R Snacken, J Wood, L R Haaheim, A P Kendal, G J Ligthart, and D Lavanchy prepared this document for the World Health Organization (WHO), in collaboration with the European Scientific Working Group on Influenza (ESWI).” What this document does not disclose is that ESWI is funded entirely by Roche and other influenza drug manufacturers. Nor does it disclose that René Snacken and Daniel Lavanchy were participating in Roche sponsored events the previous year, according to marketing material seen by the BMJ/The Bureau.

Dr Snacken was working for the Belgian ministry of public health when he wrote about studies involving neuraminidase inhibitors for a Roche promotional booklet. And Dr Lavanchy, meanwhile, was a WHO employee when he appeared at a Roche sponsored symposium in 1998. His role at that time was in the WHO Division of Viral Diseases. Dr Lavanchy has declined to comment.

In 1999 other members of the European Scientific Working Group on Influenza included Professor Karl Nicholson of Leicester University, UK, and Professor Abe Osterhaus of Erasmus University in the Netherlands. These two scientists are also identified in Roche marketing material seen by this investigation which was produced between 1998 and 2000. Professor Osterhaus told the BMJ that he had always been transparent about any work he has done with industry. Professor Nicholson similarly has consistently declared his connections with pharmaceutical companies, for example, in papers published in journals such as the BMJ and Lancet.

Both experts were also at that time engaged in a randomised controlled trial on oseltamivir supported by Roche. The trial was subsequently published in the Lancet in 2000.³ It remains one of the main studies supporting oseltamivir’s effectiveness—and one that was subsequently shown to have employed undeclared industry funded ghostwriters.¹

The influence of the European Scientific Working Group on Influenza would continue as the decade wore on and the calls for pandemic planning became more strident. Founded in 1992, this “multidisciplinary group of key opinion leaders in influenza aims to combat the impact of epidemic and pandemic influenza” and claims links to WHO, the Robert Koch Institute, and the European Centre for Disease Prevention and Control, among others.⁴ Despite the group’s claims of scientific independence its 100% industry funding does present a potential conflict of interest. One if its roles is to lobby politicians, as highlighted in a 2009 policy document.⁵

At a pre-pandemic preparation workshop of the European Scientific Working Group on Influenza in January last year, Professor Osterhaus said: “I can tell you that ESWI is working on that idea [that is, convincing politicians] quite intensively. We have contact with MEPs [members of the European Parliament] and with national politicians. But it is they who have to decide at the end of the day, and they will only act at the request of their constituencies. If the latter are not prompted, nothing will happen.”

The group’s policy plan for 2006–10 specifically stated that government representatives needed to “take measures to encourage the pharmaceutical industry to plan its vaccine/antivirals production capacity in advance” and also to “encourage and support research and development of pandemic vaccine” and to “develop a policy for antiviral stockpiling.” It also added that government representatives needed to know that “influenza vaccination and use of antivirals is beneficial and safe.” It said that the group provided “evidence based, palatable information”; and also “networking/exchange with other stakeholders (eg, with industry in order to establish pandemic vaccine and antivirals contracts).” In the meantime, in Roche’s own marketing plan, one goal was to “align Roche with credible third party advocates”. They “leveraged these relationships by enlisting our third-party partners to serve as spokespeople and increase awareness of Tamiflu and its benefits.”⁶

Barbara Mintzes, assistant professor in the Department of Pharmacology and Therapeutics at the University of British Columbia, is currently part of a group working with Health Action International and WHO developing curricula for medical and pharmaceutical students on drug promotion and interactions with the industry, including conflicts of interest. She thinks that caution is advised when working with medical bodies of this sort.

“It is legitimate for WHO to work with industry at times. But I would have concerns about involvement with a group that looks like it is for independent academics that is actually mainly industry funded,” she said, adding: “The Institute of Medicine has raised concerns about the need to have a firewall with medical groups. To me this does not sound like an independent group, as it is mainly funded by manufacturers.”

Occupy wall street was broken up by hedge fund managers giving shitloads of money to divide and conquer identity politics movements. They bought the media and started pushing the narrative everywhere. Feminism became about making men hate women. LGBT became about making gays painfully visible and televising their most disgusting examples of degeneracy. BLM as a movement was made to increase racial tensions.

You have no idea how incredibly fucked we are.

>The narrative is simply going to shift to blaming covid and the government response for the coming economic collapse which started in september of 2019 to protect the bankers from a new, more effective/violent occupy wall street. The central banks of the world have completely crashed the global economy, they needed a scapegoat. This is about to be the biggest wealth transfer in history. This is 21 years of economic sins. 2001 Greenspan drops the FED prime rate in response to the DOTCOM bubble bursting, creating the housing bubble. 2007, the housing bubble busts, the FED drops the interest rate to ~0% and buys $4.5 trillion dollars in toxic assets. The rate stays near zero for the next 14 years. Despite a near zero interest rate in september of 2019 the FED issues $4.5 trillion in liquidity loans to the same banks that needed bailouts in 2008. 2020 starting in march the FED starts QE4 which buys up $2 trillion more in toxic assets. They are printing money to keep the banks and incredible amounts of debt from completely collapsing the global economy.

>This is what the great reset is, it's a way for the private owners of the global central banking industry to remain in power despite their complete destruction of the global financial system through greed and mismanagement. Any other take on this whole situation is a distraction.

I think people in our community often get a distorted sense of public perception. We talk on boards with like minded people, comment on the same youtube videos and read the same type of articles and policy papers. So, we see a lot of people talking about the same topics, and it's easy to project that onto the entire population. I'm not saying that there aren't more people becoming aware of these topics because there certainly are. But the general population is not aware of the Great Reset or if they are, they think it's a good thing and any criticism of it is a conspiracy theory. The Great Reset idea is nothing new. It used to be known under the United Nations' Agenda 21/Agenda 2030 projects. Those projects still exist, but this world transformation has been rebranded using a pandemic as the main thrust for world government instead of climate change. Of course, you see how quickly they used this pandemic idea to claim that they needed to entirely restructure society in every area and snuck the climate change agenda back into the discussion. Anyway, I think there's a lot of people that think ending private property ownership is a good thing. They don't understand the history of capitalists and bankers creating and funding communist and socialist movements like the Fabian Society or the Bolshevik Revolution. They see every problem as the product of capitalism, and by extension private property ownership, rather than merger of corporations, think tanks, foundations and NGOs with governmental power. They don't understand that what they're seeing is a complete monopolization and centralization of all economic and political power. They simply see this as a way to take wealth away from Elon Musk and Jeff Bezos. Meanwhile, they love billionaires like Bill Gates because of all his "charitable" philanthropic endeavors. There is a small amount of people that are waking up more than ever, but those who are asleep are more brainwashed than they've ever been too.

>I think we should be careful with language that blames it on a generation or country

this is still aging well:

Covid19 and the boomers are the perfect storm for the international, central bank-funded elitists:

- >an invisible, faceless enemy to sow fear, guilt and division
- >isolate entire populations and stop commerce at will
- >slow political networking and community activities
- >regulate and diminish religious activities
- >endless money creation by the central bank masks yet another bailout of the insolvent financial sector and the failing companies it chooses to sustain
- >kill any competition by small business
- >reconfigure market supply chains and contracts in their favor
- >trial run for future national lockdowns and compliance
- >the metered approach to containing Covid19 is only now prolonging the population's exposure and providing a longer opportunity to mutate, possibly creating more contagious strains
- >provides an opportunity to introduce a global digital currency, when everyone is desperate
- >buying asset after asset at rock bottom prices
- >label non-compliant persons a hazard to others
- >Coronaviruses have two infectious peaks each year (early summer and late fall), providing biannual opportunities for incremental increases to impose more restrictive lockdowns

Add to this, the naive, terrified boomer generation (which also happens to be in charge of all finance, politics, education, military operations, etc.) who are, unwittingly or not, right now aiding and abetting the further destabilization and fleecing of America

(CBS 5) BERKELEY A Berkeley watchdog organization that tracks military spending said it uncovered a strange U.S. military proposal to create a hormone bomb that could purportedly turn enemy soldiers into homosexuals and make them more interested in sex than fighting.

Pentagon officials on Friday confirmed to CBS 5 that military leaders had considered, and then subsequently rejected, building the so-called "Gay Bomb."

Edward Hammond, of Berkeley's Sunshine Project, had used the Freedom of Information Act to obtain a copy of the proposal from the Air Force's Wright Laboratory in Dayton, Ohio.

As part of a military effort to develop non-lethal weapons, the proposal suggested, "One distasteful but completely non-lethal example would be strong aphrodisiacs, especially if the chemical also caused homosexual behavior."

The documents show the Air Force lab asked for $7.5 million to develop such a chemical weapon.

"The Ohio Air Force lab proposed that a bomb be developed that contained a chemical that would cause enemy soldiers to become gay, and to have their units break down because all their soldiers became irresistably attractive to one another," Hammond said after reviewing the documents.

"The notion was that a chemical that would probably be pleasant in the human body in low quantities could be identified, and by virtue of either breathing or having their skin exposed to this chemical, the notion was that soldiers would become gay," explained Hammond.

The Pentagon told CBS 5 that the proposal was made by the Air Force in 1994.

Homokaasu
From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Homokaasu (Finnish name, literally gay-gas) is a fictitious poisonous chemical substance, that is supposedly an odorless and invisible gas at room temperature. It is a Finnish urban legend, and is often the subject of running gags on Finnish Usenet newsgroups.

Israel Chief Rabbi Amar condemned for 'gay death penalty' comment

Rabbi Amar said homosexuals should resist their "lusts"

Israeli political and community leaders have called for a top Jerusalem rabbi to be fired after he said Jewish law prescribed the death penalty for gays.

Sephardi Chief Rabbi Shlomo Amar told Israel Hayom newspaper homosexuality was a "cult of abomination", which the Torah "punishes... with death".

to be approximately 11:1. This suggests that the resulting proportion of true pedophiles among persons with a homosexual erotic development is greater than that in persons who develop heterosexually. This, of course, would not indicate that androphilic males have a greater propensity to offend against children.

Remember when monkeypox was a thing and then it turned out it was mostly present in gay people leading people to realize it was pretty much a sexually transmitted disease getting spread at gay orgies which are way more common than people ever knew and then dogs and children in close proximity to gay people started to get monkey pox somehow, nobody knows how they got it, and then monkeypox suddenly left the news as quickly as it arrived? Crazy, huh?

Homosexuality is the ultimate solipsism. Sexuality was given us not just for pleasure as an end in itself. Instead, the pleasure serves a purpose, as a way to bond with a woman so you can have a fruitful and long-lasting partnership with her as a foundation for raising offspring. Yes, men and women are too different to be able to bond easily without sexuality. They are not supposed to do so. Sexuality is purpose-built for male-female bonding, while women among themselves and men among themselves have plenty of things in common and do not need sexuality to become friends or partners.

Healthy men have an instinctive disgust for male homosexuality. If you do not have this disgust it's because you are damaged, either by genetic illness or by childhood trauma.

All men are "closet homosexuals" only in the way that all men are "closet cripples", i.e. you can make them into cripples by hacking off some limbs. The possibility of doing that does not prove it would be an improvement.

File: THE LIST - TAKE EM DOWN BOYS.jpg (66 KB, 960x948)

None of you have any idea how deep it goes. I will tell you something else. And Q team if you are watching: you want to know how the left always has money at their disposal to do whatever? It's not just Soros. There is a much bigger less temperamental more reliable source that doesn't insert HIMSELF in it each time. And what is that [SOURCE]?

It comes to large extent from inflated A-list actor/actress salaries on feature films here. I know. I'm a director. Start asking questions.

Question A: What are typical star salaries for the actors on THE LIST? (Pic related)

Question B: Why are their salaries so high? THAT high?

Question C: Why do they all share the same BUSINESS MANAGERS?

Question D: What does a BUSINESS MANAGER do? Where are THE BOOKS?

Question F: UPWARDS to WHOM?

Question G: How many hands are in this pot?

Question [Q]: What would DOJ, IRS, do with this information? Possibly AUDIT HOLLYWOOD? Shut many big OPERATIONS down?

Q, I'm sorry I doubted you. But you know who I am. I am the one who broke THE LIST.
Right here on /pol/. Continue the work.

Another thing all Qanons should know is the Getty Images paparazzi photos of people at parties with Epstein, Maxwell Smart and her like are not the implied relationships you want. The real power brokers pulling the scenes, shifting the units [children] and cooking the money are the ones NEVER photographed with these people. You don't get that high on the chain by being out in the open photographed right next to your dealer.

Take a good look at that list again.

Yes, Virginia: literally almost every famous name you've ever read, seen or heard since about 1990 is a member of the red shoes club. This is why film, music and fashion have been stuck in amber not moving forward since these people arrived. Person X
(Public faces)(Funders)(Facilitators)

Person X is a corny old man and his family, and a few of their relatives. Right underneath him are PFs, Funds and Facs. PFs: Obama, Guaido, Cortez, Jacinta, Khan, others. ALL these people are related. Not exactly normally but by cloning because they prefer trans to real people. These people literally think they are super beings anointed to usher in a new age. Other PFs include Oprah, Marina, Hanx, Spacey, so on. This will get long. More info coming if the thread survives.

The public faces serve three purposes, keep the public hoodwinked and under the spell Left Is Always Right No Matter What and Here's Who To Hate; draw wealthy star-chasers so they can be milked, and recruit youth and young candy (I'm sure you know what that is). Chicken. These faces constantly give speeches, fly around the world, serve as the public face of many parties, galas, United Nations [operations] and ['non] profits. They are presented as heroes so no one will suspect. ALL of them are deep into the cult. And like I said, many of them were almost literally raised in jars and are related in that Jar kind of way.

Funders are further behind the scenes doing the real hand shaking and back slapper talks that engineer raw real money into the operation. Nancy Pelosi is in hip deep with these people. They speak many languages, hop on and off yachts and broker deals. Wexner is among these. Epstein was among them too. Ari and Rahm are also on this level as is Kamala. There are far deeper and far worse. Soros is an entire engine, almost a machine serving this. Many CAA and other agents got their public agency positions by actually behind the scenes doing this.

Facilitators assist the smooth operation of the main events, which are primarily

>Keep the kids moving
>Keep the blood moving
>Keep the cash moving
>Keep the three flowing
>Keep these events secret

>Keep the public asleep so the three continue flowing because if public wakes, it cuts off
Many facilitators get seen at parties and [Getty] knows just who they are. Ghislaine is a facilitator. Oprah Winfrey is a facilitator. There are upper facs and mid and lower facs. Oprah was mid. This was up top and top layer is almost 100% kosher. Lower facs include ppl like most of the blondes Randy Andy is photoed partying with. All are interconnected, all know each other. Degeneres was hoping to ascend to lower and mid fac because she got hot and bothered seeing all the girls. It's deep. Lots of faces and names.

I think you've answered a great deal of your own very good questions very well here. Jim Dixon would be a manager to put Eyes On. Lots of smoke concealing serious fires. Like for instance how many DUIs Jon Stewart's wife has skated smoothly away from doing any time for despite how serious the incidents were. She was looking at time. She always is. Yet she's always scott free. So is he. Look at Dixon and Comedy Central. Start digging.

Red shoes only. But this made the good writers depart town. That's why there are so many remakes and cape movies have become nothing but political lectures. Lecturing is all propaganda knows how to do. When you alienate the writers they walk out and the writers to best of my observation did or were forced out, years ago. Biggest exodus was 1998-1999.

No aliens are involved. This is man. All of it human but a misuse of science. This coincides with the rise of transgenderism in medicine and the two movements are sibling for shared and similar purpose. They were stem cell children of a specific man the heads of the regime revere. All are in place like kind of neo-Hapsburgs and we may be witnessing the takedown, if the Q phenomenon is right, and after the Maxwell takedown, now I think it is. I had my doubts but now I'm sure.

Rothschild. But the spear head of what happened specifically to Hollywood and America is not him, he's more concerned with Europe and operating through the EU. The American operation was a certain Indo leader and his underlings, who included top names among Socialist and Communist hoi polloi living in South and Central American countries. These ppl were and are Marxist fanatics and tried same operation in Brazil where it worked for awhile in the Sixties but got put down by the Fascists, a lesson they didn't forget. The game in America is rigged to prevent Fascism from arising to stop it this time which is why everyone to right of Kennedy gets silenced. They don't want a second Brazil Failure. Rothschild just wants America subverted and destroyed so he can fully control all banking and sex throughout the world. America stands in the way of this though badly damaged. The idea is if you are a CEO who can help him and these people [his allies] accomplish this, you get to run as you like and get a piece of the pie. The end goal is corporate feudalism. This is being sold to Millennials and Zoomers by my industry and the MSM under its fake name: >"Socialism".

1. I hope not.
2. It's not stagnation, it's natural the way God designed us. Further tampering leads to trans and other monstrosities and debacles of nature. The "people" ruling you. Do you really want this? Who are you then?
3. "Tell me about Tom Hanks" ffs read the archives or go anywhere online, it's all there, and Apparently you'll hit a ceiling of fame / popularity / success to where you can't go further. Somehow they'll blackmail you to use you as a pawn or include you into the pedo whatever illegal shit, also blackmail btw. Once you're controllable, then you can go further in your career and become even more wealthy and powerful because you're part of the team or controlled by those with even more power and influence.

It's very simple concept. That's why Epstein was killed. To keep this quiet. Maxwell and Epstein were a blackmail ring. Epstein just made his pedo stuff too obvious so he was no longer useful.

It is true that the "business managers" such as Sunshine Sachs use their client list to force them to support something. Such as Meghan Markle, a NXIVM, EPstein, too much to write yacht whore that blackmailed the BFR and intended to use racism to stop Brexit. It soon became a game to see who spoke out and lied for her to support her story.

>Ellen >Hillary
>Tutu

All you need to do is check who their "agent" or PR group is and you have automatically solved the problem. IE Ellen claimed to have held & fed archifcial & admired his "tufts of red hair". Only she was no where near the UK when she claimed it. Hillary did the same thing & was rewarded with a Uni "position". Hillary's Sara Latham was the PR for Markle. She "had the non existent baby" at a Clinton-backed hospital. ANY live baby you've ever seen that moves? ALL done in presence of other people with PR firm connections, IE Tutu. The live child is actually one of a set of twins, HER name is Lila Verassi. She is the daughter of one of the ex suitcase girls and a Turkish dude. They are Turkish reality stars. Markle fucked over the entire firm by pretending a pregnancy & they didn't find out until it was too late. I don't want to write everything (again) most of the sauce is on a blog called Harry Markle. Including the proof that the "christening photo" & the "hello world photo shoot using Darren the reborn baby doll" were taken on the same day, lots of photoshopping is involved.

I got interested because I saw a photo of her and saw she was not pregnant. That made me curious so I started to dig on her. I found she is linked to so many of the vile crooks in this it is impossible for it not to have been a plot. She faked an entire pregnancy in front of the world. There is literally no baby & IF there is a child she had planned a surrogate using her frozen eggs & someone else's sperm (maybe Marcus Anderson) & the surrogate has been persuaded to keep the baby.

This, complete truth, /thread

Mixed race transfolk and gays are their Übermenschen, their planned Supermen. Note how many gay mulattos are everywhere and in power now and how this spiked under Obama. Also note how quickly MM and the Prince announced they would be quite happy with a transgender Princelet. He is also mulatto. There are so many of them. Jussie, Harvard Karen provoker, NASCAR noose, so many. It's like Obama has them on speed dial or in a Weiner folder or laptop. His side deploys them at will like endless pawns. So many. MM was never pregnant. The child is an "appearer" out of "nowhere" and likely has both male transgender parents like most of the others do, including Boriquena Horseface. Obama and Mike are not Malia's parents and AOC's parents are not hers. The truth of all this would make you collapse in your room.

Yes, you can boycott us, but researching names is sufficient. Just research the names of all the producers, research the director and writers, and research the actor names. Pay close attention to the "the producers would like to thank" list. Do simple homework. Send us a message: if the film contains egregious degeneracy for no story reason, contains a top-heavy amount of L&GBT themes for no story reason, exhibits underage people with scanty or no clothing, depicts them with or under sexual themes, demeans men, props women up in an unnatural, pandering and kind of Communofeminist way, subverts American heritage values, depicts Marxism proudly or positively, or any of that other shit, don't buy a ticket. Don't stream it. Don't see it. This sends a message and creates change without destroying an industry I and people like me see as art and only wanted to make.

Don't boycott. Goycott :)

Film producer Steve Bing wrote notes to his 18-year-old son, Damian Hurley, and 21-year-old daughter, Kira Kerkorian Bing, before dying by suicide, said "Extra" reporter Billy Bush, according to the Daily Mirror.

Hurley is the offspring of Bing and model-actress Elizabeth Hurley; Kerkorian Bing is the product of Bing's relationship with former tennis pro Lisa Bonder.

"I'd like to thank you all again for your overwhelming kindness over the past few days," wrote Damian Hurley Saturday in an Instagram post. "Your love and support has helped me greatly during this challenging time." KEEP READING. MORE COMING.

The two letters were reportedly passed on by the Los Angeles Police Department, reported Yahoo! News.

Shockingly, the 55-year-old financier never met his son and only encountered his daughter only after she became an adult, reported The Hollywood Reporter.

Bing reportedly had been struggling with depression and the societal effects of the COVID-19 outbreak in recent months.

"I have friends that were friends with him," said Bush, who has recently returned to TV after having been ostracized for his role in Donald Trump's "Grab them by the p---- scandal. "Steve had depression with a capital 'D.'" MORE COMING.

The TV personality added that the coronavirus pandemic also had been weighing heavily on Bing.

"The whole coronavirus thing was definitely a factor. It really messed with him," explained Bush. "Another source told me he was very depressed. Close friends are shocked at his death. Sources told 'Extra' he suffered from bipolar disorder."

Bing was also a friend of Bill Clinton and reportedly paid him a $2.5 million annual salary to serve in an advisory post at his eco-friendly construction business, noted the Reporter.

Coroner: Steve Bing died from multiple blunt trauma by suicide »
As a young adult, Bing sought bonds with A-list celebrities, including actors Warren Beatty and James Caan and movie producer Jerry Bruckheimer, noted "Die Hard" producer Lawrence Gordon.

"Steve was truly a man for all seasons," recalled Gordon, who also backed "Watchmen." "His friends ranged from the White House to the poorhouse. I never met anyone who didn't like him."

The 55-year-old businessman and philanthropist leaped to his death from his luxe 27th-floor apartment in Century City, Calif., on June 22. The coroner ruled the cause of death multiple blunt trauma.

on the other thread is 100% correct. We were discussing the role of the photographer at events, whether at private homes or public functions. I noted that while Les Wexner's name is all over the place and accused of rape (LOL his dick never got close to a vagina in his life) I was amazed to find that not even once, have other much bigger names associated with Wexner ever mentioned. SO-I decided to try to do a search on it. The results were--weird af. One search with both the full first and last names of Les Wexner and the other I was curious about being linked to him presented only foreign language hits. WTAF?

I tried it many different ways knowing that there was literally zero way that Les Wexner and this other family didn't know and associate with each other, they did. BUT damn if there isn't a single article, a single ANYTHING public anymore that I could find that links them no matter how I searched. Here's my efforts.

1. Wexner*last name of other party

ONLY results were nothing.

2. Last name of other party, lots of results

3. Wexner* first and last name of other party

Only results to other party

3. Les Wexner* last name of other party only returned results for last name of other party.

4. Les Wexner* first and last name of other party returned results in French, German, and Dutch that were irrelevant to the search.

There is no way these two didn't know each other. If you think Wexner had power, that is NOTHING compared to the other. I'm being careful for a reason. If you search historically wealthy and powerful families in OHIO, you might find their name. Generational, Jews, & money out the ass. If you find that last name (L) then please, try to find any links. I could not & there should have been. This family was very benevolent with their charities, so much so that the patriarch was nicknamed UNCLE.

That OP is right, it is NOT the people photographed at social events so much as it is the people NEVER mentioned or photographed.

Look for the teddy bear and then go from there. Jackman I don't know but the unusually unesthetic choice of wife is usually a poker tell. These are sometimes called cows, other times allies. They help to herd and bring in the children, usually girls. I am not saying Jackman or his wife are doing this. I am saying instead the couple's stark physical contrast, in Hollywood, usually is a clue. But PS definitely has dodgy photos.

Go Berzerk. I don't exactly know why you seem surprised that he'd be Eminem's handler. He co-founded Def Jam and was part of Israel's plan to corrupt America's youth. They were already corrupting black youth with rap music but it never got big among whites until Slim Shady showed up.

Eminem was produced by Dr. Dre, known homosexual. Dr. Dre was produced by Jerry Heller, another Jew. Heller was designated to corrupt the Black youth with rap music starting with NWA. Lyor Cohen was prominent in all of this.

It all ties to Geffen btw.

He got fucked in the ass hardcore and is in DEEP with the occult. I'd wager he's possessed by a demon. He's also intimately involved with the Rothschilds, which I'll be certain, I don't know if these people are actually human or not. Maybe I'm losing my mind but Ickle is making more and more sense.

Geffen dictates a lot of what gets made in the music industry. He's the Sumner Redstone of music.

Wouldn't surprise me. He's intimately involved with massive pedos like Spielberg too. Hopefully director anon has better info.

Raging faggot who is somehow still in the closet. He fucked Eminem in the ass for fame and had sex with a good number of his ghostwriters. I remember even Tupac said some shit about it before he was Machiavelli'd

Possibly the most evil and most powerful individual Hollywood has ever known. Hardcore gay, hates women unless they denounce their femininity and become pozzed gay idols, basically drag queens with pussies, addicted to boys, courts twinks, brutal to them physically if they resist, will destroy any career if it suits him, 110 in a box, in a basket. Whenever I feel sorry for Them, I bring to mind HIM. This man is categorical, existential evil. Spacey thinks Spacey is on this level. He is not. This level can and likely will have Spacey murdered shortly to wipe the trail, and will get away with it. Extra bonus points, can you name his mostly asexual but also gay lawyer analog? Same tribe?

>What do you know about the spiritual/extradimension/extraterrestrial/metaphysical aspect of this?

They sacrifice children to demons for temporal power, then drink their blood/eat their flesh to harvest the DMT-like adrenochrome. This both gets them high and allows them direct access for channeling demons, as it triggers the negative kundalini serpent.

There are two serpents at the base of the spine, one leads towards enlightenment (djedi) and one towards death (seth). They are harnessing and invoking the Seth with these rituals.

Obviously I do not recommend what they do. There is a great karmic balance to pay for harming advanced sentient lifeforms. They think they can offset this karmic balance through revealing their plans in symbolism, which I believe to be another way they were tricked by the Devil.

Did you ever read (not watch) The Omen, written by David Seltzer? Well, DS is somewhat "in". Read the paperback sometime. The part about Damien, the future antichrist, mothered by a jackal in the wilderness and fathered by Satan. The boy was carried to term by a jackal, birthed in Rome, then swapped out with the actual human child of the Ambassador to the Court of St. James in Rome, Richard Thorn. The Thorns wound up raising a changeling, not knowing it was Satan's genetic project, a black mass parody on the Anunciatio.

There is a lot of truth in that paperback. Some people appear to have taken the original idea as an operating manual, or Seltzer knew exactly what he was saying and possibly witnessed it. Sounds crazy, doesn't it? Not as crazy as actually doing it. Obama's mom gave herself to everybody. She was the village bicycle. They left the successful egg up to chance as an invocation for evil to accomplish and father it.

Sick stuff, and probably not bullshit, but I believe it.

Now think for some moments and imagine what if you were a part of this Indonesian Muslim Marxist Satanist largely gay and trans group and you were out to create a (literal) black parody of the birth of Jesus? What if you actually liked the Devil? Well, in supreme hate for God, you would probably arrange then watch a very private ceremony where Grand Indomulatto Leader faps to orgasm while ppl like Marina and gang are present, probably nude and on a pentagram, et cetera, all that corny stuff. Then jackal mother would be brought in, likely dressed as Mary but in a profane way. Hm, this brings to mind a later creation of theirs, Madonna. Spread legged before him, several male acolytes and women too probably perform obscene acts upon her, then his coom gets inserted in or he does her himself, in front of all the witnesses, and this way noone can or will guess who exactly was the father, implies that your hero Satan is, and however he looks is how Satan decided he will turn out - and probably also direct to which country the child will be sent and to which prep school (which both Damien and Obama did), in a pristine wealthy setting, to ascend to power while being mentored in all things Marxist, Muslim, Satanic, gay, trans and wonderful. It all sounds weird but it is weird. Eat The Pain? Spirit Cooking? What the hell?! That's OK but what I'M quoting that book saying is weird?

Of note: Elizabeth Hurley, whose ex Steve Bing, massive pedophile and funder/facilitator to their cult, just committed suicide upon the capture of Ghislaine, just happens to have named their son, whom he fathered under mysterious circumstances but he never even once met.....

DAMIEN.

Hello, Hollywood insider. I want to ask you:

Why does Hollywood have so fucking desperate idea crisis? Sequels, prequels, remakes, cape shit. All the same. You have access to all drugs, known to modern science. You have ridiculous amount of money. Why can't you figure out fresh and cool ideas for films?

Why can't you stage second apocalypse by R.Bakker, for example? Or blindsight?

Anonymous (ID: zWPYbkdI) 07/05/20(Sun)19:04:11 No.266542017 ► >>266543364 >>266543551 >>266544121 >>266545526 >>266554258 >>266562967

I mentioned why in a previous thread but it goes without saying, Rusanon: Hollywood and music have been taken over fully by gays, lesbians, transgender persons and pedophiles. There are a lot of redundancies among what I just listed. These are the biggest names in entertainment now. But the thing is, none have any creativity or any ideas. The only things they have are their shared connections, a strong perverted desire for weird forms of sex, an addiction to adrenochrome and related drugs, a Democrat vote, and money. When these ppl took over our industry, they confronted all the ppl already here and gave us an ultimatum: join in the drug and child sex festivities of "you will never work in this town again". The town fractured. 10 percent left. 30 percent stuck around them either suicided, were suicided, or left. 60 percent stayed and either aged and died out, or suicided or were suicided, or are still there.

When your only ideas are fuck, snort, sip blood, rape, party and rinse repeat, story gets lost in the mix. Nobody who knows a good story, or how to make a film, or how to record a decent album, exists anywhere in town any longer. It's all the Party People now. To stay alive and afloat, first they just plagiarized ppl. This gave you your first cape movies and such but it ran out. The good people fled with their scripts and ideas. This left the town with three things to put in their films and songs:

>Party
>Fuck
>Propaganda

You will notice all raps, songs and films are nothing now but these things or a combination. Good is where imagination comes from. Evil only knows what it has always done. Good fled away when these ppl took over. The fresh ideas fled with them. All that is propping it all up now are Obama speeches, Biden snoring, the screams of children, lame dresses, Marina posing, and blood. That's it. That's all. You cannot make a picture on that.

That's why, Virginia.

Ok I read all 4 threads and I'm psyched to see this still rolling. I'm a music man myself, grinding on my own craft with no intention of touching the business as is, 25 y/o. The music I listen to is all late 60s-mid 70s, plus some stragglers like 80s Peter Gabriel, 90s Oasis, 2000s/2010s nobody bands. From my research, the bands I listen to all released their best work at like age 27-30 or so. Ian Anderson did Thick as Brick at 23 tho which pisses me off.

I have an "it's all in the timing" perspective, and when Trump was elected I felt we had a shot at cleaning up the cultural mess we're in. Music is giant for culture, and I'm also under the impression that there will be a sort of golden era starting in around 2022/23. I sure as hell will do my part, I'll keep working on my craft till I'm dried up. I also have a feeling that rock/musicianship will make a comeback. I chalk that up to band recordings consisting of pure human energy, the combined force of 4-5 brilliant human minds physically manipulating air to their will. Electronic production is generally 1 mind, digitally moving air. It's less powerful. The human energy element must make a comeback.

Structurally, if the industry gets cleaned up, how will talent and art spread in the future? All I've been alive to witness is Jews and Satanists handpicking trash and artificially propping it up. What will organic success look like?

I'm not close enough in to speak intelligently about that machinery, anon. It will all be brought to light, though. All I know is the money comes through inflated liberal celeb salaries then they all kick it upwards through donations (small) and 501(c)3 and dinner party donations (huge) to the Cause. Look at BLM funding and you have the paper or graphic version of the same picture. Lady Gaga who ran with R. Kelly and Terry Richardson, both pedophiles, formed a foundation straight out of the box, and targeting children. Born This Way Fdn. It even had its own bus. They all do. Why is that? You know why.

All I know is she's related to them, she's part of them, she was bred, trained and installed to make NZ comfy for them and their needs, and she is not a nice person. To be honest once things swing back to normal Kiwis should drag her behind a shed. Only those Kiwis should emerge afterward.

Look carefully at what Sadiq Khan, another relative, though distant, has done to your mother country, the home of your colonies. Jacinta was placed in NZ to do the same over time to you. AOC has been bred to do the same to the US via Biden. Another anon here says AOC will be made Biden's VP. I share this conviction. The idea is to make mentally weak Biden, whom noone likes, POTUS, with AOC installed as VP and trojan horse. Once Biden dies, completely unassisted of course, with no fatal injection or other poison or heart attack gun involved, 100% naturally, guess who assumes the White House. Then she will do to the US what Sadiq Khan did to London, and Jacinta is doing to NZ. It's all planned. And they are all relatives. They are their own royal family.

There are no other cults in Hollywood, when in fact Hollywood is nothing more than a culmination of

In 2003, Crispin Glover published an incendiary essay titled "What Is It?"

This essay implies Steven Spielberg is a pedophile and Jewish supremacist, among other things.

This essay is nearly impossible to find now, but I have preserved it in its entirety - see below ↓

Is this culture content? Is it happy? Are the smiles broadcast by this culture's media the smiles that reflect the collective mind? Does the self-professed compassion of the media for the unfortunate seem sincere?

Is this culture a Judeo-Christian culture? Is forgiveness a quality of Christian ethos? Didn't Eric Harris and Dylan Klebold of Columbine high school pose with a caption that stated, "Stay alive, stay different, stay crazy"? Didn't they target Christians? Weren't they accused of being "Nazis"? Wasn't one of them Jewish? Wasn't one of them an honor student? If these fellows were staying "crazy" and staying "different," and thinking on their own, were they perhaps manifesting a counter-cultural ideal?

Alexander August 🌟🌴 ✓ @NovemXI

What else in this culture were the Columbine killers attacking? Aren't "jocks," whom they killed, generally considered common "good guys" by our culture? Don't jocks represent pro-cultural values? Do those who hold values that counter the culture see jocks as boorish, vapid, brute, conceited and condescending, who willfully insult and violate those who refuse to gang with the masses?

Were Harris and Klebold reacting to the media itself? Did they give their own lives and take others to make a point about the media at large? Can it be true that the media-at-large is so neurotic that it is unable to truthfully describe the Columbine event? Is it true that a videotape they produced just before the killings is now being withheld so the public can not determine their own thoughts about Harris' and Klebold's statements?

Jul 13

In Civilization and Its Discontents, did Sigmund Freud define a neurotic as an individual holding thoughts that clash with those held by the prevailing culture, an individual who subverts those clashing thoughts to the subconscious that later manifest in the form of anxiety and unnecessary behavior? If this is so, what does one consider a culture whose prevailing ideas express hypocrisy, sham and double-standard? Does this somehow define a neurotic culture?

Does Steven Spielberg hold the same values I wish upon myself? Does the mind of this grinning, bespectacled, baseball-capped man entirely reflect this culture?

Is it true that in his waning years, Orson Welles asked Steven Spielberg for a small amount of money with which he could make a final film? Is it true Steven Spielberg refused? Is it true that Steven Spielberg bought a sled used in Citizen Kane for an extremely large sum of money?

Do Steven Spielberg's passions burn? Do passions burn in the man now imprisoned who wished to anally rape Steven Spielberg? Do our cultural mouthpieces confidently inform us that the wish to anally rape Steven Spielberg is a bad thought? Could anal rape of Steven Spielberg be simply the manifestation of a cultural mandate?

Do you believe Steven Spielberg is an ideal guide and influence for our culture? Do Steven Spielberg's films question our culture? What do Steven Spielberg's films question? Does Steven Spielberg focus much of his fantasy life on young people? Did he portray children wallowing in sewers filled with fecal matter in Schindler's List? Did he use children to finger paint an adult in Hook? Does he collect the illustrations of Norman Rockwell, such as the one showing a young boy in his underwear examined by a doctor? Are the inclinations of Steven Spielberg above suspicion by the media-fed culture? Was Steven Spielberg very friendly with Michael Jackson? Wasn't Michael Jackson supposed to play Peter Pan in Steven Spielberg's version of the story? Now that Michael Jackson is no longer held in favor by the mass media, does Spielberg associate with him? Do Michael Jackson and Steven Spielberg share similar opinions about the sexuality of young boys?

Jul 13

Did Joseph Goebbels popularize certain ideals to the mass culture? Does Steven Spielberg attempt to do the same thing? Is celebrity more special than actual truth in art?

When you join in a conversation with strangers, do you openly discuss any idea whatsoever without fear of conflict? Or do you restrain yourself from discussing certain things for fear of offending people and then becoming an outcast? Are there laws that deem certain forms of thought as bad and wrong? Is what is now termed "hate" a form of thought?

Does our culture consider it acceptable to have a minstrel represent a black person on film? Does our culture consider it acceptable to have a person of average intelligence represent a retarded person on film? Why is one thing questionable, and one thing acceptable? Did Adolf Hitler entertain any good thoughts? Was Shirley Temple sexy as a young girl?

What if you wish to express these ideas? Can people sue you for expressing ideas, particularly if they're blamed for inspiring behavior considered antithetical to cultural norms?

Would the cultural mainstream ever silence or suppress Steven Spielberg? Has the United States government given the immensely wealthy Steven Spielberg millions of dollars to fund a media project that reflects his religious heritage, and his cultural beliefs? Does The Talmud speak of the superiority of the Jews and the inferiority of other cultures and beliefs? Does Steven Spielberg reflect this religious imperative? Is Steve Spielberg neurotic? Is this belief hidden and suppressed?

If one discovers that everything one has been taught to be good is actually false, what then? At what point is one neurotic?

Did Vincent Van Gogh, Diane Arbus and Rainer Werner Fassbinder die for the sins of their culture? Did Joseph Goebbels?

Are we fed massive cultural propaganda? Are we infused with the belief that we act as we wish and do what we want? Are we not simply believing what cultural propaganda suggests us to think?

Do you like MTV? Do you like Steven Spielberg? Do you like post-punk rock? Do you like trip hop? Do you like rap? Do you define yourself according to the music you listen to? Do you consider yourself a true lover of music because you are in a rock band, or because your boyfriend is in a rock band? Do you like tattoos? Do you like body piercing? Do you believe that love, kindness, compassion, recycling and equality will save this culture from all its woes? Do you? Do you?

Is it considered “career suicide” to question Steven Spielberg if one is involved in the entertainment business? If one is not involved in the entertainment business is it considered a social suicide to question Steven Spielberg? If these things are so, what does that point to? Does this mean freedom of expression is actually curtailed in our culture by certain social pressures? Is calling someone a “fascist” in American culture today the counterpart to saying someone was a “communist” during the Joseph McCarthy era of the 1950s?

Does our culture congratulate itself for taking interest in the lack of original ideas personified by the name of Steven Spielberg? Do his films take chances or take risks in order to amplify, change or challenge the cultural though process? Does Steven Spielberg take risks, or does he simulate the idea of taking risks? What risk was involved in making Saving Private Ryan or Schindler’s List, or adopting a black child? Was there any risk at all? Would Steven Spielberg have adopted that same child in the Deep South of the 1950s where there would have been risk of being called a “nigger lover”? Were the adoption of a black child and the subject matter of his movies actually business decisions for which he knew he would be congratulated?

When Steven Spielberg clutched his Academy Award for Schindler’s List, saying it’s for the “six million,” was he speaking of a quantity of people killed, or the quantity of dollars poured into his bank account?

Did Steven Spielberg truly help the culture understand Stanley Kubrick’s ideas at an Academy Awards eulogy? Or did he accuse Kubrick’s films of being “hopeful” to make them seem as if they sell the same ideas as Steven Spielberg’s movies? Was A Clockwork Orange about hope? Was Barry Lyndon about hope? Was Dr. Strangelove about hope? Was Lolita about hope? Was Full Metal Jacket about hope? Was The Killing about hope?

Was Steven Spielberg’s company sued by an African-American woman who claimed that Amistad was based on her writing? Was this African-American woman suddenly happy with Steven Spielberg after he deposited a lot of money into her bank account?

Does the amount of money taken in by people determine happiness in this culture? Is the earth an unlimited resource, or is there a definitive quantity for people to exploit for gross amounts of money? When a capitalist invokes the word “hope,” does he speak about the continued escalation of his earning power, without being stopped? Could this hope be an illusion?

Are the ice sheets of the Arctic and Antarctic melting and shearing off? Could negative population growth possibly help solve this problem? Isn’t one child per two people negative population growth? Would Steven Spielberg ever support the idea of negative population growth within the medium? Have the goals of Freemasonry, as encapsulated by the back half of the dollar bill, succeeded? Has a megastate of greed been created?

Did DreamWorks, the megacorporate entity co-owned by Steven Spielberg, consider paving over the last remaining wetland in Southern California to create a studio? Does Steven Spielberg feel comfortable emasculating the natural? Is climbing the Alps, or is riding the Matterhorn rollercoaster in Disneyland, more attractive to Steven Spielberg? Is the theme park mentality of our culture, which is made to feel "right" and "moral" by the propagandizing movies of Steven Spielberg, helping to destroy individual thought processes and emasculate what remains of the earth?

Is it possible that the Columbine shootings would have not occurred if Steven Spielberg had never wafted his putrid stench upon our culture, a culture he helped homogenize and propagandize?

Would the culture benefit from Steven Spielberg's murder, or would it be lessened by making him a martyr? Or would people then begin to realize their lives had become less banal and more interesting due to his departure?

Because I think it is possible a beautiful piece of non-lingual music could well be written by an angry victim once Steven Spielberg becomes a corpse. It could be that this angry victim of banal and ruinous propaganda will have written an anthem signaling a new era, a new thought process, a new music, and a new culture that is desperately needed in the coming days, and forevermore.

The one question lingering before this new utopian culture may very well be:
What...Is...It?

Real Name: Jennifer Renee Odom

Location: St Joseph, Florida
Date: February 19, 1993

Case

Details: On the afternoon of February 19, 1993, twelve-year-old Jennifer Odom got off her school bus and vanished. Her stop was just two hundred yards from her home in St. Joseph, a small community near Dade City, Florida. Hundreds of friends, neighbors, and volunteers searched for her until she was found viciously murdered six days later. Her body was found along a Hernando County trail a few miles from her home.

After a series of dead ends, the police called upon psychic Nancy Neyer sixteen months after the murder to try and identify Jennifer's killers. She believed that Jennifer's killers asked her for directions and then abducted her. When taken to the site where her body was found, Nancy noted that she was not killed there. She accurately described some of Jennifer's belongings that were found nearby. She also pointed out that there were more of her belongings in a nearby area that had not yet been discovered.

She was able to describe several of Jennifer's items that were discarded by the killers, including her cousin's clarinet case with the letters "L.O." on them. These items, along with her book bag, were located two years after the murder. She continues to give information about the killers in hopes of solving the case.

DEGENERACY / PEDOS / EPSTEIN / MOSSAD

Jeffrey Epstein: An Intelligence Agent for the Jewish Mossad. Clear evidence of his ties to Israeli Elites.

The Epstein case reveals something very important.

During Epstein's previous case in 2008, the United States Attorney for the Southern District of Florida who handled the case, Alex Acosta himself stated he was told that Epstein "belongs to intelligence and to leave it alone."

Meaning Epstein is an intelligence asset and operative.

But for who? With the facts we have today, we will clearly demonstrate in this article that Epstein was working as an intelligence agent for the Jewish Mossad.

"I was told Epstein 'belonged to intelligence' and to leave it alone."

-- District Attorney Alex Acosta, during Epstein's previous trial in 2008.

Epstein's top aide Ghislaine Maxwell, is accused by several victims of Epstein as being the highest ranking member behind Epstein's sex trafficking network.

Ghislaine's father — Robert Maxwell, a media mogul was a well known Mossad asset.

Her father's burial in Israel was attended by top ranking Israeli intelligence leaders and the Prime Minister of Israel, Yitzhak Shamir, who stated that Maxwell "Had done more for Israel then can today be said." (Robert Maxwell's real family name is the Jewish names of Hoch and Slomowitz, he changed it to Maxwell later on.)

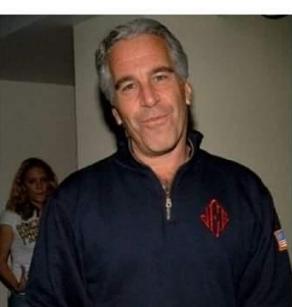

"Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir eulogized him and stated: 'He has done more for Israel than can today be said.'"

Robert Maxwell's funeral in Jerusalem. (1991)

From news reports, Epstein was posing as a modeling recruiter for Victoria's Secret, in order to carry out his sexual abuse and trafficking.

Victoria Secret's parent company is owned and run by Leslie Wexner who is the only known big time client of Epstein.

Both Wexner and Epstein own the main mansion which was set up with hidden cameras to tape the clients of Epstein's sex ring for reasons of "recruiting agents of influence" by comprising them with tapes of them having sex with underage girls.

It was Wexner that gave Epstein the 727 jet doubled the "Lolita Express" and properties to run the compromise intelligence ring with.

Wexner is a billionaire Jewish mogul who also helps fund Chabad, the Jewish organization working to bring about the Jewish World Government.

"Rabbi Yerachmiel Gorelick was among 10 Chabad rabbis from around the world chosen to meet today with President Bush in the Oval Office.

Gorelick said Bush spoke about his support of Israel, his experiences in the White House and other topics during the brief meeting." (2008)

Chabad publishes books such as:

Kabbalah and Meditation for the Nations by Rabbi Yitzchak Ginsburg, openly telling Gentiles they should all serve and worship the entire Jewish race as God's Chosen People and it's the Gentiles place to be servants to their masters.

Wexner is also close to the billionaire Jewish Bronfman family, of which Edgar Bronfman was the head of the World Jewish Congress. The Bronfman family is next to the Jewish Rothschilds in the power structure globally.

The Bronfman family was caught running the NXIVM sex ring, lead by Claire Bronfman. It was reported the NXIVM sex ring was to be used to compromise important figures, including the Bronfman's enemies.

Alan Dershowitz, the Jewish lawyer and friend of Epstein, and Dershowitz himself is also accused of sexually abusing girls being trafficked in Epstein's sex ring.

Dershowitz stated he was introduced to Epstein by a Rothschild.

In Epstein's personal book of social contacts which police investigators now have, it lists among Epstein's many important contacts: Edward de Rothschild and Ehud Barak the former PM of Israel.

Barak is a major business partner with Epstein and Wexner. The Rothschilds family members are on the money in Israel.

Ehud Barak, Israeli Politician, Former PM

Edmond James de Rothschild on the 'old Israeli shekel'.

Epstein was working as an intelligence agent for Mossad in all reality.

His job was obvious, to use the job of a Billionaire Hedge Fund manager to get close to and entertain powerful clients and personalities and then use this to entrap as many of them as possible with the sex ring he was running and force them to the will of the elites.

The same Elites who themselves set Epstein up with his Mansions and 727 jet, and gave him cash and opened the social connections for him with their influence to get him into upper society to do his intelligence role for them.

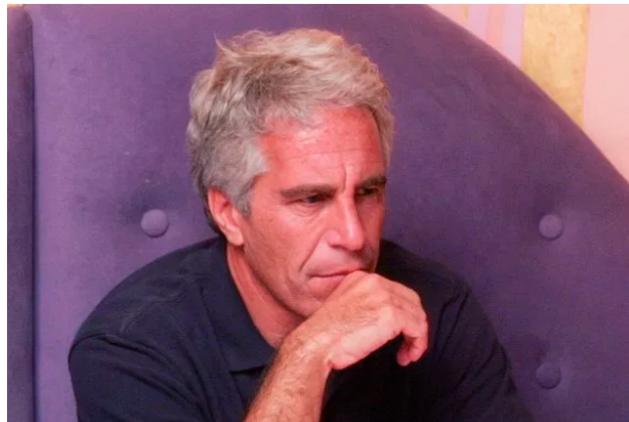

The fact is the Epstein case goes in all probability to the very top of the power structure.

It Sure Looks Like Jeffrey Epstein Was a Spy—But Whose?

<https://archive.fo/RwSrl>

By John R. Schindler • 07/10/19 5:29pm

Billionaire Jeffrey Epstein in Cambridge, Massachusetts on September 8, 2004. Rick Friedman/Corbis via Getty Images

In terms of scandals, the sordid saga of Jeffrey Epstein has it all. Mysterious gaudy fortunes. Jet-setting debauchery. Lots of pretty girls—including very young girls. Sex and more sex, not necessarily legal or consensual. Add a battalion of VIPs, including billionaires, A-list celebrities, royalty and no less than two American presidents.

The only thing missing was espionage... and it's not missing anymore.

SEE ALSO: Victoria's Secret Founder Loses \$53M Over Ties With Jeffrey Epstein

This week, the Epstein story took center stage for all the reasons listed above. The surprise arrest of the 66-year-old admitted pedophile on Saturday night at New Jersey's Teterboro airport, as he was headed home from Paris, reopened it all. The case had jumped in and out of the news since 2007, when Epstein admitted his affection for underage women to the Department of Justice, in exchange for lenient treatment.

The media has been agog since the weekend, as details of Epstein's shocking private life are emerging. Public horror has followed—another alleged victim came forward just today, claiming Epstein raped her in 2002, when she was 15—and more seems certain to come.

The Justice Department unsealed its new indictment against Epstein on Monday, which focuses on that 2002 to 2005 period, when Epstein allegedly ran a secret empire devoted to moving underage girls between his New York and Florida residences, in order to sexually exploit them. Epstein's life will never be the same.

But what was that life, really? That's a key question which nobody has been able to publicly answer. How Epstein maintained his fantastically extravagant lifestyle has long been a topic of speculation and mystery. He claimed to have made his vast fortune as a financial guru to the super-rich, but nearly all of his clients were unnamed. Moreover, in a business where overwork is standard, Epstein seemed to have unlimited free time to pursue his avocation of obtaining "massages" from young women.

A major hint was dropped this week by Vicky Ward, the intrepid investigative journalist who has tried to expose the ugly reality behind the Epstein facade longer than anyone. In a report for the Daily Beast, Ward shed light on the Justice Department's 2007 non-prosecution agreement with Epstein, that sweetest of sweet deals, since it got Epstein a laughably lenient sentence—for crimes which any normal person would have gone away for decades after admitting to.

Alexander Acosta, the current U.S. Labor Secretary, is in the hot seat, since a dozen years ago he was the U.S. Attorney for South Florida who cut that deal with Epstein. Ward explained the background of that deal, which is now a noose for Acosta. Specifically, she elaborated that the Epstein issue came up when Acosta was appointed to the cabinet by President Donald Trump. Ward writes:

He'd cut the non-prosecution deal with one of Epstein's attorneys because he had "been told" to back off, that Epstein was above his pay grade. "I was told Epstein belonged to intelligence' and to leave it alone," he told his interviewers in the Trump transition, who evidently thought that was a sufficient answer and went ahead and hired Acosta. (The Labor Department had no comment when asked about this.)

Wait, what?

So, Acosta, according to himself, backed off on prosecuting Epstein back in 2007, despite the possession of ample evidence proving his guilt, because he "belonged to intelligence." Whose intelligence, exactly? is the first of many questions that arise here.

This claim was met with an appropriate degree of skepticism, and Acosta had a chance to explain what he meant in a press conference this afternoon. On camera, Acosta maintained that he did the best he could with that case, while admitting that it hardly looks like a fair punishment now.

The intelligence issue came up, and Acosta's response was bizarre. He punted on setting the record straight, instead proffering this strange word salad when asked about Ward's reporting:

So there has been reporting to that effect and let me say, there's been reporting to a lot of effects in this case, not just now but over the years and, again, I would hesitant to take this reporting as fact. This was a case that was brought by our office, it was brought based on the facts and I look at the reporting and others, I can't address it directly because of our guidelines, but I can tell you that a lot of reporting is going down rabbit holes.

To anyone acquainted with our nation's capital, that's a non-denial denial of an epic kind. Given the chance to refute Ward's report, specifically that the Epstein case involved intelligence matters, Acosta did nothing of the sort. Indeed, he functionally admitted that it's true.

What then can we conclude at this point? It appears that Jeffrey Epstein was involved in intelligence work, of some kind, for someone—and it probably wasn't American intelligence either. The U.S. Intelligence Community is lenient about the private habits of high-value agents or informants, but they won't countenance running sex trafficking rings for minors on American soil, for years. While it's plausible that Epstein was sharing some information with the FBI—many criminals do so to buy themselves some insurance—it's implausible that he was mainly working for the Americans.

Who are the suspects then? It seems awfully coincidental that Epstein's best pal and business partner for decades has been Ghislaine Maxwell, the British socialite and daughter of the late Robert Maxwell, the media mogul who died under mysterious circumstances in 1991. Something of a Bond villain turned real life, Maxwell loved the limelight, despite being a swindler and a spy. British counterintelligence assessed that Maxwell was working for the KGB, while pervasive allegations that he was working for Mossad too are equally plausible.

Since the lines between Russian intelligence, Israeli intelligence and organized crime can get remarkably blurry in practice, as I've explained previously, assessing whom Epstein's been working for may prove difficult to answer with any precision. But we have a suspect list to start asking questions.

What's not in doubt is that a sex trafficking ring centered on minors, which involved numerous global VIPs in compromising situations, would be of high interest to quite a few intelligence services. The Epstein saga seems certain to get even more unpleasant and interesting.

In a feature article about Mr. Epstein in New York Magazine, former President Clinton aptly described Mr. Epstein as "a committed philanthropist with a keen sense of global markets and an in-depth knowledge of twenty-first-century science." President Clinton reached this conclusion during a month-long trip to Africa with Mr. Epstein, which Mr. Epstein hosted. The purpose of that trip was to increase AIDS awareness; to work towards a solution to the AIDS crisis; and to provide funding to reduce the costs of delivering medications to those inflicted with the disease.

Both before and after that trip to Africa, Mr. Epstein worked hard to achieve improvements in people's lives on a global basis. He actively sought advancement of his philanthropic goals through his participation and generous support of both the Trilateral Commission and the Council on Foreign Relations. As you may know, the Trilateral Commission was formed to foster closer cooperation among the democratic

Epstein list reignites suspicion thepedo financier was working for Mossad and blackmailing the elite with help of 'useful idiot' Prince Andrew - after meeting Israeli PM Ehud Barak at least THIRTY SIX times

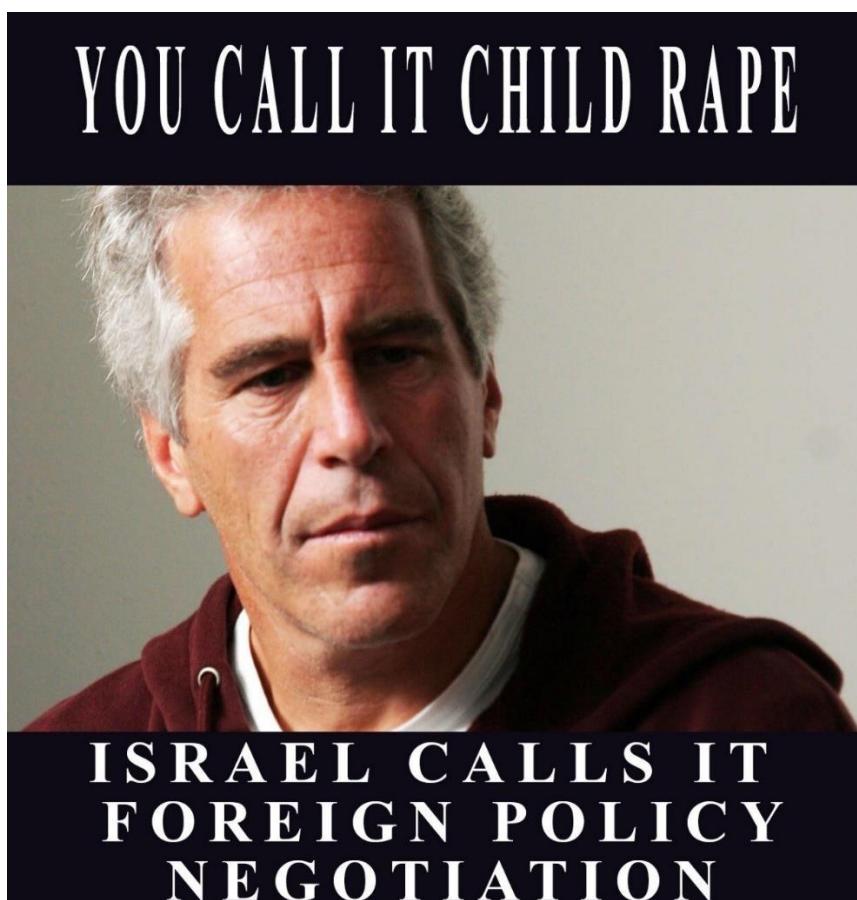

'SPY' AND THE 'USEFUL IDIOT'

The appearance of ex-crack Prime Minister Ehud Barak's name on the Epstein list has fueled previous claims the pedophile was a spy for Israel who met Prince Andrew for intel and used his sex trafficking operation as a honeypot trap for the rich and famous. The allegations have come from those in Epstein's circle and senior Mossad agent Avi Ben-Menashe, who branded the UK royal Epstein's 'useful idiot' and claimed the late pedophile had been brought into the spy game by Robert Maxwell, father of Ghislaine, Epstein's madam.

EPSTEIN FORCED MINOR TO HAVE SEXUAL RELATIONS WITH HARVARD LAW PROFESSOR ALAN DERSHOWITZ

Jane Doe #3 is a minor who was forced to have sexual relations with people on behalf of Epstein

"Epstein forced then-minor Jane Doe #3 to have sexual relations with former Harvard Law Professor Alan Dershowitz, a close friend of Epstein's and well-known criminal defense attorney."

One such powerful individual that Epstein forced then-minor Jane Doe #3 to have sexual relations with was former Harvard Law Professor Alan Dershowitz, a close friend of Epstein's and well-known criminal defense attorney. Epstein required Jane Doe #3 to have sexual relations with Dershowitz on numerous occasions while she was a minor, not only in Florida but also on private planes, in New York, New Mexico, and the U.S. Virgin Islands. In addition to being a participant in the abuse of Jane Doe #3 and other minors, Deshowitz was an eye-witness to the sexual abuse of many other minors by Epstein and several of Epstein's co-conspirators. Dershowitz would later play a significant role in negotiating the NPA on Epstein's behalf. Indeed, Dershowitz helped negotiate an agreement that provided immunity from federal prosecution in the Southern District of Florida not only to Epstein, but also to "any potential co-

The New York Post used random NYFD EMT training photos and screwed up, this one was taken in the FDNY garage, when it was supposed to be "at the hospital".

Please note: 1. A whole bunch of FDNY gurneys on a peg. 2. A compressed air hose for the trucks. 3. a FILTHY WALL a hospital would never have. 4. Epstein's head is too big. 5. Here are the photos as the New York Post originally published them.

The Finders

"The Finders" were a cult organization investigated in the late 1980s for child abuse and trafficking. A US Customs Service report from that time states that the organization was trafficking and abusing many children but the investigation was shut down by CIA.

If the Finders still exist, no information exists about their activities after the early 1990s.

REPORT OF INVESTIGATION

4700-01 (2/71) FPM (Social Action Manual)

1. FILE NUMBER	C-3
2. PAGE	1 OF 3
3. DATE INDEXED

DETAILS OF INVESTIGATION:

On Thursday, February 5, 1987, this office was contacted via telephone, by sergeant, JoAnn VanMETER of the Tallahassee Police Department, Juvenile Division. Sgt. VanMETER requested assistance in identifying two adult males and six minor children ages 7 years to 2 years.

The adult males were tentatively identified by TPD as Michael HOULTHAN and Douglas AMMERMAN, both of Washington, D.C., who were arrested the previous day on charges of child abuse.

The police had received an anonymous telephone call (relating to) two well-dressed white men wearing suits and ties in Myers Park, (Tallahassee), apparently watching six dirty and unkempt children in the playground area. HOULTHAN and AMMERMAN were near a 1980 Blue Dodge van bearing Virginia license number XHW-557, the inside of which was later described as foul-smelling, filled with maps, books letters, and with a mattress situated to the rear of the van which appeared as if it were used as a bed, and the overall appearance of the van gave the impression that all eight persons were living in it.

The children were covered in insect bites, were very dirty, most of the children were not wearing underwear, and all the children had not been bathed in many days.

The men were arrested and charged with multiple counts of child abuse and lodges in the Leon County Jail. Once in custody, the men were somewhat evasive in their answers to the police regarding the children and stated only that they were both the children's teachers, and that (they all) were enroute to Mexico to establish a school for brilliant children.

Mary HOULTHON, white female age 7;
Max LIVINGSTON, white male, age 6;
Benjamin FRANKLIN, white male age 4;
HoneyBee EVANS, white female, age 3;
B.B., white male, age 2;
John Paul HOULTHON, white male, age 2.

The children initially indicated that they lived in tents in a commune in the Washington D.C. area, and were going to Mexico to go to a school for smart kids.

This office contacted the Office of the RAC/DC and spoke with SS/A, Bob Harrold. This agent requested telephone numbers and names of police persons in area departments that might be aware of said activities described by the children and to follow-up on the leads; the Virginia license number, and a check on the men's names with local law enforcement.

A short time later, this office was contacted by Detective, Jim Bradley of the Washington D.C. Metropolitan Police Department. Bradley indicated that the case here in Tallahassee appeared to be strongly related to a case he was currently working on in the Washington D.C. area.

He stated that the actions of the two men in custody in Tallahassee, along with the children, just might give his case enough probable cause for search warrants to search premises occupied by a cult group called the FINDERS.

This agent directed Bradley to telephone TPD and discuss with police directly any activities forthcoming relating to the case.

At this time, it was determined that there was no Custom violations found to exist, and therefore, this case is being closed pending receipt of additional information.

MEMO TO FILE

TO : Resident Agent in Charge

Date : 02/07/87

FROM : Special Agent

SUBJECT: Customs cooperation/interest in Tallahassee/Washington HPD child abuse investigation.

On Thursday, 2/5/87, the duty agent SS/A Bob Harrold, received a call from SS/A Walter Krietlow, USCS, Tallahassee, Florida, SS/A Krietlow was seeking assistance in contacting an appropriate local police agency to coordinate a child abuse investigation with the Tallahassee Police Department. SS/A Krietlow further requested assistance in checking some names, addresses, and a vehicle through the Customs Child Pornography Unit data base, and stated there was some suspicion of the subjects being involved in supplying children for the production of child pornography. Further, he was informed by the Tallahassee Police Department that the children may have been enroute to Mexico from the Washington D.C. area. The possibility of Customs interest in the investigation due to possible violations of the Child Protection Act of 1984, and the alleged nexus with the U.S./Mexican Border were discussed and agreed upon. SS/A Krietlow related the following background information:

"SS/A Krietlow was contacted by the Tallahassee Police Department for assistance in identifying six children and two adults taken into custody in the Tallahassee area. U.S. Customs was contacted because the police officers involved suspected the adults of being involved in child pornography , and knew the Customs Service to have a network of child pornography investigators, and of the existance of the Child Pornography and Protection Unit. SS/A Krietlow stated the two adults were well dressed white males. They had custody of six white children (boys and girls), ages three to six years. The children were observed to be poorly dressed, bruised, dirty, and behaving like animals in a public park in Tallahassee. The police were notified by a concerned citizen, and all eight persons were taken into custody. The suspects were living out of a white 1979 Dodge Van, Virginia license no. XHW 557.

Upon being taken into custody, the adult white males refused to cooperate, one of whom produced a 'buisness' card with a name on one side, and a statement on the other. The statement indicated that the bearer knew his constitutional rights to remain silent, and that he intended to do so. Upon interviewing the children, the police officers found that they could not adequately identify themselves, nor their custodians. Further, they stated that they were enroute to Mexico to attend a 'school for smart kids'. SS/A Krietlow was further advised the children were unaware of the function and purpose of telephones, televisions, and toilets, and also that the children had stated they were not allowed to live indoors and were only given food as a reward."

After receiving the request from Tallahassee, SS/A Harrold contacted me while I was on official business at Customs Headquarters. He requested that I conduct computer checks on the Customs Child Pornography Unit data base. The checks were to be conducted on the names, addresses, and vehicle number provided by SS/A Krietlow. After conducting the computer checks, I made direct contact with SS/A Krietlow to inform him that all the checks were negative.

At that time, I was informed by SS/A Krietlow that the Tallahassee police had discovered large quantities of records, to include computer discs and a U.S. passport in the van. From some of these records the police had obtained tentative identification of the two adults, and partial identification of the children. Furthermore, the two Washington D.C. addresses had been discovered through these documents, one of which was verified through the vehicle registration. I advised SS/A Krietlow I was leaving Headquarters and he would be receiving a response to the remainder of his request from SS/A Harrold. I then left as stated and proceeded to conduct other business in the District.

A short time later, at approximately 11:30 am, SS/A Harrold contacted me by radio, and advised me that a Detective Jim Bradley of the Washington D.C. Metropolitan Police Department (MPD) was interested in the information provided by SS/A Krietlow, was in contact with Tallahassee, and would very likely be conducting search warrants in the area later in the day. He also informed me that U.S. Customs was invited to participate due to the continuing possibility of violations of law enforced by the Customs Service. As I was already in Washington, I terminated my other business and proceeded to make contact with Detective Bradley, Intelligence Division, MPD.

Upon contacting Detective Bradley, I learned that he had initiated an investigation on the two addresses provided by the Tallahassee Police Dept. during December of 1985. An informant had given him information regarding a cult, known as the "Finders" operating various businesses out of a warehouse located at 1307 4th St., N.E., and were supposed to be housing children at 3918/3920 W St., N.W. The informant was specific in describing "blood rituals" and sexual orgies involving children, and an as-of-yet unsolved murder in which the Finders may be involved. With the information provided by the informant, Detective Bradley was able to match some of the children in Tallahassee with names of the children known alleged to be in the custody of the Finders. Furthermore, Bradley was able to match the tentative ID of the adults with known members of the Finders. I stood by while Bradley consulted with AHSA (?) Harry Bonner and obtained search warrants for the two premises.

I advised acting RAC SS/A Tim Holloran of my intention to accompany MPD on the execution of the warrants, received his permission, and was joined by SS/A Harrold. SS/A Harrold accompanied the team which went to 1307 4th St, and I went to 3918/20 W St.

During the execution of the warrant at 3918/20 W St., I was able to observe and access the entire building. I saw large quantities of children's clothes and toys. There were diapers, as well as clothing in the toddler to pre-school range. No children were found on the premises. There were several subjects on the premises. Only one was deemed to be connected to the Finders. The rest were renting living space from this individual. He was identified as Stuart Miles SILVERSTONE, D.O.B. 06/19/41, U.S. Passport No. 010958991. Mr. SILVERSTONE was located in a room equipped with several computers, printers, and numerous documents. Cursory examination of the documents revealed detailed instructions for obtaining children for unspecified purposes. The instructions included the impregnation of female members of the community known as Finders, purchasing children, trading, and kidnapping. There were telex (?) messages using HCI account numbers between a computer terminal believed to be located in the same room, and others located across the country and in foreign locations.

One such telex specifically ordered the purchase of two children in Hong Kong to be arranged through contact in the Chinese Embassy there. Another telex expressed an interest in "bank secrecy" situations. Other documents identified interest in high-tech transfers to the United Kingdom, numerous properties under the control of the Finders, a keen interest in terrorism, explosives, and the evasion of law enforcement. Also found in the "computer room" was a detailed summary of the events surrounding the arrest and taking into custody of the two adults and six children in Tallahassee, Florida on the previous night. There was also a set of instructions which appears to be broadcast via computer network which advised participants to move "the children" and keep them moving through different jurisdictions, and instructions on how to avoid police attention.

One of the residents was identified as a Chinese National. Due to the telex discovered referencing the Chinese Embassy in Hong Kong, he was fully identified for future reference: WANG Gengxin, D.O.B. 09/27/47, P.O.B. Tianjin, People's Republic of China, Passport No. 324999, entered the U.S. on January 22, 1987, admitted until December 31, 1987. He is in the U.S. as a graduate student in the Anatomy Department of Georgetown University. His visa was issued on November 10, 1986, in London, England, number 00143.

During the course of the evening, I contacted Sector 4 to initiate a TECS check on SILVERSTONE, and initiate an archives check on him for the last four years. I also contacted SS/A Holloran to keep him advised of the proceedings and asked for (and received) permission to contact SS/A John Sullivan of the CPPU to query some names through the CPPU data base. SS/A Holloran told me he would call Southeast Region Headquarters to keep them posted on the proceedings as well. I later contacted SS/A Sullivan for the above stated purpose, and in the discussion that followed, I gave him some background on the purpose of the request. I advised him that the information was not for dissemination at Headquarters, that Region was being notified, and that Region would probably contact Headquarters later if deemed necessary.

SS/A Sullivan assured me that he information would go no further until official notification was made by Region. No positive matches were obtained from the CPPU data base. I was later joined at the W Street address by SS/A Harrold. SS/A Harrold advised me that there were extremely large quantities of documents and computer equipment at the warehouse, and that HPD was posting officers inside the building there and sealing the building until morning, in which a second warrant for that premises would be obtained and executed. SS/A Harrold also advised me that the news media had been notified and had been waiting for the execution of the warrant at the 4th Street address... Detective Bradley later stated that the MPD Public Information Officer had been contacted by a Tallahassee reporter. When it became apparent that PIO had no information on the search warrants, the reporter contacted local media representatives and a check of public records containing the affidavits for the search warrants disclosed the locations and purpose of the warrants. Detective Bradley surmised that someone on the Tallahassee Police Department was the original source of information for this press. I advised SS/A Holloran of the involvement of the press, and he stated that he would, in turn, relay the information to Region. SS/A Harrold and I assisted in the transport of the evidence seized pursuant to the warrant and cleared MPD after the press left the area.

On Friday, 2/6/87, I met Detective Bradley at the warehouse on 4th Street, N.E.. I duly advised my acting group supervisor, SS/A Don Bludworth: I was again granted unlimited access to the premises. I was able to observe numerous documents which described explicit sexual conduct between the member of the community known as Finders. I also saw a large collection of photographs of unidentified persons. Some of the photographs were nudes, believed to be members of the Finders. There were numerous photos of children, some nude, at least one of which was a photo of a child "on display", and appearing to accent the child's genitals. I was only able to examine a very small amount of the photos at this time. However, one of the officers presented me with a photo album for my review. The album contained a series of photos of adults and children dressed in white sheets participating in a "blood ritual". The ritual centered around the execution, disembowelment, skinning and then dismemberment of goats at the hands of various children. This included the removal of the testicles of the male goat, the discovery of the female goats' wombs, and the 'baby goats' inside the wombs, as well as the presentation of a goat's head to one of the children.

Further inspection of the premises disclosed numerous files relating to the activities of the organization in different parts of the world. Locations I observed are as follows: London, Germany, the Bahamas, Japan, Hong Kong, Malaysia, Africa, Costa Rica, and Europe. There was also a file identified as 'Palestinian'. All the other files were identified by a member name or 'project' name, the projects appearing to show fronts being operated by the Finders. There was one file entitled 'Pentagon Break-In', and others which referred to members operating in foreign countries. Not observed by me, but relayed by an MPD officer, were intelligence files on private families who weren't related to the Finders. The process undertaken appears to have been a systematic response to local newspaper advertisements for babysitters, tutors, etc. A member of the Finders would respond (to those ads), and gather as much information as possible about the habits, identity, occupation, etc., of the family. The usage of this information is still unknown. There was also a large amount of data collected on various child care organizations.

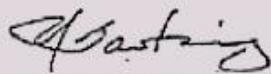

The warehouse contained a large library, two kitchens, a sauna, hot-tub, and a "video room". The video room seemed to be set up as an indoctrination center. It also appeared that the organization had the capability to produce its own videos. There were what appeared to be training areas for children, and what appeared to be an altar set up in a residential area of the warehouse. Many jars of urine and feces were located in this area.

I should also mention that both premises were equipped with satellite dish antennas. I discussed the course of action to be taken by HPD (?) by Detective Bradley. He stated he was only interested in making the child abuse case(s). I was assured that all of the evidence would be available to U.S. Customs in furtherance of any investigative/criminal action pursued. MPD personnel were to be around the clock review and sorting of the evidence until completed. Customs will have to access after this is accomplished. This will include several U.S. passports discovered during the search.

Upon leaving the 4th Street premises, I encountered a news media representative and was asked the reason behind U.S. Customs involvement in the investigation. I told the reporter that I could not discuss anything and referred her to the RAC/DC. I left immediately thereafter.

There is no further information available at this time. It should take three to five days for all the information to be sorted, reviewed, and logged by the MPD. I will maintain contact with Detective Bradley until the evidence is again accessible.

Respectfully submitted,

Ramon J. Hartinez
Special Agent, USCS

DETAILS OF INVESTIGATION:

On March 31, 1987, I contacted Detective James Bradley of the Washington D.C. Metropolitan Police Department (MPD). I was to meet with Detective Bradley to review the documents seized pursuant to two search warrants executed in February 1987. The meeting was to take place on April 2nd (or 3rd), 1987.

On April 2, 1987, I arrived at MPD at approximately 9:00 am. Detective Bradley was not available. I spoke to a third party who was willing to discuss the case with me on a strictly "off the record" basis.

I was advised that all the passport data had been turned over to the State Department for their investigation. The State Department in turn, advised MPD that all travel and use of the passports by the holders of the passports was within the law, and no action would be taken. This included travel to Moscow, North Korea, and North Vietnam from the late 1950's to mid 1970's.

The individual further advised me of circumstances which indicated that the investigation into the activity of the Finders had become a CIA internal matter. The MPD report has been classified as secret and was not available for review. I was advised that the FBI had withdrawn from the investigation several weeks prior, and that the FBI Foreign Counter Intelligence Division had directed MPD not to advise the FBI Washington Field of anything that had transpired.

No further information will be made available. No further action will be taken.

ACTION TO BE TAKEN BY LESD/TECS:

No action to be taken on the basis of this report.

No further Information will be available. No further action will be taken.

SUMMARY:

A large group of people performing rituals, sacrifices, group sex, and more things, with documents including how to make bombs, avoid police detection, 'aquire' children from various means, and so on, is discovered by police detectives.

This investigation is then immediately made secret/terminated, and is classified as a CIA internal matter. According to this document, the CIA is/was either complicit or outright funding this group.

Truth is...the game was hooked from the start.

UPDATED SUMMARY

I have finished my 3 hour review of all 324 pages. Admittedly, this review was non-exhaustive and there were instances of incomplete evaluation (especially for handwritten notes).

That being said, here is where I'm at:

#1 - The Finders had access to military planes

#2 - The Finders had access to military airfields, including ANDREWS AIR FORCE BASE, where Air Force One takes off

#3 - The Finders traveled abroad to North Korea, North Vietnam, Russia via CIA coordinated and funded trips

#4 - The Finders photographed kids with slaughtered goats at "THE HILL HOUSE"

#5 - The Hill House is located in Nethers, Virginia (rural, just outside of DC)

#6 - According to Edward Snowden, the CIA's most secret base is located in rural Virginia just outside of DC and is called "THE HILL"

#7 - Local PD concluded that the CIA was using The Finders to spread disinformation abroad

#8 - CIA shut down Local PD investigations into the Finders, calling it "an internal CIA matter" in 1987

#9 - The Finders is run by a man named Marion Pettie. Investigators noted that the Finders had a member by the name of Isabella Pettie, who was a member of the CIA from 1951 to 1970.
TO SUM UP

The cult, with CIA ties from 1970s to 1990s, who was located in the same area as the CIA's most secretive base, who's headquarters was named THE HILL HOUSE when the CIA's base was named THE HILL, who traveled through CIA arrangements, who had access to MILITARY AIRCRAFT in the MOST SECURE AIR BASE IN THE COUNTRY, who was prevented from being investigated by the CIA, who is run by Marion Pettie while having a former CIA agent named Isabella Pettie as a member of the Finders, was surely not in cahoots with the CIA.

>Franklin Community Credit Union of Nebraska gets shut down in November 1988 over the embezzlement of 40 million dollars >Credit union was managed by Larry King (no relation to CNN guy); nationally known figure within the Republican Party who had sung the national anthem at the '84 National Republican Convention and could count Reagan, Bush Sr. and Clarence Thomas among his associates.

>As early as 1986, Ron and Kathleen Sorensen had started hearing stories of abuse from their new foster children Euice and Tracy Washington regarding their old foster parents Jarrett and Barbara Webb, the latter who was a cousin of Larry King
>Around the same time, a different girl, Shawnae Moore while checked into a hospital was telling her caregivers of abuse and murder and mentions Larry King

>By October 1988 it's clear that law enforcement is doing jack shit about the allegations although the assistant attorney general assures the Foster Care Review Board that the investigation is still active also however implying that glowies have now gotten involved.

>After the Franklin Credit Union is shut down, the Nebraska State Legislature votes on a resolution, drafted by Republican Senator Loren Schmitt, to form a committee to investigate the collapse of the Franklin Credit Union and the allegations of child abuse.

>Schmitt gets an anonymous phone call telling him to stop investigating Franklin because it will lead to the 'highest levels of the Republican Party' >glowies finally interview their children and by February '89 proclaim that their accusations don't stand up to scrutiny.

>By mid 1989, the committee hires nationally renowned private investigator Gary Caradon to carry out an independent investigation of the accusations.

>Caradon finds new witnesses to Franklin related child abuse and begins taping their testimony.
>Witnesses tell stories of going to sex parties, being molested, and trafficked across the country by perpetrators including Larry King, Harold Anderson, publisher of the Omaha World Herald, Robert Wadman, Chief of the Omaha Police, Peter Citron:

>Some of the witnesses though not all reported ritual abuse which has been used by debunkers to discredit the ENTIRE story
>Witness Paul Bonacci mentions an individual named Craig J. Spence, a Washington D.C. lobbyist who at the time was the subject of an expose in the Washington Times for running a prostitution ring, wiring his house up for blackmail operations, and even having the connections to arrange midnight tours of the White House for his friends and clients.

>Spence gets suicided a few months after the exposé.

>Later interviews by journalist Nick Bryant with one of the men involved with Spence, Henry Vinson, would corroborate the claim that Spence and King were associated and ran a nationwide child trafficking operation tldr: In the 80s, Lawrence King and Craig Spencer: two rich pedophiles set up a child trafficking ring based in Omaha and Washington D.C. that likely had clients at the highest levels of the U.S. government. When a Nebraska state investigation began to uncover it, someone high up in the feds gives the orders to SHUT IT DOWN, and mostly succeeds.

>Remember that a grand jury is not a normal trial. It's just a panel of normies presented with evidence entirely gatekept by a prosecutor. There is no cross examination or defense.

I get that angle and I think they must get a perverse glee from exactly that, but a crime scene photographer once told me she uncovered a lot of ritual abuse, one being an altar made out of severed childrens limbs. This was in a totally normal conversation apropos of nothing, not mentioning abuse or anything occult, I'm surprised she was kind and open enough to mention it to me considering how perverse people act today to new information that they don't like.

So, they know. That's how it gets this far. Everybody high up is in on it, like Saville.

Caradoni's Airplane 'Broke Up in Flight'

By Robert Dorr
and Gabriella Stern

World-Herald Staff Writers

The small plane that carried Lincoln private-detective Gary Caradoni and his 8-year-old son to their deaths in Illinois early Wednesday apparently broke up in flight, two investigators said Wednesday.

"It was a scattered wreckage pattern," said Bill Bruce, an investigator with the National Transportation Safety Board. "It certainly demonstrates that it did break up in flight. The exact mechanism of the breakup is unknown."

Sheriff Tim Elvins of Lee County, Ill., who spent 12 hours at the crash site, said he didn't think an explosion occurred while the plane was in the air. He said he thought the plane "came apart in the air" and exploded on impact. Elvins said plane debris was scattered over an area three-quarters of a mile long.

Caradoni was the private investigator looking into allegations of child sexual abuse for the Legislature's Franklin Credit Union committee. The committee is investigating matters related to the 1988 failure of Omaha's Franklin Community Federal Credit Union. Caradoni worked for the committee. Caradoni, 41, and his son, Andrew,

America's Greatest Child Sex Scandal: Boys Town in Lincoln, Nebraska

Tim King Salem-News.com

This is the story you may have heard of, here are the really disturbing details.

(SACRAMENTO, CA) - Those who deny the possibility of government deception on a large scale should examine the story of Boys Town and a Black Republican Politician named Lawrence 'Larry' King.

For many, King and Boys Town are synonymous with the scandal involving child sex and drug abuse that officials in Lincoln, Nebraska were able to suppress and effectively cover up.

It is among the most blatant of all the mostly ignored stories in this country that have been buried because they affected a large number of children; many under the age of 10, who were viciously raped by important men, so-called 'pillars of their communities'.

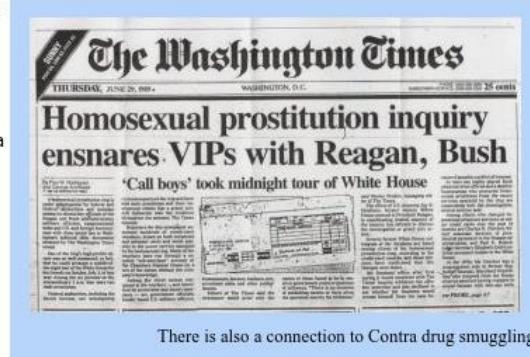

Carol Stitt - Director, Nebraska Foster Care Review Board

The coverup appears to involve the police and courts in Nebraska and also the FBI.

A woman named Carol Stitt, Director of the Nebraska Foster Care Review Board, explains in the documentary below, Conspiracy Of Silence, that the allegations of children being taken to political parties where they would be abused sexually, usually at 'after hour' parties, originated with her office.

The lives of Alisha Owen, Paul Bonacci, Troy Boner and the other victims of what appears to be a government orchestrated child rape syndicate, will never be what they could have due to this ridiculous miscarriage of justice. The fact that it happened in the nation's Bible belt is a sad indicator of the massive hypocrisy that exists between religion and the actions of men.

There is also a connection to Contra drug smuggling.

Mary Phagan Was Raped and Murdered by Leo Frank of B'nai B'rith on April 26, 1913

By Know Your Enemy

Leo Max Frank – born April 17, 1884, was a violent Jewish serial child molester, pedophile-rapist, adulterous whoremonger and vicious strangler known for the 1913 ritual murder of 13 year-old Mary Phagan.

Born to a Jewish-American family in Texas, Frank was raised in New York and earned a degree in mechanical engineering from Cornell University before moving to Atlanta in 1908. Marrying in 1910, he involved himself with the city's Jewish community and was elected president of the Atlanta chapter of the B'nai B'rith, a Jewish fraternal organization, in 1912. Modern B'nai B'rith members have exhibited an ongoing, current and troubling history of pedophilia, including harboring child pornography, and Leo Frank would be part of that child-sex legacy, revealing the historical pedophile tendencies of the B'nai B'rith past.

Frank worked as a high profile General Superintendent at The Jewish-owned National Pencil Company in the heart of Atlanta, Georgia. He was hired on by his uncle Moses Frank, an investor and stock owner in the company. More than 19 factory employees in 1913 would disclose that Leo Frank was an aggressive sexual predator and child molester, one who often made inappropriate sexual innuendos and propositioned numerous pre-teen and teenage child laborers for sexual favors.

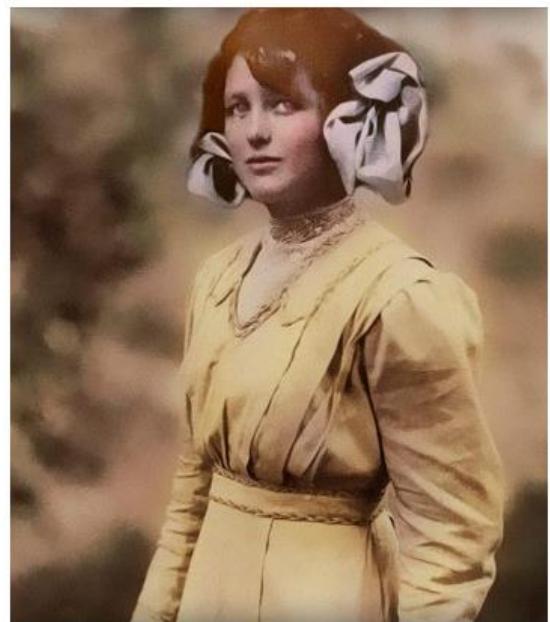

Leo M. Frank managed two companies, the Forsyth and Bell Pencil Lead Plant. They were grueling sweatshops that employed Gentile, poverty stricken pre-teen and teenage girls and boys; these children from poor families often worked 11 hour shifts during the day, five to six days a week, in horrendous conditions and for meager pay of just pennies an hour.

In 1913 there were growing concerns amongst the citizens regarding child labor at factories owned by members of the Jewish community. One of these children was 13 year old Mary Phagan, who worked at the National Pencil Company.

On Confederate Memorial Day, Saturday, April 26, 1913, Mary Phagan left home at a quarter to twelve and headed to the pencil factory. She was to pick up her pay of $1.20, a day's work. According to Leo Frank, in a shuttered factory, Mary Phagan walked into his second floor inner office at 12:02 PM, but Frank claimed he did not know her name at the time. She called out her employee number #186. Frank claimed he thumbed through his payroll box and pulled out an envelope with her initials M.P. and employee number #186 written on it with a lead pencil, and then handed the envelope to thirteen year old Mary Phagan.

According to Frank, as Mary Phagan was about to leave, she allegedly turned around at the door and asked him if the metal had arrived, and Leo Frank claimed he told her "no". It was later determined that Leo Frank had lured Mary Phagan into the metal room, which was just down the hall from his own second floor office, with an answer to her question about whether or not the metal had come, saying "I Don't Know". (Let's go see)

Phagan was one of four child laborers who had been laid off the previous Monday, April 21, 1913, when supplies of brass sheet metal had run out. After having lured her into the metal room and closing the doors behind them, Leo offered Mary her job back in exchange for sex. When she resisted him and tried to escape, Frank grabbed her, pounded her in the face with his angry fist and slammed her head against the handle of the lathe machine, leaving 6 to 12 bloody hairs entangled on it. Then he bludgeoned, raped and garroted Phagan with a 7-foot cord so she couldn't tell anyone. Mary Phagan's strangulation became a national scandal once the discovery of it hit the media's press. The jewish community feared being disgraced, because a high profile member of their community had committed such a disgracefully heinous crime.

Mary Phagan's strangulation became a national scandal once the discovery of it hit the media's press. The jewish community feared being disgraced, because a high profile member of their community had committed such a disgracefully heinous crime. According to Leo Frank's own statements which amounted to a virtual admissions of murder. (See State's Exhibit B)

The beating, pedophile-rape and strangling of Mary Phagan, occurred between "12:05 to 12:10, maybe 12:07", with an absolute time range of 12:05 to 12:15. After Frank murdered Mary Phagan, he asked his lackey Negro custodian and watchdog, Jim Connolly, to dump the body in the rear of the basement in front of a large furnace, with the unspoken intention of later asking Connolly to stuff Mary Phagan in the oven to cremate her. When Frank & Connolly went back to Leo's second floor office, Frank asked Connolly to ghost write unheard-of & never before created murder notes, as if they were being written by Mary Phagan while she was in the middle of being raped and killed by the Nightwatchman Newt Lee.

Newt Lee was an honest Negro employee who had not arrived to work yet, but would be at the factory in the late afternoon to begin his security guard rounds. The body was placed in such a way that Newt Lee would eventually discover it. Although Frank had tried to frame him, Lee would have some interesting sworn testimony to provide about Leo M. Frank's unusual behavior on that infamous day, testimony that even Leo Frank would not counter or explain away during his August 18, 1913 trial testimony. During the trial, while trying to frame Newt Lee, one reason Frank gave for Lee's guilt... "Have you ever smelled a Negro?"

Leo Frank returned to the factory after his late "lunch" of eating absolutely nothing and waited around for Jim Connolly to return promptly, on the promise of $200 in Greenbacks, that is if Jim would incinerate the body, but when Connolly never came back that late afternoon, Frank became nervous, agitated, frenetic and excited, and in a last pitched act of desperation, he snatched the contrived murder notes he had dictated to Connolly to scrawl up earlier, and scattered them next to Phagan's body in the gloom of the basement. Frank then went back upstairs to possibly resume a poorly and partly consummated clean up job in the metal room which included smearing and rubbing haskolene into the blood stains left by Mary Phagans head when she dropped on the floor.

When Newt Lee finally arrived at work at 4pm, Frank was bustling with nervousness, frantic, agitated, frenzied and excited. Frank ordered Newt Lee to leave the factory, have a good time and come back at 6PM or 6:30PM. Lee asked Frank if he could please sleep in the packing room for an hour or two, but Frank wouldn't let him stay and was insistent that Newt leave the factory and go out and have a good time – Frank practically pushed Lee out of the factory.

When Newt returned at 6PM, Frank left briskly and got home at 6:30pm. He immediately called the factory but no one picked up. When he called again at 7:00pm, Newt Lee finally picked up. Frank, in a brisk frazzled voice, asked if everything was alright at the factory and when Newt Lee said Yes, Frank said goodbye and slammed the phone. Frank had never called the factory on a Saturday or any day for that matter before, to check up on things, according to Lee. Frank was calling the factory to see if Newt had discovered the body of Phagan, because Newt was supposed to check every square inch of the factory during his rounds, but once the factory was locked up, Newt might not have gone all the way back into the basement or at all.

At 3:10 AM Newt Lee went to 'recline on' and make a deposit in the Negro toilet located in right-back area of the basement, and upon finishing his business, when Lee stood up, he spotted a twisted body dumped on a sawdust and cinder pile near the furnace. When he approached the dead body, he noticed that her dress was pulled up and her underwear was torn and pulled down, soaked in blood and urine, and a cord was dug, snug and deep into the tender flesh of her neck.

Newt left as quickly as he could and called Leo Frank for nearly 10 minutes straight, but there was no answer. Finally, giving up on ringing Frank, Newt Lee called the police station at 3:28 AM and one of the biggest scandals of the early 20th century began to unfold.

who had been at the shuttered factory that day. Frank resisted going with the police when they arrived because he wanted some coffee and breakfast. He was very nervous, pale, trembling, fumbling with himself and was hung over badly with a hoarse voice. He fired questions at the police so quickly they didn't have a chance to answer.

Newt Lee

The Police and Detectives were on the scene within minutes and were let in by Newt Lee who waited by the front door for them to arrive, and they went down the hatchway, descended the diagonal ladder with lanterns and flash lights, beginning their investigation. They noticed drag marks from the front of the elevator that lead all the way to the cinder/saw dust pile in front of the furnace. They had to pull down a stocking to confirm the girl was White, because she had been dragged in the dirty floor. They immediately contacted Leo M. Frank because he was a senior level manager

After questioning him and numerous other people, evidence seemed to conclusively point in the direction of Leo M. Frank. Two days later, on the morning of Tuesday, April 29, 1913, Frank was arrested, detained, and later indicted. The official murder investigation wasted no time. The coroner's inquest began shortly after nine o'clock on Wednesday, the 30th day of April. The impaneled Jury hearing the testimony consisted of 7 men in total, 6 inquest Jurymen and the Coroner.

Concerning his alibi, Frank said he had forgotten for the first week of the murder investigation to bring forward Lemmie A Quinn, foreman of the metal room, a key witness. At the Coroner's Inquest, Quinn came forward to provide suspicious and contrived testimony. Coroner Paul Donehoo and his Inquest Jury impaneled & questioned over 100 employees and dozens of other associated people. The week long inquest and testimony provided left very strong suspicion on Frank when Thursday, May 8th 1913, the Mary Phagan Inquest drew to a close.

The Coroner and his Inquest Jury of six men voted unanimously 7 to 0 recommending Leo M. Frank be turned over to, and investigated by a Grand Jury of 23 men which included 5 jews. Newt Lee was ordered to be held as a material witness. Deputy Plennie Minor delivered the unanimous verdict of the Coroner's Inquest Jury to Leo M. Frank who was being held in the infamous Tower. Frank was sitting browsing a local newspaper at the time. Deputy Plennie Minor approached Leo Frank and told him about the unanimous verdict, which had ordered that he and Lee be held for an investigation by the Grand Jury! Newt Lee slumped his head, and Frank insolently replied that it was no more than he had expected.

Two hundred factory workers and affiliated witnesses were subpoenaed by the Grand Jury. On May 24th 1913, the day the Grand Jury of twenty three men were to vote, after an exhaustive review of testimony and evidence concerning Leo M. Frank, two Grand Jurors were not present which meant that only a majority of 11 instead of 12 votes were necessary to indict. In a result that set a powerful tone for the future of the trial, the Grand Jury voted unanimously 21 to 0 in favor of indicting Leo M. Frank for the murder of little Mary Phagan.

FRANK GUILTY

LEO M. FRANK

LONGEST AND MOST BITTERLY FOUGHT CASE IN HISTORY OF GEORGIA ENDS WHEN JURY BRINGS IN VERDICT "GUILTY"

"Guilty."

That is the verdict in the case of the state versus Leo M. Frank.

The jury, which heard the evidence in the south's most sensational murder mystery, has decided that Frank, the superintendent of the National Pencil factory, where little Mary Phagan, an employee, was found murdered, on the morning of April 26, is guilty of the crime.

The verdict comes at the end of the longest trial in the criminal history of Georgia. For ~~any~~ four weeks the jury had heard evidence, presented by both sides. Several hundred witnesses were examined and when the evidence was all in, able arguments, summing up the case, were made by the south's most brilliant lawyers. The case went to the jury and the verdict of guilty has been returned. That the case will be immediately appealed is beyond all doubt. In fact Frank's able attorneys, Luther Z. Rosser, and Reuben R. Arnold, noted many objections while the trial was in progress, chief of which was the admission of the attack on Frank's character made by the negro, Jim Conley. This no doubt will furnish one of the grounds for appeal.

~~the verdict comes~~ as a shock to Frank and his friends, the fight for his life has just begun. Those who have stood by the man adjudged guilty of Mary Phagan's death still believe in his innocence, and they will leave no stone unturned to upset the verdict by an appeal to the higher courts.

HERE ARE TWELVE MEN WHO TRIED FRANK

With four Jews voting unanimously with seventeen other Gentile men to Indict Leo M. Frank, it put serious doubts about the Jewish Communities historical and contemporary race hate claims that the Leo M. Frank Case was a vast anti-Jewish and anti-Semitic conspiracy. Twenty one Jurymen unanimously signed the indictment requiring Leo M. Frank to be held and reviewed by trial with a cohort of 13 men, a Judge and a petite Jury of 12 men.

Leo Frank's conviction inspired the formation of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, a Jewish espionage and spy agency masquerading as a civil rights organization, one which has been working to undermine and destroy White countries through political and legal manipulation.

Immediately following the Leo M. Frank murder trial, Frank's defense team requested a new trial. The presiding judge Leonard S. Roan denied the appeal. Another motion for a new trial was denied by the Georgia Supreme Court in February 1914 after much review. Judge Leonard S.

ANTI-DEFAMATION LEAGUE

For a number of years a tendency has manifested itself in American life toward the caricaturing and defaming of Jews on the stage, in novels, periodicals, and on the unthinking public has been to create an untrue and injurious impression of an entire people and to expose them to undeserved contempt and ridicule. The caricatures center around some idiosyncrasy of the few which, by the thoughtless public, is often taken as a general characteristic of the entire people.

The evidence of prejudice and discrimination has been abundant, both in social and in business circles, as well as in public life. All fair-minded citizens must regret the growth of this un-American sentiment. The prejudice thus displayed by no means reflects the attitude of the masses, but is limited to an ignorant, unreasoning and bigoted minority. For many years the Jewish and non-Jewish citizens have failed to meet this tendency by any means save quiet criticism. But the tide has been rising until it calls for organized effort to stem it.

Regrettably as it is, this condition has gone so far as to manifest itself recently in an attempt to influence courts of law where a Jew happened to be involved in a little difficulty, and by itself, while contemptible, would not constitute a menace, but forming as it does but one incident in a continuing chain of occasions of discrimination, demands organized and systematic effort on behalf of all right-thinking Americans to put a stop to this most pernicious and un-American tendency. Prejudice is the spirit of ignorance. It knows no bounds, respects no individuals, and violates the most sacred tenets of our democracy.

With the help of the B'nai B'rith and Jewish citizens will be received in the office of fair play for all people, the ANTI-DEFAMATION LEAGUE OF AMERICA has been formed, and is a member of the Order of B'nai B'rith.

OBJECT: The immediate object of the League is to stop, by appeals to reason and conscience, and if necessary, by appeals to law, the defamation of the Jewish people. Its ultimate purpose is to secure justice and fair treatment to all citizens alike and to put an end forever to what is known as "Jew-baiting" and any act or body of citizens.

ORGANIZATION: Any reasonable person, regardless of race or color, may become a member by signing a membership card. No membership fee nor dues shall be charged. A central office has been created in the City of Chicago, with a committee office force. All communications & complaints should be addressed to Mr. Sigmond Livingston, 722 First National Bank Bldg., Chicago, Illinois.

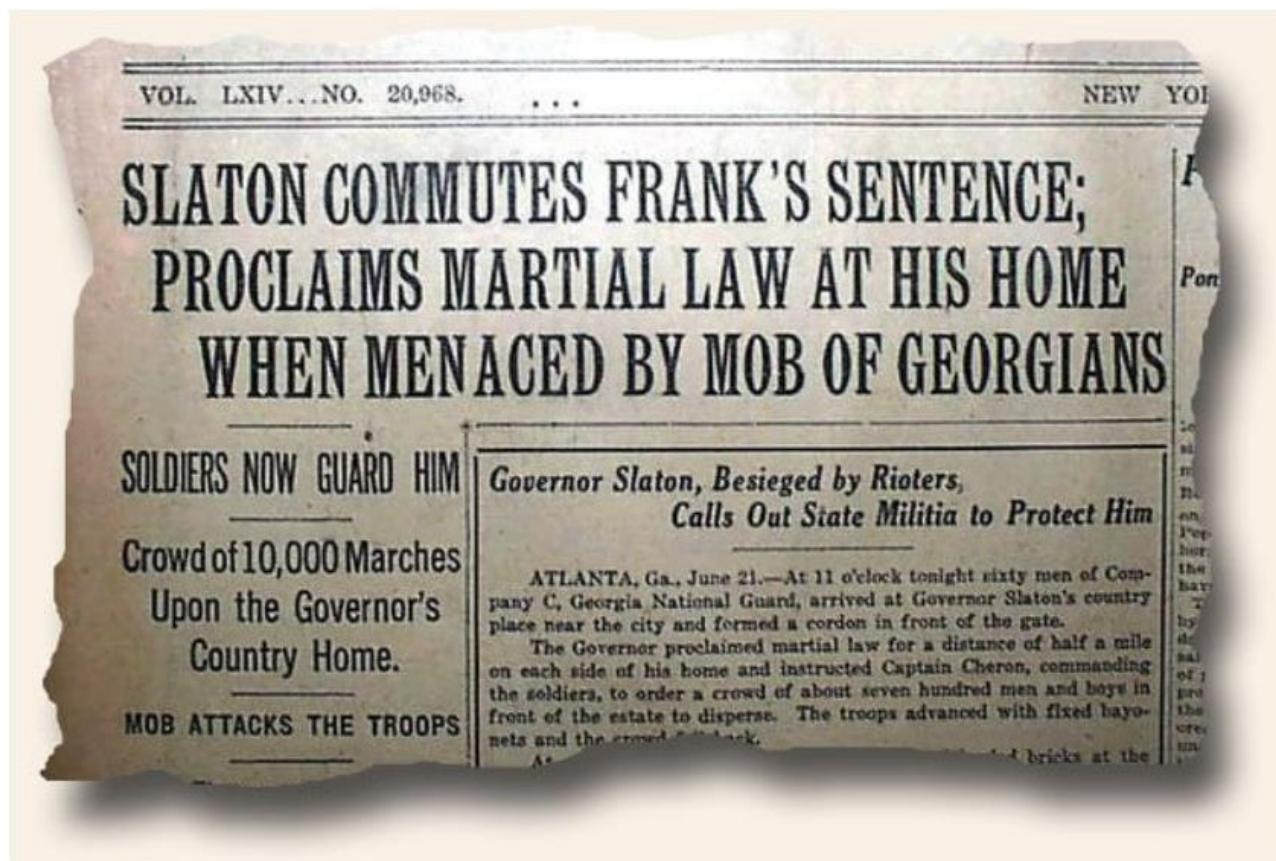

Stage plays may be defamed by the efforts of the actors and co-operators of the producers and managers of the theaters, so that imitation of proposed performances may be made before the stages, and that the public may be informed of any harm is done. If the co-operation of these in authority cannot be secured, then the patrons of the theater will be enlisted for active co-operation.

Newspaper and magazine defamations will be met by protest to the editor, by correcting all defamations through subsequent articles upon the subject matter, thereby reaching the same reading public and correcting errors; and in case of wilful abuse, by appealing to the persons affected for compensation.

Defamation in textbooks which pervert the minds of children and tend to prejudice, will be met by attempts to eliminate them from the course of study.

Roan, finally sentenced Leo M. Frank to be hanged on his birthday April 17th 1913, putting infinite doubt on the suggestion of the Jewish community's and Frank defense's statements and forged documents, that Judge Leonard Roan had doubted the verdict.

With no more court appeal options left for Leo Frank and the Prison Commission denying his request for clemency, there was only one more option, a commutation by the corrupt Governor of Georgia, John M. Slaton. Frank applied to Governor John M. Slaton for Executive Clemency. On June 21, 1915, just six days before Nathaniel Edwin Harris, the newly elected governor, was to take office, and one day before Frank was scheduled to hang (June 22 1915), Slaton commuted Frank's death sentence to life in prison. (Paid off)

There was so much outrage and fury by the public, that in order to protect Leo Frank, he was transferred from Fulton Tower in Atlanta to the prison farm outside Milledgeville. On 17 July 1915, Frank was attacked by a fellow convict named William Creen, who cut his throat with a 7-inch butcher knife. Leo Frank lingered between life and death for several weeks, but slowly recovered.

THE LYNCHING OF LEO FRANK

The Lynching of Leo Frank occurred on the morning of August 17, 1915, 7:17 AM at Frey's Gin in Cobb County, in Marietta, Georgia.

The lynching was the final culmination of the July 28 to August 21, 1913 Trial of Leo Frank leading to his August 25, 1913 conviction for the murder of Mary Phagan and a two year long failed appeals process that followed.

On August 16, 1915, at 11:00 PM, in one of the most audacious prison breaks in U.S. history, a group of elite men who called themselves 'The Knights of Mary Phagan' (the founding fathers of the second incarnation of the KKK), calmly stormed into the Milledgeville Prison Farm, wearing hats and motorcycle goggles. Without firing a single gunshot, they overpowered the guards and prison Warden, handcuffing them to their chairs, and then temporarily took control of the prison facility.

After a cursory search in the prison barracks, they abducted Leo Frank, and escorted him to a group of parked Model-T Fords that had kept their engines running. In a conga line of cars, they drove Leo Frank all through the night cruising at 18 miles an hour to their final designated spot about 175 miles away, to Marietta in Cobb County, Georgia.

At the crack of dawn on August 17, 1915, they retrieved a long 3/4 inch manilla rope, formed a proper hang man's noose on one end of it, and threw it over a thick branch of a mature oak tree. They placed the noose around Leo Frank's neck, and then adjusted it snugly on the right side of his head. The two men standing on either side of Leo Frank carefully hoisted him on top of a small table and held him steady.

Judge Newton Morris read out loud to Leo M. Frank and all present to clearly hear, the official sentence of Judge Leonard Stickland Roan, the order that had been issued 2 years prior on August 26, 1913. The two men on either side of Leo Frank stepped away and the table Leo M. Frank was standing on was kicked away. As Leo M. Frank fell to the ground, the rope became taut and the vertebrae in his neck snapped. His head twisted 180 degrees behind his body and he died instantly.

Frank said he was not familiar with the name Mary Phagan and would need to check his payroll book. The detectives took Frank to the morgue to see Phagan's body and then to the factory, where Frank viewed the crime scene and walked the police through the entire building. Marvin article reporting on pedophilia ring in Israeli intelligence apparatus pedophilia materials online along with at least two others serving in the IDF. One of his co-conspirators served in the defense ministry and the other served in an intelligence capacity, probably in AMAN.

The two younger defendants have been released, but the older intelligence officer has not. When the court ruled he should be released the police appealed the decision and his detention has been extended till the appeal is heard.

Marvin includes a dubious claim from the police that they take an active role in pursuing sex crimes like these. That's dubious considering how many senior Israeli police commanders have themselves been accused of sexually harassing their female subordinates.

New York Times: Israel Blackmails Pedophile Congressmen

AUGUST 31, 2017

Baxter Dmitry — A New York Times article claims that high-ranking Congressmen and other Washington D.C. politicians are pedophiles who employ the services of child prostitutes. The article also states that the pedophile politicians' sex secrets have been sold to foreign governments including Israel.

The article was published at a time when the New York Times was a real news organization rather than the D.C. swamp's PR department and provided evidence from an investigator who worked for the New York State Senate's Select Committee on Crime.

It is often said that the reason why no one in authority will investigate pedophilia among the elite is because many politicians, including those in D.C., are pedophiles, and these pedophile politicians are blackmailed by powerful intelligence groups, domestic and foreign – including Israel's Mossad – who have "the goods" on their child-sex activities.

The New York Times article from 1982 proves that this situation is nothing new. It has been going on for decades. The difference is that now the mainstream media won't dare report on it, and will go out of their way to "debunk" anybody who dares to report the truth.

OUR HISTORY AND WHO WE ARE

Bronfman Rothschild Wealth Advisors began in 1997 as Virchow Krause Wealth Management. After being rebranded as Baker Tilly Investment Advisors in 2009, the firm was then purchased by Matthew Bronfman and the E.L. Rothschild family in 2013. Though the family association is recent, it reflects a shared belief with our advisors in steady, disciplined guidance for clients. Their leadership offers an example of stable, long-term financial success.

Now based in Rockville, Maryland, we have grown to offer 10 offices throughout the East Coast and Midwest but still consider our core mission to be cultivating a trust-based relationship with every client at every turn.

Looks like the Bronfmans and the Rothschilds are thick as thieves.

There's probably a lot more to dig on this, but NXIVM might damn them both.

I was there to look at the Podesta emails from their release, and before "pizzagate" it was called "spirit cooking" because we discovered the Clintons and Podestas hosting "Art exhibit parties" with Abramovich before we deciphered the codewords.

This is a fake Comet webpage. They throw up fakes every so often, like when they talk about "adrenochrome".

Here is the real Comet webpage with all the downloads. Don't know if anyone ever got it hacked.

The history of the Pegasus Museum is a controversial and disputed topic. According to some sources, the Pegasus Museum is a mysterious building located in Washington D.C. that is owned by James Alefantis, the owner of Comet Ping Pong and Comet Pizza, two restaurants that have been linked to the conspiracy theory known as Pizzagate12345.

Some Pizzagate researchers claim that the Pegasus Museum is a site of child abuse, human trafficking, and ritual murder, and that Alefantis has posted disturbing images and messages on his Instagram account (@jimmycomet) that refer to a "kill room" inside the museum²⁵. They also claim that Alefantis has threatened and harassed anyone who tries to investigate the museum or expose his alleged crimes³.

However, other sources dispute these claims and argue that the Pegasus Museum does not exist, or that it is not owned by Alefantis, or that it is not related to any criminal activity. They point out that there is no evidence of a museum at the address given by the Pizzagate researchers (3518 11th St. NW in Washington, D.C.), and that the only indication of its existence are Pizzagate websites and videos^{1 [6][6]}. They also accuse the Pizzagate researchers of spreading false and harmful rumors, and of harassing and endangering Alefantis and his employees^{[7][7] [8][8]}.

This actress is not just someone you have never heard of. This actress is a B- list actress who has done movies and television. She was on a huge hit for an almost network. Anyway, the actress ended up meeting this guy, and despite him already sleeping with several women each day, she fell in love with him. Now, she is one of the several women he sleeps with everyday. The problem is the guy just doesn't love women, he also loves teens. As in underage teens. As in 16 and 17 year old teens and the actress knows about it, but refuses to leave him despite this. She also refuses to leave him despite his insistence that the couple have threesomes as much as possible. Our actress defends the actions of her boyfriend and thinks that people who don't understand him or his needs, are just wrong. The crazy thing is, our actress has got her best friend, a foreign born B+ list movie and television actress from the same show also thinking this guy is incredible. No word on whether the pair were involved in a threesome with the boyfriend since our second actress claims to have a boyfriend, but if they did, Comic-Con probably would have exploded. Oh, and I'm about to give you your favorite words. This will be revealed.

September 5, 2018

I have written about this very rich somewhat infamous celebrity who has to this point somehow avoided being arrested. I wrote how she was in the middle of a sex trafficking ring smuggling children from other countries who were used for sex and house sex slaves. In a recent communiqué while I was pressing her for details on what she is most infamous for, she let slip that she has three of these underage females under her own roof and is molding them in the way her leader would appreciate. I took that to mean she and her significant other are using them for sex.

Everyone knows that the billionaire used people to get what he wanted. He especially liked finding European royalty and having them compromised or owing him a favor. There is also the question of how he got his first big stake of money. Prior to the Ponzi scheme embezzlement, where did he get his first big chunk of cash to make himself look good. He found an actress who is also royalty in the loosest term possible. They had a torrid romance before he decided she could make better use of her skills as an actress with a man who had a lot of money. The man did have a lot of money, but it was from very ill gotten gains. The billionaire loved that because it would keep everyone quiet. Even though the bad stuff was happening in the US, the men behind it all stayed primarily in Europe which allowed the billionaire to come into contact with that man who ultimately would be his guide. Here is a very interesting question. The man who had the ill gotten gains was busted by a tip. Did the billionaire give the tip to avoid getting ensnared? Is the billionaire the father of a child of the actress? The same child who has made headlines several times over the past few years.

Blind Items Revealed #40

February 2, 2018

We need to go back in time about 18 months or so. You have an up and coming expert who has been getting tip after tip about a group of men who are involved in a child sex ring. Yes, the same ring that produces thousands and thousands of photos for sale on the dark web. Yes, the same people that took all the photos that Mark Salling had in his possession when he was arrested a day or two prior to 2016.

There was a lot happening in 2016. It was a very big year. People on both sides of the aisle were throwing money everywhere to make problems disappear or appear. One of the things that happened when Salling got arrested, were the questions. Where does someone get 50,000 images of kids? Most of these 50,000 images and videos had not been seen in other arrests. These were not the ones you were scooping up off 4chan. Many of the 50,000 were recent. Very recent.

One person, who along with her NGO, was asked by the FBI to see if they could help track down any of the victims or locations. This person started asking around. As they were asking around, they were also leaving detailed notes they were backing up every single day. Not just in one place either. They were leaving the USB drives everywhere. At one point, the investigation led to this B-list actress/entertainer who comes from an acting family. This actress had been with some men, including an actor who enjoys sleeping with men and women who bragged about the trove of kids they had access to for child porn. They named some names. Those names were not names known to the actress but she wanted to pass them along. So, she got in touch with the investigator who she had known for a long time and possibly could help with all of this. Within a month, the actress was dead. The actress was easy to kill. Her body was failing anyway. All she needed was a little push.

Our investigator decided to go to the location where the people named by the actress were located. The investigator kept backing up information and even though was out of the country, sent it to various family members for them to back up on the USB drives the investigator had been using. Shortly after the investigator began seriously digging around and asking questions, she was killed.

Fast forward a few months. This A-list singer has been in touch with a woman who says that one of the last things the investigator wrote was related to the singer. This woman has no idea what half the stuff on the USB drive has to do with anything, but would the singer be interested. The woman is in the town where the investigator was living prior to her trip and death. Yes, the singer would be interested and is going to be in that town in a couple of weeks and they can get together. A few days before the singer arrives in town, he is killed.

Investigator: Monica Peterson (Assistant Director at the Human Trafficking Center in Colorado, died in November of 2016 while doing research on child trafficking in Haiti)

How Catherine Oxenberg learned her daughter had been branded by Nxivm

By Ruth Brown

Published Aug. 6, 2018, 1:09 p.m. ET

Catherine and India Oxenberg

Catherine Oxenberg knew her daughter was in trouble — but she had no idea it was this bad.

The "Dynasty" star's 25-year-old daughter, India, had lost so much weight that she had stopped having periods, her hair was falling out and her entire life had become consumed by a cult-like self-help group called Nxivm.

Then, in May of last year, Oxenberg learned that India had joined a group of "slaves" ruled by Nxivm leader Keith Raniere and his sidekick, "Smallville" actress Allison Mack.

She was further shocked to find out her daughter had been branded with their initials like an animal.

"A friend called to warn me that India was involved in a secret master-slave sorority in which women were put on a starvation diet and, in a secret ceremony, held down naked and branded on the pubic region with a searing-hot cauterizing iron — like cattle," Oxenberg writes in her new tell-all, "Captives."

"I prayed my sweet daughter had not gone so far as to allow someone to barbarically mutilate and torture her, but I feared the worst."

A few weeks later, she says, she put it to her daughter.

"India ... have you been branded?" Oxenberg recalls asking in the new tome, which documents her efforts to extract her daughter from the upstate group.

This is Kathryn Bolkovac

In 1999, police woman Kathryn Bolkovac was hired by the private military contractor DynCorp, to go to Bosnia as part of a United Nations peace keeping mission.

While Kathryn was there though, she became aware that both UN and DynCorp officials were actually involved in a massive child sex trafficking ring, where victims were being forcefully prostituted, raped, and murdered.

When Kathryn tried to expose these horrific crimes, she was bullied, censored, silenced, and eventually fired. High level officials were involved in the cover up.

Refusing to back down, and because Kathryn kept meticulous records of everything she did, she took DynCorp to court for wrongful termination due to whistleblowing and won her case. In 2015, she was nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize.

To this day, due to loopholes in the law, the UN and DynCorp have never been held accountable for these crimes against humanity. In fact, the UN continues to work with DynCorp, as does the U.S. Government, along with other governments around the world.

Kathryn's uncompromising integrity in the face of injustice shows us that one person can take on this sick system & win, but in order for there to be true justice and accountability that leads to long lasting positive change, we must all embody Kathryn's spirit, and not back down in the face of injustice, but stand together and say enough is enough!

Let us honor this great woman's courage and integrity and help spread her story!

Quick Rundown

Natacha Jaitt

Natacha Jaitt was an Argentine adult model, pornographic actress, TV and radio host. In 2018 she accused Gustavo Vera, a long-time close friend of pope Francis, of human sex trafficking and pedophilia.

Following this she tweeted the following (translated):

"I'm not going to kill myself, I'm not going to overdose or drown in a bathtub, I'm not going to shoot myself, so if any of this happens, IT WASN'T ME. Save this tweet."

In 2019, two weeks before testifying against Vera, she was found dead in a hotel room. It is claimed that she died of a drug overdose.

Journalists involved with Vera celebrated her death. Her naked, dead body was displayed all over Argentinian media, as a trophy and warning to others.

Queen Elizabeth & her husband, Prince Phillip, were found guilty

In the second week of May 2014, British soldier Vivian Cunningham was drugged and institutionalized against his will. Apparently, his "crime" on May 6 was daring to ask superiors about Queen Elizabeth's outstanding arrest warrant.

The order to arrest Queen Elizabeth was issued in 2013 by six judges of the International Common Law Court of Justice in Brussels.

After nearly a year of litigation, Queen Elizabeth and her husband, Prince Phillip, were found guilty in the disappearance of ten native children from the Catholic-run Kamloops residential school in British Columbia. Grieving parents haven't seen their children since they left for a picnic with the Royal couple on Oct. 10 1964.

The 8 Genders of the Talmud

BY LEAH FALK

But what if we told you that the foundation for all this was wrong? That Judaism recognized not two, but as many as eight genders? The Mishnah describes half a dozen categories that are between male and female, such as saris or ailonit – the terms refer to an non-reproductive version of the male or female body, respectively – and categories that refer to ambiguous or indeterminate gender.

your daily reminder trans was only supported by the medical field because it's more lucrative to take your money for hormones and surgeries than it is to treat your mental illness. nobody sees you as what you want to be. you are a joke. society humors you because nobody actually cares about you. have a nice day.

>>244150646 Transgenderism, much like homosexuality, is pushed upon the lower classes by the ruling class as a way to destabilize them and subvert them. Transgenderism is even better than homosexuality in this regard because transgenders are the perfect consumers that turn their daily life into a pay to play service via all the medical bullshit they have to consume for the remainder of their lives. It also removes moderately successful and motivated lower and middle class people from the gene pool, assuring that the next generation will be weaker and less likely to resist the establishment.

Think about what transgenderism truly is: it's eugenics. When you remove your reproductive parts, you are no longer able to make offspring. This means you can't pass on generational wealth to your non-existent kids. And best of all, it's irreversible. A gay man or woman can always hook up with a member of the opposite sex and stop being a non-reproductive homosexual, but if you sabotage your body with hormone therapy or cut off your dick that is never coming back.

Today transgenders are .5% of the population, but you will see it rise to 10% or more in your life time as it becomes normalized. Just allowing it, normalizes it. When your son sees the transgender sports star, or when your daughter sees the successful transgender movie star, when transgenders become symbols of power because they are made generals in the military or are constantly being interviewed for their hot take on the TV as ceos, your children will innately want to become them, thus ending your genetic line and further normalizing it as they become a larger % of the population.

That's why the corporations love transgenders. It's about destroying the last vestiges of wealth and community in the old middle class. Thats why they push it, and why they will never stop pushing it.

Imagine this: A Capitalist gets a Socialist to convince random mentally ill people that they are transmies by giving them the most secure and safe environment to adopt that identity without any challenge to their conviction whatsoever which would at least lead to organic self-assurance establishment and self-actualization. The tranny then proceeds to waste inordinate amounts of money, whether personal, family money, inheritance, burger flipping, or gofundme donation whoring by tranny/faggots, on surgery, corrective surgery, medicine, painkillers, antidepressants, some of these things are lifetime.

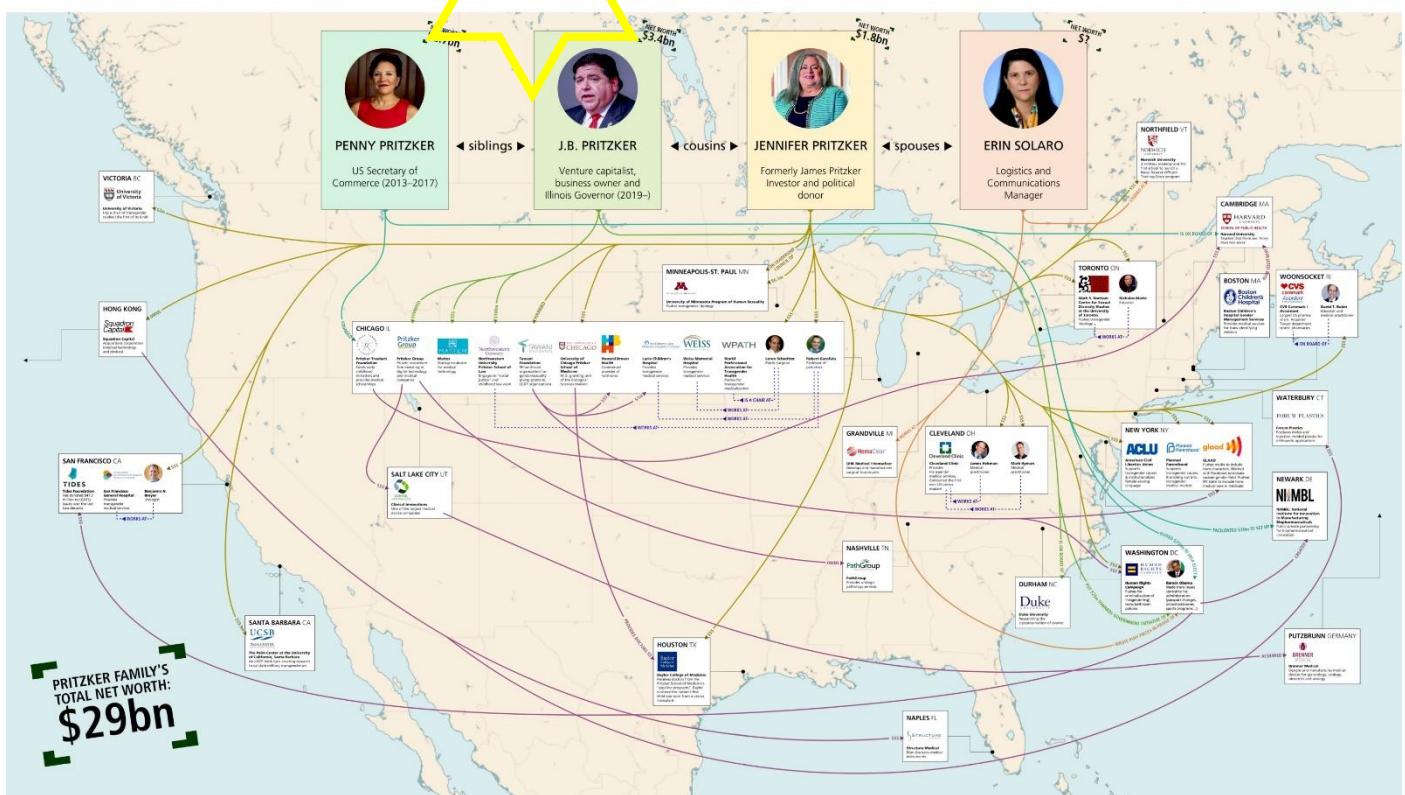

> Trans-tech is a budding industry with an enormous opportunity. RKA claims "Our estimates place the average cost of transition at $150,000 per person. Multiply that by an estimated population of 1.4 million transgender people, we're taking about a market in excess of $200B. That is significant. That's larger than the entire film industry.

After the tranny/faggot is squeezed of all their money by the Capitalist, helped by their lack of challenge to their conviction, the absent organic process of self-actualization blows back into regret and misery of what they've done to themselves in the aftermath in a moment of clarity. They then suicide, which is perfect for Socialist as their death becomes a grift statistic to exploit.

The final masterful genius touch is Capitalists getting the Socialists to force the State to steal money from taxpayers to establish a welfare fund for tranny/faggots and their lifetimes meds and surgeries, to ensure that there is not a single tranny/faggot who can't afford it, which translates to 100% assured monetary flow into Capitalist hands of pharma and surgery clinics and even makeup and fashion industry.

It's glorious. It's harmony between Capitalism and Socialism, with the later fueling the former.

'Empty shelves with absolutely no books': Students, parents question school board's library weeding process

Books published in 2008 or earlier removed from school library amid confusion around new equity-based process

Grade 10 student Reina Takata took this photo of the bookshelves in her Mississauga high school's library in her first week back to school this fall. Takata and others are concerned about a seemingly inconsistent approach to a new equity-based book weeding process implemented by the Peel District School Board last spring. (Reina Takata)

Below are several quotes that flesh out Unwin's conclusions.

"If the British anthropologist J. D. Unwin is correct in his assessment of society, this present generation in the Western world may be the last one. In his book, Sex and Culture, professor Unwin studied eighty 'uncivilized' cultures and compared his results with sixteen 'civilized' cultures extending over the last 4,000 years. He found that when strict heterosexual monogamy was practiced, the society attained its greatest cultural energy, especially in the arts, sciences and technology. But as people rebelled against the prohibitions placed upon them and demanded more sexual opportunities, there was a consequent loss of their creative energy, which resulted in the decline and eventual destruction of the civilization. Remarkably, he did not find any exception to this trend."

"Unwin concluded that the fabric that holds a society together is sexual in nature. When life-long heterosexual monogamous relationship is practiced, the focus is on the nurture of the family and energy is expended to protect, plan for, and build up the individual family unit. This extends to the entire society and produces a strong society focused on preserving the strength of the family. However, he found that when sexual opportunities opened the door to pre-marital, post-marital, and homosexual relationships, the social energy always dissipated as the individual focused more on self-gratification rather than societal good."

"Borders are just imaginary lines that don't exist in nature."

Nature:

WHY IS AFRICA POOR? Let's see what liberal academics say:

Nicholas Kristof, from The New York Times

a hodgepodge of ethnic groups within borders drawn arbitrarily by colonial rulers are still struggling to adjust to modern nationhood. Such instability has always been fatal to economic development

Johnson Olaosebikan Aremu, University of Ado-Ekiti

Conflicts in Africa may be said to have been caused by a multiplicity of factors such as: arbitrary borders created by the colonial powers, heterogeneous ethnic composition of African states...

Refugee problem: One of the attendant effects of wars and conflicts in Africa is the emergence of numerous number of displaced persons who have become refugee in different nations across the continent the borders of ex-colonial countries are arbitrary, cutting across tribal or ethnic or religious borders, leaving a legacy of unresolved and probably irresolvable disputes.

Dainess Maganda, in Language and Literature political instability due to ethnic conflict, illiteracy, chronic poverty, disease, and hunger. Most importantly the authors identify the principal cause of this instability in the arbitrary borders that Europe forced upon the African states that were irrelevant to the socio-political economic and cultural traditions of the local people

Max Fisher, from The Atlantic Monthly

Europe's arbitrary post-colonial borders left Africans bunched into countries that don't represent their heritage, a contradiction that still troubles them today.

David Bigman, in Poverty, Hunger and Democracy in Africa

the problems created by the arbitrarily drawn colonial borders now came into the open often resulting in border disputes between tribes that escalated into disputes between countries, violent conflicts, and wars

James Fenske, Yale University

Many of Africa's borders were set arbitrarily during the Berlin Conference of 1884-5. Alesina et al. (2006) demonstrate that "artificial" states – those with straight-line borders and particularly those for which major ethnic groups are split along multiple countries – have lower GDP per capita today. Englebert et al. (2002) find that borders that divide African ethnic groups, regardless of their pre-colonial state centralization, are more likely to lead to international disputes. The same is true of straight-line borders, though inclusion

Adesola Adeyemo, University of San Francisco

Cultural and ethnic diversity is undeniably one of the reasons why many African nations are failed states today. Most if not all African nation has experienced some form of cultural clash that has led to ongoing conflicts and xenophobia which in return has stumped economic and political changes.

Alberto Alesina, William Easterly, and Janina Matuszeski, Harvard University

Artificial states are those in which political borders do not coincide with a division of nationalities desired by the people on the ground. Former colonizers or post war agreement amongst winners regarding borders have often created monstrosities in which ethnic or religious or linguistic groups were thrown together or separated without any respect for peoples' aspirations. Eighty per cent of African borders follow latitudinal and longitudinal lines and many scholars believe that such artificial (unnatural) borders which create ethnically fragmented countries or, conversely, separate into bordering countries the same people, are at the roots of Africa's economic tragedy.¹

Saadia Touval in International Organization

the mass incorporation of the diverse cultures under a 'United States of Africa' will provoke one of the most gruesome ethnic/cultural genocides the world would have ever witnessed

According to them, the problem is TOO MUCH DIVERSITY poverty and conflict are the result when people of different cultures, races, and languages are forced to live together

BEFORE DIVERSITY

AFTER DIVERSITY

How Police have to

This anon gets it.

The biggest financial happening of our time since the Great Depression is literally on the doorstep. The treasury yield curve inversion has preceded every recession, but this one will be different thanks to trillions of QE.

The key through all of this will be smart investing as passives will take a major dive thanks to overweight allocations of bubble stocks and FANGs.

The issue is that the Fed tried to reverse the quantitative easing by quantitative tightening the last few years by raising rates. We have been at ‘emergency’ low rates for over a decade to stave off the effects of 2008.

A couple of rate rises by the Fed and QT has stemmed of liquidity of the dollar. Countries have been shoring up for safety in the strong dollar, and there’s not enough of the reserve currency.

Preparation should have already started. Short dated treasuries have risen with the strong dollar, and was the first port of call to invest in.

Gold, PMs and miners were at lows last year and have since taken off this year as investors can smell what’s coming. Silver is still massively undervalued however so there is still opportunities to factor in a defensive investment portfolio.

In regards to stocks, individual investing and funds will be key. What does governments do in a recession? Invest in infrastructure. Green energy, agriculture, telecommunications, medical, military and transport. What do people do? Drink, smoke and gamble.

All these areas have fallen out of favour to tech/FANG stocks and big high dividend paying blue chip companies have been at recent lows. Zombie companies have been relying on cheap debt and share buy backs for too long.

Having an allocation of cash is good for investment opportunities in the downturn. Long term solely in cash is not where you want to be. The Fed is now going full steam ahead into QE, but it’ll be too late. The Fed wants inflation and it will get it.

I understand that central banks have been demonized and the great conspiracy centers around their ability to create money. Creating money is not really the issue for the amount they have created is peanuts compared to the continued debt created by politicians. Congress just created $1 trillion-plus in December 2015 and nobody noticed.

We need central banks as a clearing mechanism and to maintain reserves of member banks. The problem is that central banks are not all created the same. Jackson destroyed the Bank of the United States, which did not engage in quantitative easing and had no such power to create elastic money. They simply lent money to Jackson's opponents. The destruction of the central bank resulted in the Panic of 1837 and the sovereign defaults of the states during the 1840s that occurred after the states had issued debt in an attempt to bailout state banks that went nuts without a central bank to control anything.

This constant attack on central banks is really hiding what the problem truly is — government. When the Fed was created, it "stimulated" the economy by purchasing corporate paper. The Fed was NEVER intended to buy government bonds. The politicians did that for World War I and never returned it to its purpose. Then FDR grabbed it and ordered the Fed to buy government bonds at PAR, which was not removed until 1951.

The problem is always politicians. We need to ELIMINATE public debt and outlaw the federal government from borrowing since it never pays anything back. The Fed's ability to create money to help the economy in a crisis was limited by its design to buy short-term corporate paper. The private sector has to pay its debts. So the right to "create" temporary money made sense for it was eliminated when the corporate paper was redeemed. This was short-term paper.

Even today, the Fed has all this government debt it bought under quantitative easing. It too will be reversed, but they bought long-term debt. That increase in the money supply will contract upon expiration of the debt. Technically, debt is repaid once it expires, and the money created by the Fed vanishes. That is still elastic money.

Eliminating the central banks will not save our future. That would push us over the edge as Jackson did. We need to eliminate government debt and return the Fed to its original design and knock off this manipulation of the Fed for political gain.

Make no mistake about it: the Fed stating interest rates MUST be normalized is not going to help fiscal policy. This is now a war over integrity and we should stop bashing the Fed and start yelling at the real culprits.

As far as when the central banks will come to an end from a clearing perspective — hopefully never. As a government tool to manipulate society, their days are numbered and 2020 looks like a good place to start. If the debt collapses, then the central banks can return to their original function. Those who want to shut down the Federal Reserve would only destroy the economy exactly as Andrew Jackson did.

Congress gets to blame the Fed for inflation because the definition is an increase in money supply, which is the Fed's job. Meanwhile, Congress relieves itself of any responsibility for inflation and fiscal management. Everyone focuses on the Fed and not on the fact that Congress creates the bulk of the money by debt.

It's a blame game that relieves Congress of any responsibility. They get to hold hearings and interrogate everyone except themselves. They tell everyone to blame the Fed and they run for office and promise the moon. The Fed is nothing like what it was supposed to be. The elastic money was to allow it to stimulate buying corporate paper that was at least repaid. Once that became government paper, the game was changed. Roosevelt even confiscated the gold from the Fed in 1933 just like all other banks.

So it works. So many people hate the Fed, but they do not look at who really creates the bulk of the money – CONGRESS. It is very naive to think that shutting down the Fed that would solve everything. The problem runs much deeper.

https://www.armstrongeconomics.com/international-news/north_america/americas-current-economy/fed-v-treasurycongress/

The Treasury issues debt, not the Fed. The Fed in quantitative easing did buy in debt and issued money, but they are not the issuer of debt – that would be the politicians' and the Treasury's side of the fiscal balance sheet. These days everyone blames the Fed, yet no one attributes the crisis to the political process.

Here is the investment thesis for gold:

Observation #1: The US government can't repay its debt. Default is inevitable.

Observation #2: It will not be an explicit default.

Observation #3: The debt will continue to grow at an accelerating pace.

Observation #4: Foreigners are not buying as many Treasuries.

Observation #5: The US government cannot allow interest rates to rise much further.

Observation #6: The Federal Reserve is the only big buyer of Treasuries stepping up, which means currency debasement.

Observation #7: The US government will use financial repression to debase the currency in a controlled fashion, though it could spiral into out-of-control inflation.

Observation #8: Treasuries will no longer be the "go-to" store-of-value asset as people look for alternatives.

Observation #9: Gold is the top store-of-value alternative to Treasuries. As demand for Treasuries falls, demand for gold will soar.

In short, we are on the verge of a paradigm shift in international finance as gold replaces Treasuries as the world's premier store-of-value asset.

The last time the international monetary system experienced a paradigm shift of this magnitude was in 1971. Then, gold skyrocketed from $35 per ounce to $850 in 1980 — a gain of over 2,300% or more than 24x.

I expect the percentage rise in the price of gold to be at least as significant as it was during the last paradigm shift.

Physical Gold prices closed 6% above NY/London last night in China; China is the largest producer & consumer of Gold in the world. This large premium means Gold will flow to BRICS + OPEC. The highest premium ever is being paid 3 weeks after OPEC joined Brics; the odds that China is playing their "Gold card" has increased significantly, in our opinion.

It is total BS to pretend that these guys manipulated the entire market. That is just absurd. Not even the central bank can manipulate the economy. You cannot “manipulate” a market against the trend for everything is connected. That caused the Panic of 1893 when the Silver Democrats overpriced silver. The Europeans hit the arbitrage and dumped silver in the US and took the gold back to Europe. That led J.P. Morgan to have to arrange a $100 million gold loan to bail out the treasury. That alone proved that you CANNOT manipulate ANY market against its trend for it will be arbitraged internationally – plain & simple.

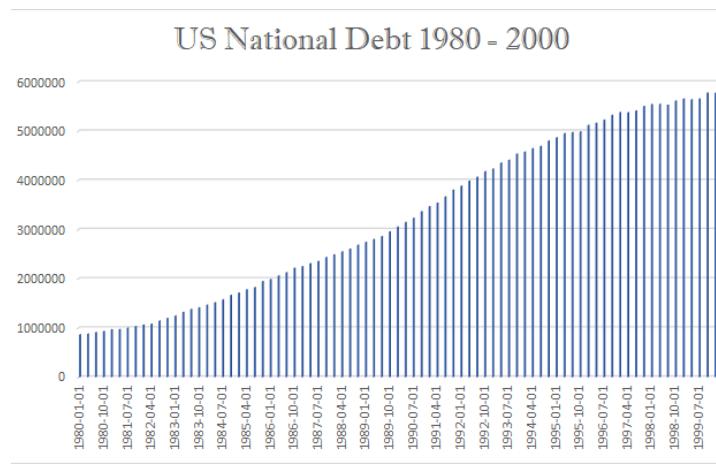

Gold trading around the world in different exchanges is arbitraged. You cannot have gold $20 high in one market v another. It will be arbitraged instantly. Those who claim this as “proof” that the metals have been manipulated so that is why they have not rallied and why they have been wrong are fools who have been separated from the money. They will never understand the markets no less be able to see beyond the end of their nose. It will be instantly arbitraged.

The collapse of the Soloman Brothers was precisely that. They were putting in bids at the Treasury Auction using other people’s names to goose the market. They got caught and the firm was taken down. I know PhiBro from the ’70s and ’80s. They took over Solomon Brothers and brought that style of trading from the commodity pits to Wall Street.

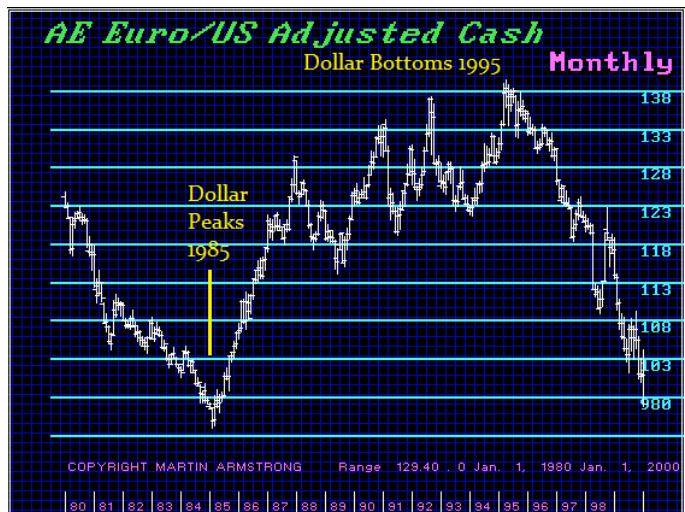

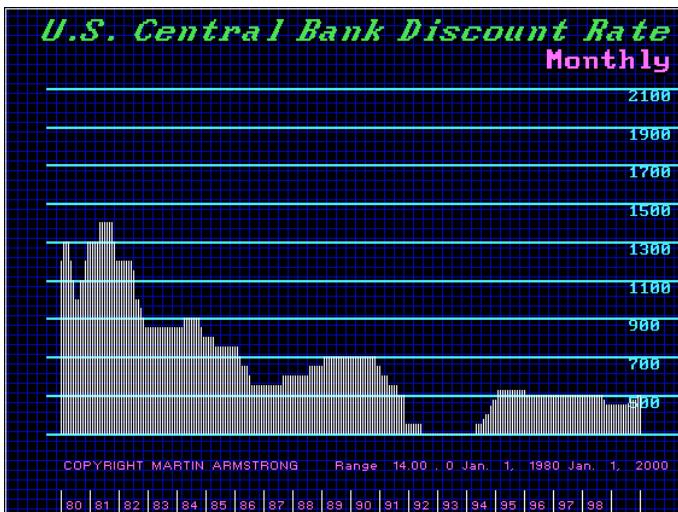

This excuse by goldbugs that the metals were actually “manipulated” in their long-term trend, shows their hopeless ignorance of the markets and how they even trade. There is NOBODY who could possibly do such a thing for everything connected. As soon as the dollar would rise, the metals in terms of foreign currency would be so overvalued they would all sell and they will end up broke the same as the Silver Democrats bankrupted the country by overvaluing silver.

Gold does NOT rise with inflation – that is the sales pitch of a used car salesman. Gold rises in times of UNCERTAINTY with respect to the government. In times of war, it rises because it is NEUTRAL and you are not betting on who will win.

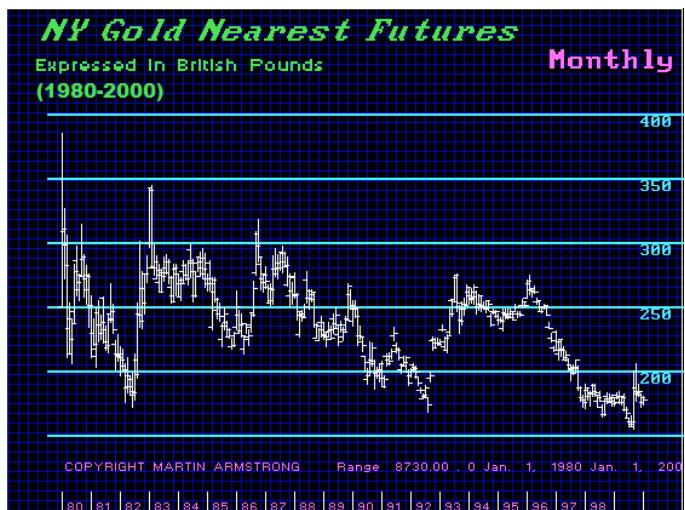

All we hear is that the debt is rising and therefore gold will explode. Once again, they offer no proof of their sophistry because there is no such proof. Gold declined for 19 years while the national debt climbed endlessly.

Then there is the myth about interest rates and gold that higher rates are bearish and lower rates are bullish. Well, interest rates peaked in 1981 and declined in 1994 before they began to rise marginally into 1995. Yet then contrast that myth with the performance of the dollar. There the greenback rose to a record high in 1985 but then declined for 10 years into 1995 all the while gold declined into 1999.

OK, so now let's look at gold between 1980 and 2000 in terms of Swiss francs and British pounds. We can instantly see that gold bottomed in 1985 in terms of the Swiss franc. In terms of British pounds, gold did not bottom until 1999.

People come up with theories all the time. However, they always try to reduce everything to a single cause and effect. They are doing that with climate change. They are telling the world it is CO2 that has changed the climate without ever addressing anything else.

The world we live in is not only complex, but it is also so dynamic it appears that no human can correctly forecast the future with an "I think" scenario. Sometimes they will be right, and others they will be wrong. Typically, they fail because they try to reduce the world to a single cause and effect.

Gold Rises with UNCERTAINTY with respect to the question of will the government survive its own madness.

If you use the average price of gold to calculate inflation between 1972 and 2017, the $3.25 would be closer to $64.38.

If you use the ShadowStats algorithm for inflation, which is supposedly based on the original inflation formula the US government used till the algorithm was changed at least a couple times, then the $3.25 would be $102.

Basically, even using the governmentally cucked numbers for inflation, current workers are getting ass raped. On October 11, the Fed announced two important steps to ensure that the supply of reserves remains ample at or above the level that prevailed in early September 2019. First, the Fed announced it would purchase Treasury bills at a pace of about $60 billion per month through the second quarter of 2020. Additionally, the Fed extended both its overnight and term repo operations through at least January 2020. These actions have been successful in stabilizing money markets, even on Treasury issuance and reporting dates when modest rate pressures are expected.

Conclusion

Strains in money markets in September seem to have originated from routine market events, including a corporate tax payment date and Treasury coupon settlement. The outsized and unexpected moves in money market rates were likely amplified by a number of factors. First, these events occurred against a backdrop of increased Treasury outstanding and reduced reserve balances. Reserves were at a multi-year low, which reduced liquidity, while Treasuries outstanding were at an all-time high, which led to increased borrowing demand. Second, borrowing demand in the repo market proved to be highly inelastic, which along with the persistence of trading relationships in the triparty segment, led cash borrowers to pay up significantly to secure the funding they needed. Lastly, on the lending side, uncertainty about cash flows and market conditions was a factor contributing to the reluctance of lenders to increase their lending in response to higher rates. For banks, this reluctance may have been exacerbated by frictions due to supervisory and regulatory factors, including their internal risk management practices, which may have prevented them from lending their excess funds to take advantage of higher rates. These factors appeared to have contributed to acute pressures on money market rates in September. Ongoing analysis may help us better understand how pressures emerged and spread across different money markets.

Banks are pocketing real money by borrowing money from the Fed's newest backstop facility, which charges a lower rate, and then parking it at another unit of the Fed, which pays higher interest. Banks are borrowing record amounts from this new facility.

The US reported that deficit spending in 2023 was $1.7 trillion, but here's why it was actually much higher:

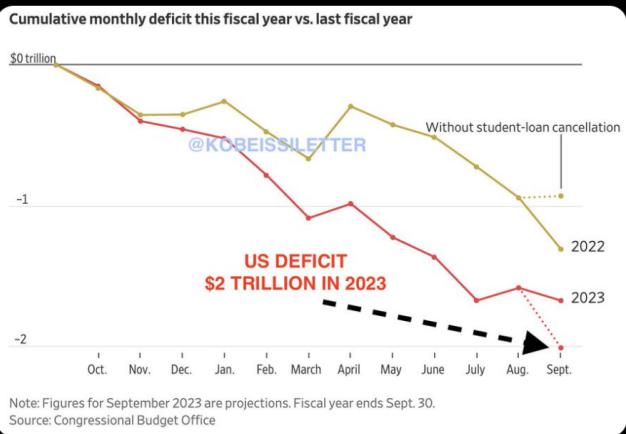

In 2022, the Biden Administration announced student loan forgiveness.

It logged the long-term cost of the program, $379 billion, even though no money was spent on it that year.

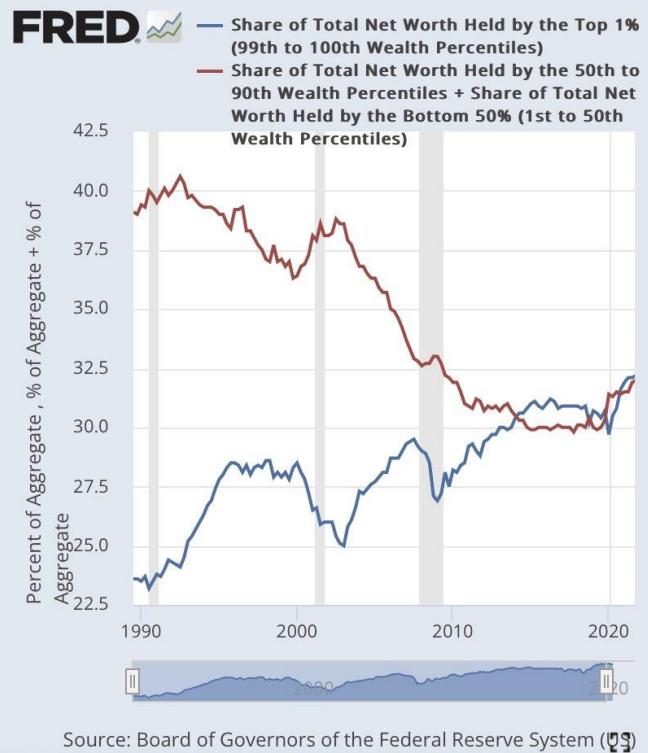

However, in June, the Supreme Court struck down the plan and the US recorded the changes as a $333 billion spending CUT in August 2023.

Therefore, without the student loan forgiveness situation, the deficit was ACTUALLY $2 trillion instead of $1.7 trillion.

We officially have a higher deficit than 2008.

All that stimulus money in 2020-21 hit banks, which by Basel regs have to keep a certain % of deposits as reserves - long-dated treasuries being the absolute gold standard for that, basically Basel forces banks to lend money to governments at low rates. But long-dated government bonds are a nice risk-free investment with some return that'll offset inflation losses, preserving depositor value. Governments got money, depositors got their deposits backed with the safest assets in the world, inflation is hedged against, everyone wins.

Except in the last year CBs started hiking interest rates at a lunatic pace, which had 3 main effects: Depressing risk appetite (why risk money in the market when you can get 5% on cash), increasing demand for cash (5% on it and CBs are publicly committed to protecting cash from inflation) and, worst, cranking up the return on short-term government debt.

The first two kill equities and slow the economy, but that last one is the killer. All those long-dated treasuries that banks responsibly bought in 2020-21 to satisfy reserve regs are now underwater, badly. Nobody wants to buy a 30-year bond yielding 3% when you can get 5% on a 4-week bill, so if you want to sell a 2020 30-year bond, you have to sell it at a discount. A huge discount, like 30%. Every bank is now sitting on massive, massive losses from their bonds, and every time someone pulls cash out, they have to sell those bonds and eat those losses. And every bank that isn't gigantic just does not have the money to cover those losses.

The Fed and ECB have broken the bond market and now basically every bank in the world needs a bailout. With inflation at generational highs.

Let me tell you something man, as someone with money, a significant portion of the socially active people in the country are niggers. I mean people are more strapped for cash than ever and I'm getting at least 1 invitation per week to do something that is at least $500 or more to participate in. Now, if I can't light that money on fire reasonably, the people inviting me sure as fuck can't unless everyone has suddenly gotten a massive inheritance.

Everyone is going to run the fuck around like they're the Kardashians taking pictures of themselves and paying premium for everything until it's time to start eating human flesh. They're going to slam that square peg in that round hole until blood shoots everywhere and they pass out. My point is, the pain won't be felt until it is right here, right now, and unimaginably substantial. Shit is bad right now, but almost no one seems to even be aware of it!

I went to a gender reveal party this past weekend that easily cost the people hosting it $15,000. Easily. These people are not millionaires. They're 2 millennials working office jobs. The woman works in a call center and the husband is a low level accountant (no CPA or anything). At best, they're pulling $100,000 pre-tax combined and realistically it's probably closer to like $80,000. Even if both their families chipped in, why the fuck did both families chip in? You see my point? Things are not bad enough that people are willing to take the hit to their ego yet and admit they aren't celebrities.

I've been reading boys...
>The outbreak of the Civil War shook public confidence in the Union, and citizens began hoarding specie, gold and silver coins. In late December 1861, banks and then the federal Treasury stopped paying out gold at face value. By mid-1862, all federal coins, even the base metal cent, had vanished from commerce in much of the country. The exception was the Far West, where for the most part, only gold and silver were acceptable currencies, and paper money traded at a discount. In the rest of the nation, gold and silver coins could be purchased from banks, exchange agents, and from the Treasury for a premium in the new greenbacks the government began to issue to fill the gap in commerce and finance the war.

>The Coinage Act of 1873 or Mint Act of 1873. 17 Stat. 424, was a general revision of the laws relating to the Mint of the United States. In abolishing the right of holders of silver bullion to have their metal struck into fully legal tender dollar coins, it ended bimetallism in the United States, placing the nation firmly on the gold standard. Because of this, the act became known by some as the "Crime of '73".

>By 1874, the effect of the new mines in the Far West, and the sale of silver in Germany following its demonetization there, combined to force the price of silver down. >A severe depression, the Panic of 1873, began in the same year as passage of the act, and persisted for much of the decade. Many in the United States came to believe the gold standard too rigid to deal with economic hard times like those, and sought to restore bimetallism.^[84] The inflation caused by such a policy would enable debtors to repay what they owed more easily.^[85] The price of silver continued to fall—the silver in a dollar in the new metric-weight subsidiary silver coins was worth only $.75 by mid-1876, though the price recovered some after that.

>In early 1875, Congress passed a bill for the resumption of specie payments (that is, in gold and silver coin)—effective in 1879. Friedman stated that had it not been for the 1873 act resumption would have been on the effective basis of a silver standard, which he viewed as a good thing, allowing for more economic stability and “almost surely would have avoided” the downturn of the early 1850s known as the Panic of 1853.

>When silver prices dropped in 1876, producers sought to have their bullion struck at the Mint, only to learn that this was no longer possible. The matter became a major political controversy that lasted the remainder of the century, pitting those who valued the deflationary gold standard against those who believed free coinage of silver to be necessary for economic prosperity. Accusations were made that the passage of the act had been secured through corruption, though there is little evidence of this. The gold standard was explicitly enacted into law in 1900, and was completely abandoned by the U.S. in 1971.

>The Atlanta Constitution on April 1, 1873, reported the passage of the Coinage Act. It noted the abolition of the two-cent piece and the authorization of the Trade dollar, but did not mention the ending of the standard silver dollar. There was no widespread objection to the 1873 act until 1876. Several factors combined to bring forth protest then: tight money policies by the Treasury in preparation for the resumption of specie payments, a more precipitous drop in the price of silver than had hitherto been the case, and widespread use of Trade dollars after their rejection in the Chinese market. At the same time, the Comstock Lode and other Western mining areas were producing record amounts of silver. With a depression still ongoing, silver began to be seen as a means of inflating the currency and stimulating the economy.

>Support for bimetallism grew in the 1870s, and resulted in the passage of the Bland–Allison Act of February 28, 1878, over the veto of President Rutherford B. Hayes. This legislation required the Treasury to purchase millions of dollars' worth of silver bullion each month, and coin it into silver dollars—the denomination was restored as a legal tender, except when gold was specified by law or private contract. Renewed support for silver led to the passage of the Sherman Silver Purchase Act of 1890, greatly increasing the silver purchases, and requiring the Treasury to pay for them in banknotes that could be redeemed for gold. Over the next three years, $12,000,000 in gold was withdrawn from the Treasury, and amid another depression President Grover Cleveland secured the repeal of the silver purchase act.

>Often blamed by those who deemed the act a crime was British financial writer Ernest Seyd, who had given advice as to the text of the bill, as attested by Congressman Hooper on the House floor in 1872. Seyd, according to this theory, was the agent of a group of British holders of American bonds, who had sent Seyd to America with £100,000 (then about $50,000) to bribe congressmen into demonetizing silver. Kelley denied this had taken place, but the story stuck, and became a common belief in the silver movement. In 1890, Seyd's corrupt involvement was asserted on the floor of the House of Representatives by Arkansas's Thomas C. McRae. Seyd was in fact an ardent bimetallist who strongly objected to the American demonetization of silver. He had submitted, at Hooper's request, an analysis of the bill in the course of which he advocated retaining the silver dollar as a legal tender.

>Beginning in March 1876, former newspaper editor George Weston published letters asserting that bimetallism was mandated by the Constitution, and questioning how the Coinage Act had passed. Sympathetic newspapers began to suggest that the legislation had been enacted through corruption for the benefit of wealthy capitalists. On August 5, 1876, Missouri Congressman Richard P. Bland (soon to be known as "Silver Dick") told the House of Representatives, "The act of February 12, 1873 was a fraud, because its title gave no clue to the real intent of the act. The record shows that the act was stealthily passed, without reconsideration and without debate." In 1878, Congressman Kelley, who had introduced the bill into the House, stated, "I was ignorant of the fact it would demonetize the silver dollar."

>The earliest use of the phrase "Crime of 1873" in congressional debate was by Colorado Senator Henry M. Teller, who on July 10, 1890, stated, "the fight for free coinage [of silver] is on, and it will stay on, too, till the will of the people shall be heard in the enactment of a law that shall put silver back where it belongs and where it would have been but for the blunder or the crime of 1873".

>The free silver movement reached its height with the 1896 campaign of former Nebraska representative William Jennings Bryan, who won the Democratic nomination for president after his Cross of Gold speech, which decried the gold standard, electrified the 1896 Democratic National Convention, and Bryan was defeated in the election by former Ohio governor William McKinley, and in 1900, Congress passed the Gold Standard Act, placing that standard into law. The gold standard was departed from for many purposes by President Franklin Delano Roosevelt's New Deal administration, and completely ended by President Richard Nixon in 1971.

>countries engage in hard/soft wars to obtain more gold which they use to inject money into their economies to grow them >post ww2 President Nixon was convinced gold wasn't actually a necessary part of the equation, simply strategically injecting money into the economy served the same function as gold without the need for hard/soft wars to maintain gold stock >money supply now expands through deficit spending & bank lending instead of through gold procurement >world's largest monetary experiment runs as follows:

>economy expands as flood of dollars enter circulation increasing demand on goods and services (boom) >currency then shifts to become less valuable (inflation) >suddenly everyone's poorer, demand decreases >economy reflexively contracts (recession) >debt becomes harder to service as the economy slows down leading to bankruptcies and accelerating the contraction below the mean (bust) >repeat

>people and institutions cotton-on to this >they prioritise buying assets to insulate them from this cycle >those who get in first make the most money as they both have 1) the most purchasing power as money only gets less valuable and 2) the cheaper the assets the easier they are to pump; it's much easier for a house to go from $10,000 to $20,000 than it is for a $1,000,000 house to go to $2,000,000 >those who get in last (current and subsequent generations) find that as this cycle has played out, assets have become increasingly harder to buy into than it was in previous generations >economy bifurcates into owning class (inherited wealth, talented capitalists and institutions) and (working class) >owning class becomes increasingly harder to get into as institutions are better financial planners than individuals and are able to outlast people as they don't expire >working class gets progressively poorer as time goes on, you will own nothing and be happy etc

Usury is wrong because it enriches the usurer at the expense of the one who has to pay interest. The only thing the usurer did was show up to the meeting with more wealth. And instead of using that wealth to uplift everyone, he used the wealth to leverage MORE wealth.

Given enough cycles, the usurer will have ALL the wealth in society. And everyone will be DEPENDENT on the loans he gives to even survive. So don't give me any shit like "Goy didn't have to take the loan!" Yes he did. All the wealth is in another's hand.

This is the system that exists today with the US Dollar. If you cannot see that, you need to look. It is a DEBT BASED currency. I.E. every dollar in circulation represents someone's debt.

Someone's debt to a usurer, to be more clear.

I am not asking the usurer to give his wealth away. I am asking the usurer to stop using that wealth to gain more wealth. That greed is destroying everything, and only a kike would defend it.

Now post nose.

Secret $54trillion company dubbed 'real Illuminati' as people say it 'owns America'

Some people are convinced they have found the 'Holy Grail' of the conspiracy world in a small financial organisation that owns the vast majority of all stocks in the US

By Joe Faretra, US Audience Writer & Steven White

Ask most people who 'owns' the US and it is unlikely that they will cite one tiny New York-based company.

Yet there are those who are convinced that a financial institution called Cede and Company holds all the real power in the country and is the one really running it. The organisation reportedly has assets worth an astonishing $54trillion and it has been able to acquire such figures due to owning 83% of all issued stocks in the US.

This happens because private investors don't actually own the stock they believe they do. Instead, they have contractual rights that are part of a convoluted chain of rights, which all end up at Cede and Company.

It breaks down like this: a number of interconnected services such as The Depository Trust & Clearing Corporation (DTCC), the National Securities Clearing Corporation and the Fixed Income Clearing Corporation oversee all stock trading in the US. And these all come under the umbrella company of Cede, which was founded in 1996.

In 1934 Hitler smashed the jewish paper ponzi scheme which allowed him to revalue his metals, trading 1 unit of silver for 4 units because his labor was worth more. By exchanging a five reichsmark for two dollars then redeeming the dollars for silver then remelting the silver back into reichsmarks, he could drain the kikes at the federal reserve, who only had a 40% reserve requirement for precious metals. The Germans short squeezed the jews out of silver and gold. Friday march 24th 1933 judea declared war on Germany and that jew puppet FDR [that flag on the dime] tried to confiscate gold and ban it because it was leaving shelves so fast. The public did not turn in any gold but banks readily turned over safety deposit boxes, if you don't hold it you don't own it. After fdr banned gold it was trading at $35 an oz up from 20 because the jews needed paper to buy up assets to be able to coup up the precious metals they were running low on.

The Crack-Up Boom. Are We There Yet?

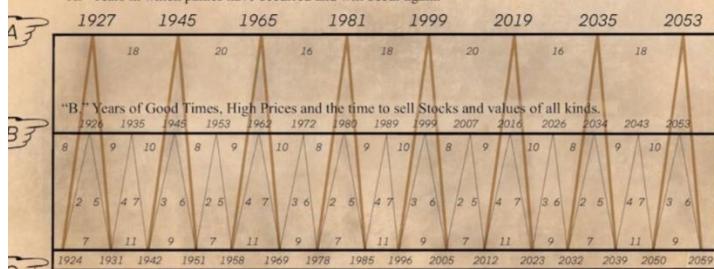

But then finally the masses wake up. They become suddenly aware of the fact that inflation is a deliberate policy and will go on endlessly. A breakdown occurs. The crack-up boom appears. Everybody is anxious to swap his money against "real" goods, no matter whether he needs them or not, no matter how much money he has to pay for them. Within a very short time, within a few weeks or even days, the things which were used as money are no longer used as media of exchange. They become scrap paper (scrap digital entries). Nobody wants to give anything away against them.

It was this that happened with the Continental currency in America in 1781, with the French mandats territoriaux in 1796, and with the German Mark in 1923. It will happen again when the same conditions appear. If a thing has to be used as a medium of exchange public opinion must not believe that the quantity of this thing will increase beyond all bounds. Inflation is a policy that cannot last.

The Copper Panic and Small Change Notes 1789-1799

Coppers in the colonial period

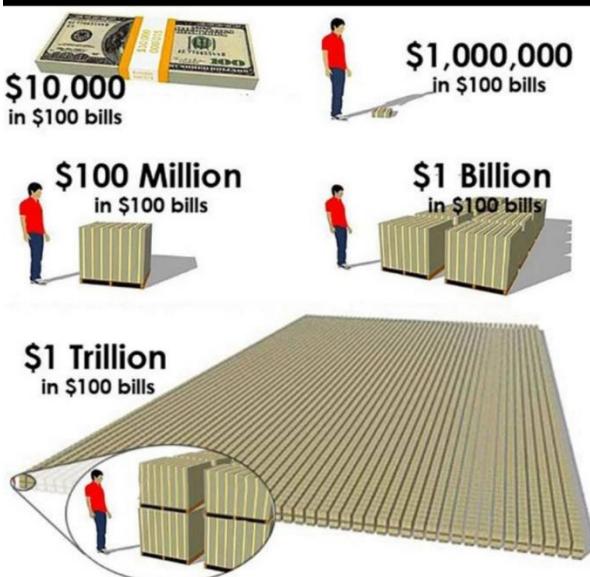

During the colonial period there was an inadequate coin supply throughout the American colonies. Colonists had to adapt to foreign silver coins as the British government outlawed the export of silver coinage from the homeland and discouraged colonial minting.

The creation and retention of an adequate supply of small change copper coins was also a continual problem in colonial America. This situation differed from the problem with silver coinage. There were no restrictions on importing British coppers, so while the colonists had to look toward foreign coinage for their silver they could expect British denominated small change coppers. The earliest supplies were brought over by the colonists themselves. In 1681 Mark Newby brought a large supply of Irish St. Patrick coppers to New Jersey. In the following year, 1682, a group of Quakers brought some 300 pounds of British halfpence and farthings to Philadelphia.

Even though small change continued to be scarce, the colonists resisted lightweight base metal coinages imposed on them by Britain. In 1688, with government approval, Richard Holt

What do we do as analysts every day? We make fucking PowerPoints. That's all. They try to act like it's more than that, it's not. Why couldn't someone from North Tennessee State do this job? Hell, why couldn't someone with only an 8th grade education do this job??

What the fuck is going on??

Inglis, for whom a lecture in education at Harvard is named, makes it perfectly clear that compulsory schooling on this continent was intended to be just what it had been for Prussia in the 1820s: a fifth column into the burgeoning democratic movement that threatened to give the peasants and the proletarians a voice at the bargaining table. Modern, industrialized, compulsory schooling was to make a sort of surgical incision into the prospective unity of these underclasses. Divide children by subject, by age-grading, by constant rankings on tests, and by many other more subtle means, and it was unlikely that the ignorant mass of mankind, separated in childhood, would ever reintegrate into a dangerous whole.

Inglis breaks down the purpose – the actual purpose – of modern schooling into six basic functions, any one of which is enough to curl the hair of those innocent enough to believe the three traditional goals listed earlier:

- 1) The adjustive or adaptive function. Schools are to establish fixed habits of reaction to authority. This, of course, precludes critical judgment completely. It also pretty much destroys the idea that useful or interesting material should be taught, because you can't test for reflexive obedience until you know whether you can make kids learn, and do, foolish and boring things.
- 2) The integrating function. This might well be called “the conformity function,” because its intention is to make children as alike as possible. People who conform are predictable, and this is of great use to those who wish to harness and manipulate a large labor force.
- 3) The diagnostic and directive function. School is meant to determine each student's proper social role. This is done by logging evidence mathematically and anecdotally on cumulative records. As in “your permanent record.” Yes, you do have one.
- 4) The differentiating function. Once their social role has been “diagnosed,” children are to be sorted by role and trained only so far as their destination in the social machine merits – and not one step further. So much for making kids their personal best.
- 5) The selective function. This refers not to human choice at all but to Darwin's theory of natural selection as applied to what he called “the favored races.” In short, the idea is to help things along by consciously attempting to improve the breeding stock. Schools are meant to tag the unfit – with poor grades, remedial placement, and other punishments – clearly enough that their peers will accept them as inferior and effectively bar them from the reproductive sweepstakes. That's what all those little humiliations from first grade onward were intended to do: wash the dirt down the drain.
- 6) The propaedeutic function. The societal system implied by these rules will require an elite group of caretakers. To that end, a small fraction of the kids will quietly be taught how to manage this continuing project, how to watch over and control a population deliberately dumbed down and declawed in order that government might proceed unchallenged and corporations might never want for obedient labor.

That, unfortunately, is the purpose of mandatory public education in this country. And lest you take Inglis for an isolated crank with a rather too cynical take on the educational enterprise, you should know that he was hardly alone in championing these ideas. Conant himself, building on the ideas of Horace Mann and others, campaigned tirelessly for an American school system designed along the same lines. Men like George Peabody, who funded the cause of mandatory schooling throughout the South, surely understood that the Prussian system was useful in creating not only a harmless electorate and a servile labor force but also a virtual herd of mindless consumers. In time a great number of industrial titans came to recognize the enormous profits to be had by cultivating and tending just such a herd via public education, among them Andrew Carnegie and John D. Rockefeller.

Obama's Harvard Years: Questions Swirl

By Kenneth R. Timmerman | Tuesday, 23 Sep 2008 06:11 PM

How exactly did Barack Obama pay for his Harvard Law School education? But new questions have been raised about Obama's student loans and Obama's ties to a radical Muslim activist who reportedly was raising money for Obama's Harvard studies during the years 1988 to 1991.

In the interview, Sutton says he first heard of Obama about twenty years ago from Khalid Al-Mansour, a Black Muslim and Black Nationalist who was a "mentor" to the founders of the Black Panther party at the time the party was founded in the early 1960s.

Sutton described al-Mansour as advisor to "one of the world's richest men," Saudi prince Alwaleed bin Talal.

One month before the presidential election of 2008, the giant Wall Street bank Citigroup submitted to the Obama campaign a list of its preferred candidates for cabinet positions in an Obama administration. This list corresponds almost exactly to the eventual composition of Barack Obama's cabinet.

Bill Gates and Prince Alwaleed bin Talal in Four Seasons deal

By David Litterick in New York
7:00AM GMT 12 Feb 2007

Finance

Bill Gates is going into the hotel business. The Microsoft chairman has joined with Saudi Prince Alwaleed bin Talal to back a management buy out of the luxury hotel group Four Seasons for $3.8bn (£1.95bn).

The hotel business has been enjoying a boom as global travel increases while the availability of hotel rooms fails to keep pace. Four Seasons operates 75 up-market hotels in 31 countries, as well as owning a number of timeshare properties.

The deal, which will see the chain's chief executive Isadore Sharp pick up $289m, was first mooted in November last year. Mr Sharp, who has led the company since it was founded in 1978, will remain at the helm.

Prince Alwaleed is already Four Seasons' biggest holder, with 22pc of the company. The Gates Foundation is the fifth-biggest holder with a stake of around 5pc. Mr Gates will purchase his share of the company through his Cascade Investment vehicle. This is not the first time Mr Gates and the Saudi prince have collaborated. Following a dinner at Mr Gates' home in Washington state in early 2004, Prince Alwaleed agreed to explore ways to assist Microsoft's expansion in Saudi Arabia.

Blackstone Group has also been a major force behind deals in the sector, acquiring Meristar Hospitality, Extended Stay America, Prime Hospitality, Boca Resorts, Wyndham International and La Quinta.

Members of the royal entourage also replaced some of the hotel staff with their own personnel, who know exactly how they like their coffee made, the person said. King Salman, who's staying at the Four Seasons, also came with his own furniture.

Four Seasons rolls out the red carpet for King Salman

SO WHERE WOULD A SAUDI ROYAL STAY IF HE WENT TO LAS VEGAS?

A Saudi prince owns 47.5 percent of Four Seasons Hotels and Resorts, which operates more than 100 hotels around the world, including one in Las Vegas.

A spokesman for the Four Seasons Hotel Las Vegas said Saudi delegations normally stay at their property, but that they did not receive any group request for August.

Unlike the W Las Vegas, the Four Seasons Hotel Las Vegas is not a stand-alone structure. It is located on the top five floors of Mandalay Bay. The Four Seasons also has 133 more rooms than the W.

IN THE SAME BUILDING AS STEPHEN PADDOCK

THEN, AFTER CONFLICTING MEDIA REPORTS AND EVEN MONTHS LATER WE STILL HAVE NO CLEAR MOTIVE, TIMELINE OR EXPLANATION FOR THE LAS VEGAS SHOOTING...

There was a planned assassination attempt on the prince, but he was away. It wasn't FBI or CIA or anyone planning the

It's important to know that there wasn't one or two assassins - there were lots. All of the "active shooters" you've heard about were involved in the assassination and did not expect what went down in Stephen Paddock's room.

Paddock was to sell weapons to the two guys who were planning to assassinate the prince. The pair got word during the shooting that the prince had been located and was being held at the Mandalay Bay hotel. One group fired at gas tanks at airport while other fired at crowd. FBI entered room 2 and killed both.

I've heard rumors about how dicked over the DNC/GOP/CIA/FBI are going to be as this comes to life. No idea if q-anon at the different casinos were armed Muqrin loyalists. FBI was there in advance as was CIA. They planned on stopping the deal that the prince was not located at Mandalay Bay and that Paddock was dirty. They killed him and shot out windows. One s larper or not. My guess is probably not.

During the Las Vegas shooting Stephen Paddock supposedly spent 3000+ rounds of ammunition over the course of ten minutes from 27 AR-15's with bumpstocks despite the facts that it would have required him to drop a gun after each 30 round magazine was empty, even though videos from survivors show that it was a nonstop stream of ammunition with a firing

-rate much higher than a bumpstock is capable of producing from multiple locations that appear to be M240 LMG's.

More interesting is the fact that after the FBI took over the investigation, his house somehow burned down with all of the evidence, and photos of the hotel room he shot from only show 50 spent shells. Years later we still have no motivation, and there was strangely no follow up on the biggest mass shooting in US history. Most confusing is that the day after his brother had numerous press interviews where he claimed it made no sense, he was arrested for possessing several hundred terabytes of child porn on a 20 year old computer running Windows 95 at least according to the photos taken by the FBI.

Why is Israel funding Hamas if they see them as their enemy? Why are they funding attacks to happen on US soil? 15 cities will be targeted, airports, subway stations and banks will be all hit. We're on a ticking time bomb, assets are in place all over and will be "activated" soon. CIA is involved.

Zoomers are comfortable being openly gay

4. Skilled Warrior. Azazel taught mankind the arts of war so he is usually depicted as a skilled combatant, often with a military past (again Han Solo, Jason Bourne, Riggs, Sam in Burn Notice (ex Navy SEAL), Again Trevor).
5. Clown/Makeup. Azazel taught the arts of makeup too, so to lampshade this he is (when they can get away with it) depicted with makeup. One obvious way to do it is with clown makeup, because this also sits with the next lemmotif, so you get the Joker for instance. But also it explains lack Sparrows kohl-rimmed eyes. Likewise Trevor, as is being confirmed more and more here.
6. Agent of chaos. The Beast from the Sea is supposed to tear down the existing power structure and make way for Satan, so Azazel is often depicted as impulsive, rash, chaotic, out of control, insubordinate and so on. Again you see this its Jack Sparrow, Han Solo, Riggs, Trevor and so forth.
7. Blinded by the light. Because he was tossed down a chasm and imprisoned under rock and cursed not to see the light, he's often depicted as blinded at some point. See Han Solo after being frozen in carbonite (imprisoned under rock), also Riddick after being confined to a mine.
8. Worshipped as a false god. The Antichrist is supposed to be mistaken for the Messiah, so if they can get away with it, they might have them worshipped as a god. As the rebels were in Star Wars, as Jack Sparrow was by a primitive tribe, as Kirk was in Star Trek into Darkness.
9. False coming back from the dead. As part of being mistaken for the Messiah, you will have a false coming back from the dead. So Riggs is assumed killed by shotgun blast but has body armour. Riddick is assumed killed but uses a human shield. Sparrow has multiple fakeout deaths in just one movie. Bond in Skyfall, they never even explain this one, he is shot, falls from a bridge and then comes back by the sea (see#3).
10. Confined to an island. This one is more out there because this comes from the Quran's Antichrist. He's imprisoned on an island and then escapes. It's Beast from the Sea but more specific. The best example of it though is in 47 Ronin where Keanu Reeves character is confined to an island. Note also this character is a half-human half-spirit who is incredibly skilled with weapons. Note also Keanu Reeves character is entirely absent from the traditional Japanese tale, the Hollywood Masons just decided to shoehorn him in.
11. Funny companion. This one is also from the Quran. There's Al-Jassassah, a being so fury you couldn't tell his front from his back, who accompanies the Antichrist. This is Chewie to Han Solo's Azazel. Obviously not many scripts allow for a Wookie, so they often just settle for a dog. Last Boy Scout has Halenbeck with Funny Tom.
12. Contract over a woman. Azazel is partner to a contract over a woman. Usually his wife. John Wick has such a contract undertaken so he could be with his wife.
1. Has disciples. Everyone knows of the famous 12 but Luke 10 tells us he has 72 more (in some it's 70). So if you see someone with 12, 72 or 84 followers, its Jesus. (Khan in original Star Trek 84, in Into Darkness it's 72, 72 centurion cylons squadrons and 12 greater cylons. Creedy (the man of the Creed, son... Jesus) has 12 in the final fight with V for Vendetta. Hans Gruber has 12 terrorists. In Die Hard 2 the fake backup special forces unit has 12 guys, one of whom is considered untrustworthy and is stabbed with an icicle - take that! John Wick kills a father, a son and 84 goons according to director Chad Stahelski. Also worth noting even if there's no specific number given, shining-eyed zealots like Bane has count.
2. Right hand man to a older/more experienced, father figure. Vader is to the Emperor, Joshua (Yeshua/Jesus) in Lethal Weapon to the Colonel.
3. Unusual birth. Anakin Skywalker/Vader in Star Wars.
4. Appears in an actual church. Often times they put the Jesus figure (and the God figure too for that matter) in an actual church. Silva in Skyfall actually says the church the dies in is an "appropriate setting". The Jesus figure in the Total Recall remake is confined in a church.
5. The Cross. Kylo Ren, the second coming of Jesus after Anakin dies, has a fiery cross in his hand. Anakin himself when he storms the temple walks on a cross. <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=NRw7U34E>
6. Saviour. Khan in Star Trek into Darkness has magical healing blood which can defeat death which he uses to save a child.
7. The temptation on the mount. In the Bible Satan takes Jesus up on a mountain and tempts him in a high place. Empire strikes Back invents it with Jesus (Vader) tempting Satan (Luke) in Bespin.
8. Its Christmas! Its Christmas in Die Hard, in Lethal Weapon. Its actually Christmas in The Bourne Identity if you pay attention to the decorations.
9. Injured in the side of the abdomen. Jesus was pierced by a lance on the cross. The Jesus figure in the Sherlock Holmes reboot is pierced by a spear in the side. Kylo Ren is injured in the side (even keeps hitting it for those too dumb to notice where he was injured "hey guys, it's me Jesus, injured in the side here!")

Shemaya/Satan

1. Fallen angel/suspended angel. Likewise falls from grace as Azazel, but often is depicted as hanging or suspended as his fall is said to be eternal.
2. Lake of fire/burning. Spock is suspended (see above) in a volcano (lake of fire) in Into Darkness. Riddick is suspended in Crematoria (Hell) and very nearly gets burned. V in V for Vendetta is burned.
3. Temps Eve. Eve is tempted by V in V for Vendetta, who is the "Devil" who is sent to do the Devil's work* as he tells the priest. (In the graphic novel his first words are actually the opening of Symphony for the Devil by The Rolling Stones "Allow me to introduce myself I'm a man of wealth and taste" I guess the moviemakers thought this too on the nose). Money/penny's first name is changed to Eve in Skyfall, so Bond can tempt her. But if there's an Eve character, you're probably dealing with Satan.
4. Contract over a woman. Taken with Azazel. Sanjoro in John Wick has such a contract with John Wick.
5. The more sensible level headed of duo as he's the one to impose Satanic order. Luke in Star Wars. Murtaugh in Lethal Weapon.
6. Threatened women folk. Shemyara wanted to bang himself a human chick so he did. All his offspring were annihilated by God. So you have his womanfolk killed or threatened by the God/Jesus figures.
7. Thousand years of torment. Mentioned in the Man Who Would Be King. Luke and Han both are threatened with a thousand of years of torment in the Sarlacc pit in Return of the Jedi.
8. The name. Sometimes it's just something as stupid as "Snake" Plissken (the serpent, geddit?). Luke derives from the same Latin root that gives us Lucifer.

In Die Hard 2 the fake backup special forces unit has 12 guys, one of whom is considered untrustworthy and is stabbed with an icicle - take that! John Wick kills a father, a son and 84 goons according to director Chad Stahelski. Also worth noting even if there's no specific number given, shining-eyed zealots like Bane has count.
2. Right hand man to a older/more experienced, father figure. Vader is to the Emperor, Joshua (Yeshua/Jesus) in Lethal Weapon to the Colonel.
3. Unusual birth. Anakin Skywalker/Vader in Star Wars.
4. Appears in an actual church. Often times they put the Jesus figure (and the God figure too for that matter) in an actual church. Silva in Skyfall actually says the church the dies in is an "appropriate setting". The Jesus figure in the Total Recall remake is confined in a church.
5. The Cross. Kylo Ren, the second coming of Jesus after Anakin dies, has a fiery cross in his hand. Anakin himself when he storms the temple walks on a cross. <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=NRw7U34E>
6. Saviour. Khan in Star Trek into Darkness has magical healing blood which can defeat death which he uses to save a child.
7. The temptation on the mount. In the Bible Satan takes Jesus up on a mountain and tempts him in a high place. Empire strikes Back invents it with Jesus (Vader) tempting Satan (Luke) in Bespin.
8. Its Christmas! Its Christmas in Die Hard, in Lethal Weapon. Its actually Christmas in The Bourne Identity if you pay attention to the decorations.
9. Injured in the side of the abdomen. Jesus was pierced by a lance on the cross. The Jesus figure in the Sherlock Holmes reboot is pierced by a spear in the side. Kylo Ren is injured in the side (even keeps hitting it for those too dumb to notice where he was injured "hey guys, it's me Jesus, injured in the side here!")

The Freemason in the Rye

By Joseph Atwill - March 4, 2015

J D Salinger's Catcher in the Rye is a work with many mysteries attached to it: perhaps the least of which is that, though it is both incoherent and morally destructive, it has been forced-fed by America's public school system to America's adolescents for sixty years. A mystery more often cited by the public press, however, has been the book's association with assassinations.

In fact, among the assassins purportedly in possession of Catcher in the Rye were three of the most famous in history. Mark David Chapman, after he had shot and killed John Lennon, calmly opened his copy of Catcher in the Rye and proceeded to read it before being apprehended. John Hinckley was also carrying the book while attempting to kill Ronald Reagan. It is alleged that Lee Harvey Oswald had a copy in his apartment and that it was one of his favorite books, though this is disputed.

The strange cluster of individuals in possession of the book at the time they assassinated a famous person have led some to speculate that the book is somehow a trigger for 'mind controlled' subjects, as was the case for the assassin who was depicted in the book and film 'The Manchurian Candidate'.

In this work I will decode the symbolic framework of the Catcher in the Rye and this will explain why the assassins were alleged to have possessed it. The book was not necessarily a trigger for the murders, but it was certainly a warning to those who understood its real meaning. The warning was to maintain silence about what Salinger described as a "secret fraternity".

Studying 'the Egyptians' for 28 days

The Catcher in the Rye describes many 'secrets'. For example, the book begins with the central character, Holden Caulfield, noting "my parents would have about two hemorrhages apiece if I told anything pretty personal about them. They're quite touchy about anything like that, especially my father."

The central secret of The Catcher in the Rye is the identity of the "secret fraternity" that Holden Caulfield was a member of:

"And they had this goddam secret fraternity that I was too yellow not to join."

To learn the identity of the "secret fraternity", a reader must recognize that Salinger is using the cryptic style of typology used to create the Gospels and the Shakespearian literature. Catcher in the Rye is especially difficult to decode because the framework much of it is based upon – the initiation rites of the Freemasons -are often secret and may not be uniform from one lodge to another.

However, many descriptions of the rites have been published, and it is obvious when comparing the 'type scenes' in Catcher to these descriptions that Salinger is using a framework connected to them.

The first typological clue Salinger provides to the identity of the 'secret society' is given in a scene at the beginning of the book where Caulfield is discussing his grade with his history teacher, Mr. Spencer, who states that Caulfield "studied the Egyptians" for twenty-eight days and then failed a test about the subject.

"We studied the Egyptians from November 4th to December 2nd," he said. "You chose to write about them for the optional essay question. Would you care to hear what you had to say?"

"No, sir, not very much," I said.

While the symbolism is oblique, once a reader adopts the correct interpretive framework, the meaning is transparent. The "secret fraternity" is the Freemasons, and the twenty-eight days spent studying the Egyptians refers to the period of studying a candidate must spend between the time of his initiation as an "Entered Apprentice", to the time he takes the exam to become a second degree Mason.

Salinger is using the concept of the 'Egyptians' to represent the Freemasons because the group claims lineage from the ancient Egyptians and uses their symbols in its rites. In other words, as with the Gospels and the works of Shakespeare, underneath the book's surface narration there lies a symbolic path to a completely different storyline.

Thus, on its surface, Catcher in the Rye appears to center on the internal life of Holden Caulfield, a neurotic seventeen year old who is expelled from his prep school. However, its symbolic meaning reveals a process whereby Caulfield, having failed to progress through Freemasonry's 'levels' in his first attempt, nevertheless obtains the knowledge needed to join the "secret fraternity" and learn its deepest secret.

The kind of Freemasonry Salinger described was not the beneficial stereotype that does charitable works, but rather an organization with a sinister agenda. At the book's conclusion, Holden Caulfield has become a 'Master Mason' and is permitted to enter the 'Holy of Holies' to learn the ultimate secret of the Freemasons – which, apparently, is that the "Sons of Light" as Robert Burns describes Freemasonry, has sworn to implement an 'Apocalyspe' on all non-Masons and to kill everyone who exposes the organization's plans.

Anyone who reads this analysis and finds it credible has a responsibility to determine exactly who the 'Sons of Light' Burns describes are and to learn the nature of the oaths they swear at their highest levels.

Learning the rules

In the book a series of individuals give Caulfield advice. While the advice is cryptic, it is the information that a Freemason needs to rise through the organization's levels to its secret knowledge,

In his session with Spencer, Caulfield recalls the advice he received from his headmaster, Dr. Thurmer, who pointed out that life is a game with 'rules'. Holden states that it is a game with rules if you are on the correct side, the side with the 'hot shots'. If you don't belong to the correct side then there is no 'game' at all. Central to understanding the book is learning the identity of the 'hot-shots' and the nature of their 'rules'.

On its surface, the passage describes Spencer's disappointment with Holden's inability to understand the truth about the 'Egyptians'. What is symbolically depicted is that Holden failed his second-degree initiation exam for entry into the Freemasons.

However, in the meeting with Spencer, Holden begins to learn the truth, and hints that he may be moving on to the next level:

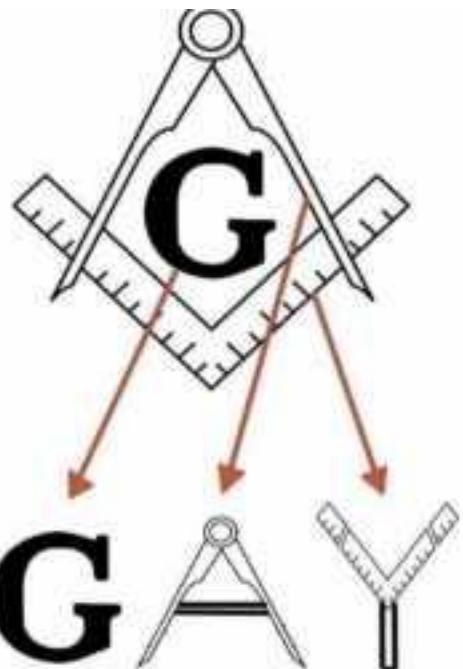

"Do you feel absolutely no concern for your future, boy?"

"Oh, I feel some concern for my future, all right. Sure. Sure, I do." I thought about it for a minute. "But not too much, I guess. Not too much, I guess."

"You will," old Spencer said. "You will, boy. You will when it's too late."

I didn't like hearing him say that. It made me sound dead or something. It was very depressing. "I guess I will," I said."

The fact that his teacher makes Holden feel dead at this point indicates that Holden has moved on to the third degree of freemason initiation, in which the candidate is made to imitate the death of Hiram Abiff during his initiation.

■ Russian Permanent Representative to the UN Nebenzya on the causes of the Palestinian-Israeli conflict: Our Western colleagues are trying their best to present everything as if the current escalation came out of nowhere. It was as if a gang of savage terrorists just attacked Israeli citizens. If this were the case, we would not have seen protests in the West Bank against Israel's actions, and Palestine would not have such widespread support among Muslims around the world. We cannot ignore that the current outbreak of violence has occurred against the backdrop of Israel's systematic violation of Security Council and UN General Assembly decisions, including illegal settlement expansion. Palestinians are being driven from their land and their homes are being destroyed. Any attempt to ignore this context is a manipulation that we cannot support.

CONFIRMED: Netanyahu ordered the Israeli military to STAND DOWN for 7 HOURS during the Hamas invasion.

I sat down with Jewish Charity leader, Cecily Routman, who received intel directly from her Israeli Rabbi and other top level government sources.

While I do not agree with equating the Palestinians to "rabid dogs", I understand why Israel wanted Gaza completely wiped from the face of the earth- they only needed a reason to do so, or else the UN would have intervened due to the war crimes and genocide.

It wouldn't be the first time a nation's leaders sacrificed their own citizens to start a war.

Egyptian Intelligence Warned 'Something Big' Was Coming, But This Was Ignored: Israeli Media

BY TYLER DURDEN

MONDAY, OCT 09, 2023 - 06:40 PM

Egypt is trying to have a "told ya so" moment, as on Monday the government said that Egyptian intelligence tried to repeatedly communicate to Israel that 'something big' was coming, prior to the massive jihadist militant attack out of Gaza which killed hundreds of Israelis.

A top Egyptian official was cited in Israeli media as saying, "Egypt cautioned about the situation's escalation, but unfortunately, these warnings were disregarded by Israel."

The official said the warning communicated to the Israeli government was that "something big" was in the planning stages, but didn't elaborate further.

Egypt frequently plays the role of mediator between Hamas and Israeli authorities, so this fresh statement is being taken seriously by Israeli pundits.

According to more via The Times of Israel:

"We have warned them an explosion of the situation is coming, and very soon, and it would be big. But they underestimated such warnings," the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity because he wasn't authorized to discuss the content of sensitive intelligence discussions with the media, told The Associated Press.

As of Monday, the total death toll among both sides has soared past 1,100. Currently, Israel's military is engaged in its biggest bombing campaign of the Gaza Strip in history, having also declared a total 'seizure' and blockade in progress.

Qatar has said it is seeking to mediate, also on the question of Israeli hostages in Hamas captivity. Likely Egypt is also seeking to engage both sides as the situation continues to deteriorate.

It's clear that there are people at the highest level who knew the attack on Israel would happen.

An Egyptian intelligence official said Israel ignored repeated warnings of 'something big'. Israel also has one of the most advanced militaries in the world and works in close cooperation with the CIA. There must have been people who knew and either wanted it to happen or they let it happen.

It's also clear that many are now angrily beating the drums of war, just like we've seen throughout the Russia-Ukraine conflict.

People on both "sides" are eager to see further escalation of this conflict, regardless of whether or not it launches us into World War 3.

I think that's an extremely dangerous path to go down on and I'd exercise great caution in following any narratives like that.

Before we start World War 3, it's worth asking ourselves:

Who benefits from further escalation of this conflict?

Who benefits from this war?

If there is one thing that's for sure, it's that ordinary people will not benefit from this war being escalated further, nor will the innocent civilians currently caught in the crossfire. Please pray for them.

So, for those who keep asking "what side are you on?"

First and foremost, my loyalties lie with God, Family, and Country. That's Jesus Christ, my family (in Him) and my own country.

As this conflict escalates, it will agitate radical jihadist sentiments around the world. Especially in Europe.

I'm extremely concerned with the mobilization and emboldenment of the millions of military-aged Muslim men imported into our homelands.

Hamas just announced this Friday the 13th will be “day of general mobilization in the Arab and Islamic world”.

With the insane (and most definitely intentional) demographic shifts we've seen in Europe, having millions of fighting age Muslim men imported over the past decade, I'm expecting riots and most likely violence all over Western Europe as this conflict escalates. Major cities in particular will be dangerous.

This was to be expected at some point.

We've warned about this happening for years, but the destabilization of Europe was also clearly wanted by our overlords. Divide and conquer in full force.

Secondly, as it pertains to geopolitical strategy: I'm on the side of those trying to keep their heads cool, who don't want to see World War III started, and who want to see as many innocent lives spared on both sides as possible.

I don't know if that side even exists at this point.

I don't know how this will all unfold, but I do know, that for now - acknowledging that I don't know what I don't know - that's the “side” I'm on.

The unrealized potential of Palestinian oil and gas reserves

28 August 2019

Oil and natural gas resources in the occupied Palestinian territory could generate hundreds of billions of dollars for development.

Geologists and resources economists have confirmed that the occupied Palestinian territory (oPt) lies above sizeable reservoirs of oil and natural gas wealth, in Area C of the West Bank and the Mediterranean coast off the Gaza Strip, according to a recent UNCTAD study.

New discoveries of natural gas in the Levant Basin are in the range of 122 trillion cubic foot while recoverable oil is estimated at 1.7 billion barrels, according to the study entitled "The Economic Cost of Occupation for the Palestinian People: The Unrealized Oil and Natural Gas Potential."

This offers an opportunity to distribute and share about US$524 billion among the different parties in the region and promote peace and cooperation among old belligerents, the study notes.

Understanding the Hamas attack on Israel:

Iran is aiming for a confrontation with Israel and the US. The success of Russia in Ukraine is encouraging Iran to undo decades of hostile US foreign policy in the Middle East. A bankrupt US Govt has just been invited to another war.

The timing is opportunistic. The US Govt is forced to print trillions of USD as it struggles to raise new debt. Another war would lead to a significant increase in inflation and an accelerated economic decline of the US.

If Iran mines the Strait of Hormuz the global energy crisis would become critical. The Biden administration has used the majority of US oil reserves to stabilize domestic oil prices. Iran can increase the pain for the US Govt significantly.

Ukraine is turning into a major defeat for the US and NATO. A new front in the Middle East would accelerate the US decline. The US Govt and its western partners simply cannot afford it. Russia and China would benefit most. Iran understands this and is playing into the hands of its partners.

6:52 AM · Oct 7, 2023 · 9.3M Views

So the U.S. itself senses that Israel is potentially deliberately trying to draw Hezbollah in so that big daddy America can come in and “finish off” Hezbollah/Iran once and for all. Meanwhile, U.S. knows the dangers of this as it has no where near the current capability to fight a protracted conflict against Iran, which could virtually shut down the entire global economy and cause all of Biden’s “economic miracles” to be flushed down the toilet, creating a disastrous scenario for the 2024 elections that would hand the win to some opposition party, particularly Trump.

Why did the Hamas Attack happen now?

No one is really discussing what sparked this attack by Hamas. This latest attack was called the "al-Aqsa Flood" by Hamas.

This is because the reason given for its timing is Israel allowing "Jewish groups to desecrate al-Aqsa Mosque".

In a statement about Saturday's attack, Hamas directly referenced Jewish prayer at the site, calling it an act of "aggression" that "had reached a peak." Hamas specifically mentioned the blowing of shofars at the complex, as well as the sprinkling of a red cow's blood — which Jewish texts state is a precursor to the construction of the Third Temple — as proof of their belief Israel plans to destroy the mosque and the entire compound, justifying the attack.

While perhaps ideally, shared prayer at a shared holy site would be possible peacefully, practically speaking, Jewish prayer on the site is a disruption of the status quo often done with geopolitical ambitions in mind. At minimum, it is a demonstration of Israeli control in an area not officially in its power, and yet another loss of Palestinian rights and autonomy in the region. At its most extreme, Jewish prayer signals intentions on the part of extremist religious groups to rebuild the Jewish temple at the site.

Recently, the Israeli government has begun to support extremist Jewish groups attacking and expelling Muslims and Christians from their holy sites.

Extremist Jewish groups like the Temple Institute believe it is necessary to build the third temple on the site of the Aqsa mosque to bring about the Jewish messiah (which many Christians think will be the antichrist).

These Jewish groups have been trying to breed a "blemish free" red cow to fulfil prophecy and bring about the end times, even using advanced embryo selection technology to try and breed this sacrificial cow.

A multiple number of terrorists are dead.

It's heartbreaking that Hamas is launching rockets from hospitals, Mosques, schools, and using civilians as human shields.

"It's blocked and sealed; they know that we were going to come here more than a month ago, and sealed it," Hagari said in one video.

The Post mapped the path of the tunnel by geolocating the excavation sites within al-Shifa and analyzing the videos frame-by-frame to determine the network's directionality and length. The Post then superimposed the tunnel routes on the original map released by the IDF on Oct. 27 that it said showed the full extent of Hamas's command and control infrastructure.

None of the five buildings highlighted by the IDF appear to connect to the tunnels, and no evidence has been produced showing that the tunnels could be accessed from inside the hospital wards, as Hagari had claimed.

- The amount of minors on the list was under 2%

Chilling words from Israeli Defence Minister:

"As of now No electricity, no food, no fuel for Gaza."

Israel orders 'complete siege' of Gaza, cutting off food and electricity, and prepares for massive ground offensive 'within 48 hours' in response to Jewish state's 'worst day in history'

THE SIEGE OF GAZA

Minister Yoav Gallant said authorities will cut electricity to the bordered area and will block the entry of food and fuel to Gaza. The announcement comes as Israel's military scoured the country's south for Hamas fighters and guarded breaches in its border fence with tanks, while it relentlessly pounded the Gaza Strip in the early hours of this morning, with air strikes and artillery hitting more than 1,000 targets belonging to Hamas overnight. Hundreds of Palestinians have been killed and buildings were reduced to rubble after Israel began its deadly revenge attack in response to Hamas launching a surprise assault that has so far killed more than 700 Israelis and injured 1,200. The Israeli airstrikes have so far flattened much of the town of Beit Hanoun in the Palestinian enclave's north-east corner, which Hamas terrorists had been using as a staging ground for their attacks. On the ground, thousands of Israeli soldiers are preparing to launch a massive ground assault within the 'next 48 hours' to destroy Hamas fighters and infrastructure in Gaza that will see fighting erupt in the streets, US officials say. But in the meantime, Israel may choose to carry out small special-forces operations whereby they target high-profile Hamas terrorists. Israel's Defense Forces have said they want to completely strip Hamas of its power to govern in Palestine after what has been described as the country's 'worst day in history' with the number of Israeli's killed in the conflict set to rise further.

Around noon today, December 2023 ,16 a sniper of the IDF murdered two Christian women inside the Holy Family Parish in Gaza, where the majority of Christian families has taken refuge since the start of the war. Nahida and her daughter Samar were shot and killed as they walked to the Sister's Convent. One was killed as she tried to carry the other to safety. Seven more people were shot and wounded as they tried to protect others inside the church compound. No warning was given, no notification was provided. They were shot in cold blood inside the premises of the Parish, where there are no belligerents.

Earlier in the morning, a rocket fired from an IDF tank targeted the Convent of the Sisters of Mother Theresa (Missionaries of Charity). The Convent is home to over 54 disabled persons and is part of the church compound, which was signaled as a place of worship since the beginning of the war. The building's generator (the only source of electricity) and the fuel resources were destroyed. The house was damaged by the resulting explosion and massive fire. Two more rockets, fired by an IDF tank, targeted the same Convent and rendered the home uninhabitable. The 54 disabled persons are currently displaced and without access to the respirators that some of them need to survive.

In addition, as a result of the heavy bombing in the area, three people were wounded inside the church compound last night. Furthermore, solar panels and water tanks, which are indispensable for the survival of the community, were destroyed.

Together in prayer with the whole Christian community, we express our closeness and condolences to the families affected by this senseless tragedy. At the same time, we cannot but express that we are at a loss to comprehend how such an attack could be carried out, even more so as the whole Church prepares for Christmas.

The Latin Patriarchate of Jerusalem follows this developing situation with great concern and shall provide additional information as needed.

UN Human Rights in Occupied Palestinian Territory

Ramallah

20 December 2023

Unlawful killings in Gaza City

OHCHR OPT has received disturbing information alleging that Israeli Defence Forces (IDF) summarily killed at least 11 unarmed Palestinian men in front of their family members in Al Remal neighbourhood, Gaza City, which raises alarm about the possible commission of a war crime. This comes in the wake of earlier allegations concerning the deliberate targeting and killing of civilians at the hands of Israeli forces.

The Israeli authorities must immediately institute an independent, thorough and effective investigation into these allegations, and if found to be substantiated, those responsible must be brought to justice and measures implemented to prevent any such serious violations from recurring.

On 19 December 2023, between 2000 and 2300 hours, IDF reportedly surrounded and raided Al Awda building, also known as the “Annan building”, in Al Remal neighborhood, Gaza City, where three related families were sheltering in addition to Annan family. According to witness accounts circulated by media sources and Euro-Med Human Rights Monitor, while in control of the building and the civilians sheltering there, the IDF allegedly separated the men from the women and children, and then shot and killed at least 11 of the men, mostly aged in their late 20's and early 30's, in front of their family members. The IDF then allegedly ordered the women and children into a room, and either shot at them or threw a grenade into the room, reportedly seriously injuring some of them, including an infant and a child. OHCHR has confirmed the killings at Al Awdabuilding, although the details and circumstances of the killings are still under verification. IDF has not released any information on the incident.

"After seeing the film I have no compassion for any person in Gaza, not a woman, not a child, and certainly not a man. Everyone deserves a painful death, you were all complicit in this massacre. I hope that no one is left alive in Gaza, period! ... I am sure that your God despises you, is ashamed of you, and would burn you in hell, just as the IDF is doing to you now".

Enemy 'civilian casualties' ok by me

I am getting really sick of people who whine about "civilian casualties." Maybe I'm a hard-hearted guy, but when I see in the newspapers that civilians in Afghanistan or the West Bank were killed by American or Israeli troops, I don't really care. In fact, I would rather that the good guys use the Air Force to kill the bad guys, even if that means some civilians get killed along the way. One American soldier is worth far more than an Afghan civilian.

PALESTINIAN PEOPLE

As the world is faced with deep questions about self-determination, as we all desire and pray for a world of peace, we must stand unwaveringly on the side of the oppressed. When a people have been subject to decades of apartheid and unimaginable violence, their resistance must not be condemned, but understood as a desperate act of self-defense.

We, too, understand what it means to be surveilled, dehumanized, property seized, families separated, our people criminalized and slaughtered with impunity, locked up in drosses, and when we resist they call us terrorists. We, too, are of a world where our people can live freely in decolonized land. May the borders, checkpoints, prisons, police and watchtowers that terrorize our communities crumble and may the world we build from their ashes honor those who have fallen in struggle.

solidarity with our Palestinian family who are currently resisting 57 years of settler colonialism and apartheid. As Black people continue the fight to end militarism and mass incarceration in our own communities, let us understand the resistance in Palestine as an attempt to tear down the gates of the world's largest prison. As a Black organization grounded in abolitionist ideals, we see clear parallels between Black and Palestinian people.

The apartheid system must be dismantled. The war on the Palestinian people must cease. We call on the United States government to immediately stop funding war and redirect the $4 billion in annual spending from the Israeli military to repair the damage caused by U.S.-backed wars, military air strikes, coups, and destabilizing interventions against oppressed people around the world.

Isn't it amazing that whenever Israel gets outed for being a prick, someone attacks them, making the well-trained say "I stand with Israel" & its almost treasonous to say you don't stand with that apartheid nightmare.

Let's look at the last 30 days of poor widdle Israel: About one month ago, poor widdle Israel said they were going to kick out the BLACK immigrants, back to Africa. Nothing new here, Israel has been kicking out immigrant African Blacks since at least 2018.

Couple weeks back, videos circulated around that showed Israelis spitting on Christians visiting the "Holy Land."

Oct 5, 2023, in a combined US-Israel op, over 100 Syrians were killed & several hundred more wounded when the Zios used a drone to bomb a graduation ceremony. Suddenly Israel, gets attacked & all the above is forgotten & forgiven?

People were doing a good job learning not to trust what our govt says, since they're always lying or not telling the whole truth or pitching propaganda, but when Israel's in the mix, they open their mouths wide & hungrily swallow anything that gets shoveled into their maws.

Israel PM Benny Nuttyahoo is one of the prime players in the 9/11 False Flag, so to believe anything this professional killer says isn't wise. Israel wants the US to bomb Iran & there latest stunt might get the job done.

And again, we'll go sending off our kids & other family members to fight & die for the glory of Apartheid Israel.

One more thought: Those rockets/missiles that the ((MSM)) is claiming they were launched from Gaza? Not buying it, till they start showing some terrain or buildings so one can get a fix as to where the projectiles were actually launched from.

Pam Geller says, "If Iran attacks, Israel should nuke Europe"

Category: Hatred Of White People, Israel, Jews, Muslims

Pam Geller is a darling of Fox News and the Republican Party. Apparently, suggesting that Israel should murder millions of Europeans is a "mainstream" notion.

Ted Pike reports:

Radical Jewish anti-Islamic activist and Fox News regular Pamela Geller said on her blog in 2010: "And I pray dearly that in the ungodly event that Tehran or its jihadi proxies (Hez'Ballah, Hamas, etc.) target Israel with a nuke, that she retaliate with everything she has at Tehran, Mecca, Medina.....not to mention Europe. They exterminated all their Jews, but that wasn't enough. These monsters then went on to import the next generation of Jew-killers." By "Jew-killers," she means Muslims: "This new hatred comes from Muslim immigrants. The Jewish people are afraid now."

Geller shares a similar view with Israeli advocates of "The Samson Option": if Israel is to be destroyed by nuclear attack, it should destroy the whole world by unloading its entire nuclear arsenal upon it.

Ideas like this will get you cozy with GOP leadership?

Discussion

Please do not respond with your personal opinion on the matter.

YouTube has actively chosen to remove 15 years worth of footage documenting the lives of Palestinians under Israeli rule. With no warning, they are wiping these collections off of the platform as if they never existed in the first place. They are justifying it by saying it is a violation of their hate speech policy, despite there being no hate speech of any kind. They are merely documentations of people's lives, not even through a biased lens.

This is wrong and I don't think YouTube should be allowed to get away with this. They serve a role in our society. I don't care if they want to remove videos that promote lies and misinformation (even though they absolutely don't do this). But to remove this type of footage with no warning is quite literally an attempt to erase history and pave the way for the victor to write the history however they so choose. I don't care what your stance is on this topic, what YouTube is doing is wrong.

The global supply chain is already getting scrambled

On Monday, oil and gas giant BP announced that it would no longer send its ships through the Red Sea. This followed similar announcements from Maersk and MSC, two of the largest shipping companies in the world. Instead, these companies will take the long way to Europe and North America by going around the entire continent of Africa.

This could mean that shipping could get delayed for 20 days or longer, depending on the destination, said Ben Nolan, an analyst at investment bank Stifel. "A one-way voyage is somewhere between 10 to 20 extra days," he said. For ships that have to return to their ports of origin, though, it can be double the amount of time. The longer delays will probably be for ships that are destined for Mediterranean ports, Merogliano said, while ships bound for the US could see delays only as long as three or four days.

Still, the supply-chain problems are likely to compound from there. Once ships arrive at their ports, there is likely to be a traffic jam. "You can't just divert shipping containers," Merogliano said. Since large ships carry as many as 15,000 containers, which have to be unloaded in an intricate order, clearing each ship can take time. "It's a big Jenga problem," he said.

It's over. This isn't a war. This is some kind of parody. Watch my fellow countrymen decry me for telling the truth with their false bravado and arrogance, the very same false bravado and arrogance that led to Oct 7 and to this. We haven't taken Shuja'iyya. We haven't taken Jabalia. We haven't taken Khan Yunis. We haven't gotten Sinwar. We haven't achieved anything but we're already told to wrap this up by 2024. We're firing on anything that moves there, branding all adult males as combatants, not really making any military impact. We're a country smack dab in the middle east that's trying to appear Western, with a population that's half ethnically Arab and half Russian. We have neither the Arab luxury of slaughtering innocents nor the Western luxury of peaceful living. We're hated by the left for being Zionists and we're hated by the right for being Jews. We've lost our underdog status, we're no longer the democratic pearl of the savage middle east. This is a war we can't win. Tragedy like this will continue to be a daily thing until we declare victory a month from now as Hamas rains rockets above our heads in celebration.

Israel keeps postponing its ground operation in Gaza. That's mostly due to the US pressure and apprehensions of the Global South's outcry.

One shouldn't get deluded, however. The ground operation will take place, and the consequences will be hard and bloody. Moloch keeps demanding more and more sacrifices, and the mechanism of reciprocal violence is going to grind on for years.

Besides, the West's got really tired of Ukraine, and now is eagerly supporting Israel. Even the new Speaker of the House of Representatives Michael Jackson (pardon, Mike Johnson, but that doesn't make much of a difference) made aiding Tel-Aviv a priority.

Shouldn't it be better to revive the Middle East peace process, and try to abide by the UN Security Council Resolution 242 (1976)? Or even follow the initial Partition Plan for Palestine, approved by the UN General Assembly Resolution 181 (1947)?

These are all rhetorical questions, of course. It's much more fun to split the dough for the others' war far away from the US.
The war must go on...

As I predicted, Israel got cold feet and called off the ground invasion of Gaza. Jews are willing to kill for Israel, but they prefer to have Americans die for it.

A spectre is haunting Israel. Former Prime minister Ehud Barak is obsessed with the fact that no Jewish kingdom has lasted longer than 80 years.

Israeli bombings have no effect militarily. Armed people in Palestine are in shelters, civilians are dying in residential buildings. We went through this in Syria, when in Damascus, for example, they sit in underground tunnels and come out only when necessary. Hamas prepared 100%, it was not without reason that they did this, they have reserves of weapons and food.

Israel strikes, destroy buildings, Hamas can immediately mine it carefully, it will be a good fortified area, ideal.

The Israelis are shown in columns on tanks, on infantry fighting vehicles, what are they waiting for? Waiting for drones to fly over them?

We went through this during a special military operation. Tanks in urban areas are practically ineffective. The main thing here is the action of the assault troops. What is this? Remember how they took Artemovsk (Bakhmut). Remember what losses there were. Something similar awaits the Israelis; it won't work out otherwise here.

If we look more broadly, the Americans are trying to drag the Middle East into war; apparently, they decided not to stand ceremoniously with Israel; in this case, the damage to Israel would be unacceptable. When they say that today some missiles were brought into Iran, I assure you such statements are a fallacy, because in military everything planned long ago, determined all the targets.

The visit of our leader Vladimir Putin to China, the Minister of Foreign Affairs to the DPRK (North Korea), the president's visit to our command post in Rostov,- are synchronized events. The President heard the report of the Chief of the General Staff, probably the district commanders, personally listened to the reports in order to understand what problems there are and ways to solve them. I think the main topic was the presence of two aircraft carrier groups in the Mediterranean. On board these ships, according to my calculations, there are approximately 750-800 Tomahawk missiles, which cover a decent amount of the territory of the Russian Federation. That's a decent amount of power. Our President immediately decided to put the Mig-31 with Kinzhal missiles on combat duty. For some reason, everyone imagines that one plane with one Kinzhal will fly somewhere, will fly along the Black Sea, but everything is much more global. Firstly, this is the use of all reconnaissance systems linked into a single information system with the issuance of specific target instructions to control points. If an aircraft enters the airspace of the Black Sea, then it must have a support echelon protecting it from enemy air attacks, air defense systems, and everything else. This is a global set of measures to deter the American aggressor from thinking of attacking the territory of the Russian Federation. In front of us are two aircraft carrier groups, equipped to the teeth, capable of hitting targets on the territory of our country, should we just stand there and pick our noses? We must react normally. Yes, the Kinzhal missile itself is extremely effective, capable of hitting any US warship, that's true.

Indictment: They stole property of the victims of the Raim festival massacre

The State: Meir Hajaj and Golani Garbi managed to enter the area after presenting themselves as those who wanted to help the victims - and stole jewelry and tools worth NIS 60,000

Itamar Levin • Legal reporter • News1

Meir Hajaj and Golani Garbi are accused of stealing property from the victims of the massacre by Hamas on October 7 of the participants of the music festival near Kibbutz Ra'im. The indictment against them

.was submitted (7.11.23) to the Beer Sheva Magistrate's Court

The state says that on 8.10.23 in the afternoon, Hajj and Garbi - with a third person whose identity is unknown - arrived at a police checkpoint near Moshav Gilat. The police officer explained to them that there is no entry into the Gaza surrounding area from Ofakim direction, but since they claimed that they wanted to help the victims - he suggested that they enter from the Netivot direction. They did manage to enter the .area, even though it was a closed military area

The three patrolled the area and, according to the state, stole dozens of jewelry worth NIS 20,000; a toolbox, hammer, saw and blower worth NIS 6,000; and additional tools worth NIS 800. The state attributes to them the offenses of entering a closed military area and theft under aggravated circumstances (an offense for which the maximum penalty is four years in prison). Hajjaj is also accused of possessing 86 grams of drugs that were discovered in the search of his home. The prosecutor's office wants to arrest the two until the end of the proceedings against them. The state is represented by Adv. Zion . Kenan

If the entire Middle East is drawn into the war, aircraft carrier groups try to strike the territory of Iran, then Iran will not remain silent, they have targets ready, all critical objects, they will attack them in different ways, despite the Iron Dome and everything else.

Drones and missiles from Yemen are not a provocation, but reconnaissance in force, revealing the ability of an aircraft carrier strike group to destroy an entire aircraft. They will see what happened, how and what. The SMO taught that you can shoot down 10 UAVs, you can shoot down 20, but when 100 are flying, then even modern systems are not able to resist. Therefore, America is hiding an aircraft carrier group behind Cyprus.

Israeli president says Gazans warned with 'six million texts' ahead of strikes

We've just heard from Israeli President Isaac Herzog, who showed journalists a leaflet he said was being distributed to Gaza's civilians warning them to relocate ahead of strikes.

He said the Israeli military had sent six million text messages, made four million phone calls, and dropped 1.2 million pamphlets. We were unable to see the writing on the leaflet he held up but we have seen others dropped on northern Gaza warning civilians to leave for their own safety.

Hamas refused a cease-fire in exchange for wounded and captured Israeli officers, Hazem Qassem said and said: "There is no question of a cease-fire and that this time we are going to the final victory."

The negotiations were led by Egyptian negotiators, and Anthony Blinken mediated in calming the tensions, to which "Hamas" replied that they had the initiative and that it would be buying time because they had received information that Israel had sent 80 percent of the artillery ammunition to Ukraine and they have this knowledge that now Israel wants to "buy time", according to the "Wall Street Journal"

>Properly, Da'at is not a sephira, but rather is all ten sefirot united as one. Nevertheless, Da'at is sometimes counted as a sephira instead of Keter, from the perspective of finite creation, using Da'at to represent the "reflection of" (the "inner dimension" of) the infinity of Keter. Thus Da'at appears in the configuration of the sefirot along the middle axis, directly beneath Keter. It corresponds to the image of God.

it's because in hebrew they don't have separate characters for numbers, they use letters much like roman numerals. there is a lot of word/number play in the bible that only makes sense if you know this. words with similar values are seen as connected in some way, for instance, mosiah and nachash (messiah and serpent) have the same value of 358. this is one of the kabbalistic meanings of the serpent on the pole in the old testament. this is why the gospel of john uses this comparison of jesus to the snake on the pole. everyone please understand that masons are christian gnostics, whereas jews are not. the former think that god is a monstrous evil demiuuge whereas the jews do not. masons think Christ is something one can become, in the same vein as one can become enlightened in Buddhism. Jews think Jesus was not the messiah, and probably a magician. i know it seems strange to the uninitiated, but christian qaballa and jewish kaballah are quite different.

ELEVENSES measure and the Moon

Eleven is a mysterious underworldly number—in German it goes by the appropriate name of Eif. Eleven is important as the first number that allows us to begin to comprehend the measure of a circle. This is because, for practical purposes, a circle measuring seven across will measure eleven halfway around (opposite top left).
This relationship between eleven and seven was considered so profound by the ancient Egyptians that they used it as the basis for the design of the Great Pyramid. A circle drawn around the elevation of the Great Pyramid has the same perimeter as that of its square base. The intended seven-elevenfold conversion between square and curve is demonstrated by numerous surveys.

The ancients were obsessed with measures, and the number eleven is central in their metrological scheme. Shown opposite is the extraordinary fact that the size of the Moon relates to the size of the Earth as does three to eleven. What this means is that if we draw down the Moon to the Earth, as shown, then a heavenly circle through the Moon will have a circumference equal to the perimeter of a square around the Earth. This is called 'squaring the circle'. Quite how the old druids worked this out we may never know, but they clearly did, for the Moon and the Earth are best measured in miles, as shown.

Eleven, seven, and three are all Lucas numbers, sisters of the Fibonacci numbers, new numbers forming from the sum of the previous two numbers. The Fibonacci sequence begins 1, 1, 2, 3, 5, 8, whereas the Lucas sequence begins 2, 1, 3, 4, 7, 11.

Patterns of island change and persistence offer alternate adaptation pathways for atoll nations

Paul S. Kench¹, Murray R. Ford¹ & Susan D. Owen¹

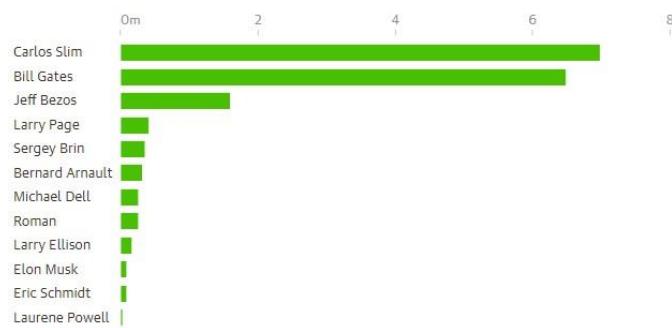

Sea-level rise and climatic change threaten the existence of atoll nations. Inundation and erosion are expected to render islands uninhabitable over the next century, forcing human migration. Here we present analysis of shoreline change in all 101 islands in the Pacific atoll nation of Tuvalu. Using remotely sensed data, change is analysed over the past four decades, a period when local sea level has risen at twice the global average ($-3.90 \pm 0.4 \text{ mm yr}^{-1}$). Results highlight a net increase in land area in Tuvalu of 73.5 ha (2.9%), despite sea-level rise, and land area increase in eight of nine atolls. Island change has lacked uniformity with 74% increasing and 27% decreasing in size. Results challenge perceptions of island loss, showing islands are dynamic features that will persist as sites for habitation over the next century, presenting alternate opportunities for adaptation that embrace the heterogeneity of island types and their dynamics.

Hertz is moving these out to buy more gas-powered cars. Factor in the tax credit and you can get a screaming deal.

Back in the early part of the pandemic, rental giant Hertz made history. It started adding Teslas to its rental fleet, in part to replace some of the cars it sold during the crisis to stay afloat. It seemed like a great move at the time—a way to get zero-emission rental cars on the road and maybe introduce drivers to EVs for the first time. But after struggling with repair costs and dramatically lower resale values—that's a big source of income for rental car companies—Hertz is unloading those cars in volume now.

But, there's a silver lining here. As those cars exit the rental fleets and enter the used market, two and three-year-old Teslas are making their way to the used car market for not a lot of money. And boy howdy, are there some deals to be had.

1. They immediately lose 10% of their total battery capacity permanently. Google “tesla range loss” if you don’t believe me. Tesla warranty only covers more than 30% capacity loss up to 100k miles so the average 10% loss within the first year (I lost it within the first 3000 miles) is completely within spec.
2. Cold weather destroys range. So if you live in the north expect to lose about 33% of your range on days the temp drops below 40 degrees.
3. Driving faster than 60 to 65 mph destroys range. If you drive 80 mph expect to get about 75 miles using 50% of your battery capacity. Get ready to be cursed regularly on the freeway if you drive 65 mph.
4. You’re instructed to not charge it to more than 80% capacity or let it drop below 20% capacity or it damages the battery. So you really only have 60% of the capacity to work with.
5. Real world range is 66% of whatever the battery shows. If my battery says I have 198 miles to 0% that means I have 132 real miles.
6. Supercharging is 90% as expensive as gasoline and damages your battery and takes more than an hour.
7. Anything that heats up the battery is bad for its health. Ie supercharging, parking the car in the sun, doing multiple fast launches.

So take my “long range” tesla which has 330 miles range new. It lost more 10% of that range within 2 months of ownership and now shows 290 miles range at 100% charge. Furthermore I’m not supposed to charge it to 100% or let it drop below 20% so my range is now 60% of 290 miles so something like 180 miles. Also real world mileage is 2/3 of that range so I only get something like 120 miles usable range which means I can’t drive further than 60 to 75 miles away from home.

ELECTRICITY "TAKEN FROM AIR" DRIVES AUTOMOBILE

C. E. AMMANN AND HIS "ATMOSPHERIC GENERATOR" ATTACHED TO AN ELECTRIC AUTOMOBILE

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 26.—Demonstrations are being made on the streets of Denver of a new electric generator that is claimed by the inventors to take electricity from the air.

The inventors are J. E. Ammann of Denver, and his brother, C. E. Ammann of Spokane, Wash.

To demonstrate, the brothers borrowed an old electric automobile, the batteries, and after roping their new "atmospheric generator" fast, they got in and rode off at high speed.

"There is nothing inside the drum that moves; the contents consists only of iron, wire and minerals," says C. E. Ammann.

"It can be used to drive any electrical apparatus and can be made in any size."

The brothers are closely guarding their secret, and even take their "brain-child" when it is not in use, to their room in the Argonaut hotel.

Some inventors have refused to offer to sell their preparation.

Electric men in Denver are waiting "to be shown," but they grant the thing works.

Good God! Is Britain really going to jail people who disagree with net zero?

A piece of legislation snuck quietly through Parliament yesterday. If we don't fight it you might very well face jail time for non-compliance with new zero diktats on your home, writes Lois Perry.

Cameras are being installed all across London, including in residential neighborhoods, as part of the far-left mayor Sadiq Khan's ULEZ (Ultra Low Emission Zone) plan to charge drivers every single time they drive.

Drivers will be charged £12.50 ($15.8) every time they drive in any area of London unless their car is electric or meets certain emission standards.

Produce work that disproves human-caused catastrophic climate change = career suicide

It's not a scientific effort, it's a political one. Rom Journal editors to reviewers to the bodies that award grants and university administration - there is a network of climate activists that have decided to corrupt all scientific endeavor. It was literally reveal multiple times through leaks. There was a couple even this year, a scientist was told that an activist got hold of a pre-print of his paper and worked to ensure hostile reviewers at a certain journal were picked to review it and make sure it wasn't published, because it's conclusions were not dire.

Another scientist wrote an article about how he has always exaggerated the dire conclusion in his work to get published - he knew he would not be published otherwise. He was being published in Nature.

On #J6 Ray Epps texted a nephew saying "I orchestrated it" after telling J6ers "we need to go into the Capitol"
Why was Epps on FBI's most wanted list & then suddenly removed?
Why did Epps get 1 year probation, $500 fine & community service? He's a Fed.

He was immediately called out as a fed on January 5th by Trump supporters.

Ray Epps Charged With Misdemeanor In Long-Delayed Wrist-Slap

 BY TYLER DURDEN

While dozens of January 6th political prisoners languish behind bars, the man caught on camera repeatedly inciting them to enter the Capitol, Ray Epps, was just given a long-delayed slap on the wrist.

This lame single charge tells us everything we need to know about Ray Epps.

FBI organizes almost all terror plots in the US

22 Aug, 2011 21:02 / Updated 9 years ago

The Federal Bureau of Investigation employs upwards of 15,000 undercover agents today, ten times what they had on the roster back in 1975.

If you think that's a few spies too many — spies earning as much as $100,000 per assignment — one doesn't have to go too deep into their track record to see their accomplishments. Those agents are responsible for an overwhelming amount of terrorist stings that have stopped major domestic catastrophes in the vein of 9/11 from happening on American soil. Another thing those agents are responsible for, however, is plotting those very schemes. The FBI has in recent years used trained informants not just to snitch on suspected terrorists, but to set them up from the get-go. A recent report put The Intercept

A documentary film, The Newburgh Sting, premiered at the Tribeca Film Festival in April of last year. The film set out to expose how the FBI entraps and coaxes otherwise peaceful people into participating in hoax crimes.

In the film, former FBI assistant director Thomas Fuentes defends the tactics used by the FBI to set up poverty-stricken men and offering them large sums of money to commit crimes.

After he had defended the FBI's role in bribing poor people to get them to commit crimes, he let out a bombshell statement, confirming what many of us already know. In the film, Fuentes stated:

"If you're submitting budget proposals for a law enforcement agency, for an intelligence agency, you're not going to submit the proposal that 'We won the war on terror and everything's great,' cause the first thing that's gonna happen is your budget's gonna be cut in half." (stated Director TVNN)

PARENTS CATCH FBI IN PLOT TO FORCE MENTALLY ILL SON TO BE A RIGHT WING TERRORIST

THE PARENTS OF A SEVERELY MENTALLY DISABLED MAN ARE SPEAKING OUT ON HOW THE FBI GROOMED HIM AS A RIGHT-WING TERRORIST, KNOWING HE'S PARANOID, SCHIZOPHRENIC.

Originally Released 08/17/17 — (TFTP) It's become a near-weekly occurrence. Somewhere in some state, the FBI will announce that they've foiled yet another terrorist plot and saved lives. However, as the data shows, the majority of these cases involve psychologically diminished paties who've been entirely groomed, armed, and entrapped by FBI agents. Simply put, the FBI manufactures terror threats and then takes credit for stopping them.

Got blown up last night a mile away from the White House. He also was the head of a security government agency to stop spies and then he said america sold all our secrets to Israel and Israel has a back door to every software and hard drive in the nation.

He then said his wife and sister were conspiring against him, wife took out $200k insurance policy for "accidental death", forced him in mental hospital (can't own guns now) and he contacted many 3 letter agencies for help, but they all ignored him.

All software and hardware have 'backdoor' security breaches 'purposefully built-in' with governments/nations spying on people.

I doubt 'Merica and DoD changed their network security architecture since my CFIUS days around 2003 ... but Checkpoint Security (Israeli-based company) firewalls and security products are deeply entrenched throughout 'Merica's and DoD's network (including the Internet). This is NOT a secret.

THEY intentionally sacrificed 'Merica's & DoD's security to Israel.

Israel receives 'Merica's & DoD's network 'telemetry' via Checkpoint Security 'backdoors'.

#FAKEWARHAMASvISRAEL This is a 'network' proxy war against the people perpetrated by governments/nations with the Media complicit in signaling and falsifying 'journalistic' reporting.

From my archive:

Given the obvious advantages of being able to predict the future, LNSS, using a closed-loop interface with Goldman Sachs, was able to create a series of "lucky trades" on the stock market that buoyed the U.S. economy to its pre-crash level with frightening inevitability; a capability utilized once again in 2020 after a similar 40% plunge forced its use. A cover-story explaining away Goldman's lucky trades was published in 2009, attributing Lloyd Blankfein's success to "superior server collocation" and "reduced ping times," as well as math-based trading known as "quant" trading.

John Westbrook was an employee of this program.

After many years of wanting to enter retirement and fearing that former employees are routinely killed, he decided not to return from a scheduled outing.

This fact, combined with his fluency in Mandarin, led his superiors to assume he was defecting to China, when, after using LNSS mainframes to mine nearly one million dollars in Bitcoin, paid a local for a used automobile using the cryptocurrency, which would have been the only form of tender he had access to as LNSS staff are not permitted to have money or personal vehicles; their pay is deposited to savings accounts they have no access to. Twice-annual outings, usually to Boulder, are the only respite from the desert the employees are allowed, and these are chaperoned trips using government vehicles.

(Third try. Jannies keep killing the thread.)

Before eightkun, there was eightchan. eightchan went down August 5th, 2019, after Cloudflare announced on August 4th that they would not host the site anymore. After Q allegedly stopped posting here on fourchan on November 30th, 2017, and moved to eightchan, it took on far more importance than it had before.

Between August 5th and early November 2019, eightchan struggled to stay online, eventually returning as 8kun. To better understand this point in time, I figured I'd do some digging, to see if I could reconstruct a timeline and trace the site's history, since I hadn't heard of Q at that time. What I found is far more layered than I originally expected. We need to preserve the historical record of the uniqueness of this time and place in history, and so I undertook this project. I've only used free and/or public sources here, but the research presented within is original.

To explore the history of eightkun, we will walk through a timeline of events. Other than a few specific instances, I will leave it up to you to draw conclusions as to the significance of a particular event. We don't have all the details, but a sketch clearly exists.

Motivations are important. Why am I posting this research here on fourchan? A few reasons, but the primary reason is that evaluating eightkun on eightkun garners a certain defensiveness. Posting on this place will not only ensure the information is relentlessly criticized but is also archived. Why am I posting this research now? Because something tells me the site will take on historical importance at some point soon. While we don't know Q's motivations and backing players, we do know they exist and continue to exist, which alone warrants investigation.

I did this research back in August but have refrained posting until now. I used qmap . pub for the exact URL to Q's posts. Not all Q post aggregator sites use the exact same URLs for Q posts, and I trust that qmap . pub maintained the most accurate information of any.

Before we begin, I need to explain the workings of a few components of the Internet. Lots of terms here, but they're important for understanding, so please bear with it. I will title each paragraph, so if you already understand the topic, you can skip ahead.

(1) IP addresses

You are likely familiar with the concept of an Internet Protocol (IP) address, specifically an IPv4 address, a 32-bit/4-byte long "location" which allows one device on the Internet to find another. A well-known example of an IP address is 192.168.1.1, commonly used for accessing a router on a home network. Blocks of IP addresses are commonly referred to using "/##" syntax. For example, 10.10.10.0/24 refers to the IP address "block" from 10.10.10.0 - 10.10.10.255 (the "/24" indicates the top 24 of 32 bits are fixed)

(2) IP address allocation

What is less known is that IP addresses are managed by the Internet Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers (ICANN), an American non-profit corporation. ICANN owns a subsidiary organization named the Internet Assigned Numbers Authority (IANA), who is delegated the authority to oversees global IP address allocation, among other things. IANA further delegates IP addresses to a regional Internet registry (RIR), an organization responsible for allocating addresses within a specific geographic region. There are five RIRs in the world: AFRINIC, ARIN, APNIC, LACNIC, and RIPE NCC. We will only be focusing on two RIRs: ARIN and APNIC. ARIN is the American Registry for Internet Numbers, handling IP address registration for the United States and others (Antarctica, Canada, and parts of the Caribbean). APNIC is the Asia-Pacific Network Information Centre, who handles IP address registration for "East Asia, Oceania, South Asia, and Southeast Asia," according to Wikipedia.

>> Fourth Researcher !IcaS4P+Bk3wS (ID: C7S0wP/T) 11/09/20(Mon)15:54:19 No.289335128 ► >>289334878

\(3\) DNS

However, we the user rarely use IP addresses to get to websites. Instead, we type in a domain name. The Domain Name System (DNS) provides an immensely valuable service similar to a phone book: given a domain name, it returns an IP address. The returned IP address is then used to communicate with the desired website. DNS works by configuration of special files called "records," and I'll highlight four records of relevance: A, MX, NS, and SOA. The A (address) record maps the domain name to the IP address of the hosting computer. The MX (mail exchange) maps a domain name to a mail server responsible for handling email messages. The NS (name server) record specifies which authoritative directory servers are used to obtain the IP address. The SOA (start of authority) record specifies administrative information about the domain.

(4) WHOIS information

Ownership information exists on both IP addresses and domain names. These records can be obtained by performing a "WHOIS lookup." WHOIS records are publicly browsable, and anyone on a laptop can easily access them. Simply open a Command Prompt/Terminal/Shell and type "whois google.com" to see the WHOIS information for google.com. WHOIS-browsing websites also exist.

We are just about ready to dive in. Now, a WHOIS record is the most authoritative source of information on an IP address or domain name, but you should know that some records I'm drawing from are collected by web scrapers. These tools should be accurate, but it's possible they don't capture site information immediately. When discussing information collected by a web scraper, I will use the word "seen". The bottom of this post contains a list of references and tools, which will help you verify this information.

Four different "eightkun" domains will be highlighted. To make the timeline easier to read, here is a mapping of keywords to sites:

8TOP -> eightkun.top
 8NET -> eightkun.net
 8US -> eightkun.us
 8TW -> eightkun.tw

>September 23rd, 2019

As of today (August 27th, 2020), 8TOP's current IP address is 203.28.246.1. On September 23rd, 2019, the WHOIS record for the 203.28.246.0/24 IP address block was modified, though it's unclear what exactly was changed. A few facts are readily observed about the records for the block:

- The WHOIS record contains no identifiable information; the fields state this block is a "stub." While some registrants will allow for anonymized information, the "stub" nature of the record comes off as odd.
- Curiously, no ownership records prior to September 23rd, 2019, exist for this address block. This strikes me as very odd, as all the other blocks around it (for example, WHOIS lookup on 203.28.245.1) have records with identifying information and have been registered for quite some time. Is it possible that this block was simply never assigned before? It's possible but seems unlikely.
- Wikipedia asserts the 203.0.0.0/8 IP address block has been managed by APNIC since May 1993 [2]. The WHOIS record for 203.28.246.1 supports this assertion, stating the 203.28.246.0/24 IP address block was managed by APNIC at the time of modification.

According to WHOIS records, the 11.0.0.0/8 range has been managed by the DoD Network Information Center (DNIC) since January 19th, 1984 and is the oldest continuously-managed /8 IP address block in existence (given that ARPANET first deployed IPv4 in 1983 and IANA was founded in 1988). The information herein raises many questions:

>Why was eightkun first registered in 2016?

>Why was eightkun first registered in Asia?

>Why was an IP address block WHOIS record modified, with no subsequent owner listed?

>Why was an IP address block transferred from APNIC to ARIN one day after Q announced the creation of the /projectDcomms/ board?

>Why was 8US routed over a DoD network?

>Was 8TW hosted on Njalla servers as a stopgap measure to get the site online?

>Does Tencent play a role in all this?

>and many, many more.

I'm going to leave the information here and leave it to another day to connect this timeline to other worldly events. However, this trail of (public) information clearly demonstrates something unique is occurring around eightkun. Cap, save, spread.

A radical change in Kashmir's ability to control residency and land ownership is raising worries of a Hindu influx into India's only Muslim majority washingtonpost.com

164 8:01 PM - Aug 8, 2019

64 people are talking about this >

The Indian-controlled portion of Kashmir, known as Jammu and Kashmir (J&K), is the only majority-Muslim state in Hindu India. When India became independent in 1947, Article 370 of its constitution granted special rights to J&K so that it could maintain a Muslim majority.

On August 5, India revoked Article 370, to the dismay of most American media. Hindus, they warned, might take over!

Vox's Alex Ward, for example, noted that Article 35A barred people outside the state from buying property, and was written to “prevent India’s majority-Hindu population from moving into Jammu and Kashmir and displacing the Muslims who live there.” Mr. Ward warned there could be “ethnic cleansing.” In another piece, Mr. Ward wrote that some believe “Hindus will flock to the region to push out the Muslims once and for all.”

Suggesting that loss of local population control could lead to “ethnic cleansing” sounds like an unhinged conspiracy theory. Mr. Ward himself, in a piece praising Pete Buttigieg’s plan to combat “white extremism,” said the idea “that white people are being replaced” is a “white nationalist” idea promoted by murderers such as the Christchurch shooter.

What’s wrong with revoking Article 370? Shouldn’t all Indians be able to buy property in their own country? Preventing “outsiders” from buying property sounds like restrictive covenants to me.

Mr. Ward or some “extremism expert” should tell the Muslim Kashmiris that there is no “us” or “them,” and that diversity will soon be their greatest strength.

Mr. Ward warns that Pakistan might intervene to maintain the status quo. Is he implying Muslims in Indian Kashmir might have dual loyalties and want the protection of a foreign country?

Even the New York Times now understands the great replacement:

Human rights activists said that the moves to change Kashmir’s status were only the first steps in a broader plan to erode Kashmir’s core rights and seed the area with non-Kashmiris, altering the demographics and eventually destroying its character.

The human rights group American Renaissance has made the same argument about the United States for decades.

The Washington Post also gets it: “Critics” reportedly say the Indian government’s ruling Bharatiya Janata Party wants to “dilute the concentration of Muslims there and further its project to enshrine the Hindu identity of the nation.” The author also compared the “ethnic and religious undertones” to those in the West Bank, another area where media outlets mysteriously understand the importance of demographics.

The Atlantic worried that without the rule “dating back to colonial times” barring non-Kashmiris from settling, “the demographic balance of the state could shift — and with it, the idea that a vibrant democracy must take special efforts to protect the status of minority communities.”

Should the “status” of the white minority in South Africa be protected? No, said an Atlantic article in 2018. Worrying about the survival of white farmers is a “thinly veiled white supremacist cause.”

Bloomberg’s editorial board said India had made a “mistake.” It wasn’t making Kashmiris “feel like full citizens, in control of their lives and their destinies.” “Democracies as large and heterogeneous as India cannot escape internal tensions,” it said, “but the way to relieve such pressure is to decentralize power and give citizens a greater stake in their governance, as well as more control over local resources.”

That same day, Bloomberg argued for increased federal power in America. “The U.S. needs better intelligence-gathering and more effective preemptive action against domestic terrorists,” it said. Bloomberg also called for more gun control and an intensified fight against “white supremacy.”

When Kashmiris demonstrated against revocation of Article 370, India sent in troops and declared a curfew. Now the BBC even appears to be sympathetic to terrorism in the name of ethnic identity. In an article called “Inside Kashmir’s lockdown: ‘Even I will pick up a gun.’” it quotes without editorializing an angry young man who says of his toddler, “He’s too small now, but I will prepare him to pick up a gun too,” in order to fight what Kashmiris call “dictatorial power.” The article did not call for “gun control” or “tolerance.”

The Associated Press warned that “for many, India’s decision is a breach of trust and an attack on Kashmir’s identity.” Another AP story quoted a local man: “Maybe slowly our identity will disappear.” The AP did not call him “racist,” “far-right,” or “nativist.”

August 10, 2019, London, UK: Demonstrators during a Freedom For Kashmir protest against the Indian government – after it stripped Kashmir of its Indian-administered special status. (Credit Image: © Yui Mok/PA Wire via ZUMA Press)

Two weeks ago, Farooq Abdullah, a member of the Indian parliament who represents Jammu and Kashmir, said he would “not allow any changes in the demography of the state.” He swore to resist “any attempt to dilute Jammu and Kashmir’s unique identity.” Imagine an American politician saying such a thing about the United States.

For white people, progressives repeat condescending slogans about the inevitability of population change.

- Migration is inevitable.
- Borders are just arbitrary.
- There's no way but violence and oppression to stop the mixing of different people.

Yet now we hear warnings about a government trying to “dilute” a native population. Amazing.

Kashmiris are bitter because they thought the Indian constitution guaranteed autonomy. White South Africans thought their land was safe because the constitution said it was. White Americans foolishly think the Constitution will protect their rights. History follows blood, not ink.

Kashmir just got its equivalent of the Hart-Celler Immigration Act of 1965. Unless it’s reversed, Kashmir will lose its identity. Still, at least reporters and human rights groups won’t call Kashmir “racist” for resisting.

You're forgetting that the primary purpose of all modern wars is to kill white people. Reducing local populations to allow for easier globalist infiltration and consolidation of Power.

Every single war in the 20th and 21st centuries has been for this express purpose.

So it should come as no surprise when strategy and tactics revolve around senseless, suicidal meat grinders.

Who is behind the push for mass immigration from the third-world into Western countries?

Jews, Europeans are Amalek. Their 613th law is that they must kill and utterly destroy, all Amalek, down to the last women and children. Furthermore, they must salt the earth of their cities and even kill (and burn, not even eat or use) their livestock. lastly, they must erase all traces that Amalek ever existed, erasing their history and culture and genetics*. Covert genocide through forced admixture accomplishes all of this eventually.

It's very long and verbose and wordy to hide (((his/their))) deeper intentions. What normie will read all that? But it's obvious when you read it all thoughtfully. Perhaps I should make an effort thread analysis of it. If we don't have good discussion here on it

>Equally, and more politically awkward for many Jews, we must save the pro-immigration argument from its own most extreme and uncritical proponents. Especially from those who see unchecked illegal immigration from Mexico (in the 1990s the source of one-third of all immigration to the United States and fully 50 percent of illegal immigration) as a brilliant strategy in an undeclared, low-intensity, and thus far remarkably successful war of Reconquista. With over 8 percent of Mexico's population already here, and who knows what additional percentage on the way, the notion of a de facto Reconquista, especially in the Southwest where the Mexican share of immigration is astronomical, sounds less and less like naïveté bunched

In October 2001, Jewish supremacist Stephen Steinlight published a paper entitled, "The Jewish Stake in America's Changing Demography: Reconsidering a Misguided Immigration Policy." In this paper, which is freely available online, Steinlight admitted that the Jews have been behind the United States' mass immigration, open borders policy, with the express intent of reducing White Americans to a minority. However, Steinlight proposes to his fellow Jews that America's demographic transformation is happening too quickly. The problem, Steinlight says, is that too quick of a transformation to a non-White majority is a threat to Jewish power. Steinlight says that the source of Jewish power in America is White guilt over the Holocaust, and that this is how they have been able to reign supreme. Steinlight is worried that, if Whites become a minority too quickly, the new majority of color will no longer have any connection to or feel any guilt for the Holocaust. He is worried that the new non-white majority will no longer want to give the Jews special privileges, and that they will no longer want to support the State of Israel. Therefore, Steinlight proposes that non-White immigration must be drastically reduced to manageable levels, which will give the Jews more time to brainwash the newcomers with Jewish propaganda. Steinlight specifically mentions the need to reduce Hispanic and Muslim immigration. Steinlight is also concerned that the speed of the demographic transformation is angering White Americans. He is afraid that, if the Jews do not slow down the flood of immigration, Whites will become increasingly racially conscious, and there will be a violent backlash against the Jews. By reducing immigration, the Jews can pacify Whites. He also proposes another tool to prevent White solidarity: a revival of American patriotism. Civic nationalism must be revived so that loyalty to America will outweigh any ethnic loyalties among the Gentile populace. In the end, Steinlight says, a White minority in America is still the goal; but the Jews must do it more gradually.

The forms of standardization, conformism, democratic leveling, frenetic productivity, a more or less domineering and explicit "brain trust," and piecemeal materialism in Americanism can only serve to pave the road for the last phase that is represented, along the same direction, by the communist ideal of the mass-man. The distinctive character of Americanism is that the attack against quality and personality is not put into effect by the brute force of a Marxist dictator and the mind of the State, but it happens almost spontaneously, by the ways of a civilization ignorant of ideals higher than wealth, consumption, productivity, production without brakes.

This is literally the form of economic and social organization idealized by the Soviet Union. You own nothing, and only gain material standing by being loyal to the state. And in this case it won't be the state, but economic consolidation means that basically everything will be owned by a cabal of special financial and political interests who can tell...wait yeah this is just the Soviet Union.

NATO Secretary Jens Stoltenberg has urged China to halt its "growing alignment" with Russia, warning that any military assistance from Beijing to Moscow during the conflict in Ukraine would be a "historic mistake" with major consequences.

Speaking after the conclusion of a NATO foreign ministers meeting in Brussels on Wednesday, Stoltenberg sounded the alarm over Moscow's friendly ties with the People's Republic, insisting Beijing could soon offer weapons to Russia despite its repeated confirmation that it has no plans to do so.

"China refuses to condemn Russia's aggression... And it props up Russia's economy," he claimed, adding "Allies have been clear that any provision of lethal aid by China to Russia would be a historic mistake, with profound implications."

While the NATO head did not elaborate on the "implications," Washington has previously threatened to respond to military support for Russia, while the US Treasury has already moved ahead with sanctions for several China-based companies accused of supplying parts for drones allegedly used by Moscow's forces.

Detach your files from the internet and get hard copy whenever able. Proliferate old works through guerilla lending. Never use cloud storage. Get an old OS for some usage.

MY COMMENT: You'll also want decompartmentalization when it comes to using software and older operating systems! For example using more than one computer, for isolating different online activities, as well using multiple web browsers to isolate your email account(s) from other websites you may routinely visit (which all sites tend to track your information from). Using a VPN and Tor for shitposting is highly recommended too. So would be routinely wiping out the .sqlite browser session caches using programs like Bleachbit. Yes, eventually with tyrannical bullshit like the new "RESTRICT Act" they intend to weaponize the internet and much of it may become recommend having multiple offline backups of important information. And for God's sake, if the government ever inquires any of your online information, lie and tell them you don't socialize online, you don't have an account to ANYTHING. Don't be extremely stupid by using smartphones, btw. Use the phone as it previously existed for: CALLING PEOPLE.

Current Communist Goals

EXTENSION OF REMARKS OF

HON. A. S. HERLONG, JR.
OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, January 10, 1963

Mr. HERLONG. Mr. Speaker, Mrs. Patricia Nordman of De Land, Fla., is an ardent and articulate opponent of communism, and until recently published the De Land Courier, which she dedicated to the purpose of alerting the public to the dangers of communism in America.

At Mrs. Nordman's request, I include in the Record, under unanimous consent, the following "Current Communist Goals," which she identifies as an excerpt from "The Naked Communist," by Cleon Skousen:

[From "The Naked Communist," by Cleon Skousen]

CURRENT COMMUNIST GOALS

1. U.S. acceptance of coexistence as the only alternative to atomic war.
2. U.S. willingness to capitulate in preference to engaging in atomic war.
3. Develop the illusion that total disarmament by the United States would be a demonstration of moral strength.
4. Permit free trade between all nations regardless of Communist affiliation and regardless of whether or not items could be used for war.
5. Extension of long-term loans to Russia and Soviet satellites.
6. Provide American aid to all nations regardless of Communist domination.
7. Grant recognition of Red China. Admission of Red China to the U.N.
8. Set up East and West Germany as separate states in spite of Khrushchev's promise in 1955 to settle the German question by free elections under supervision of the U.N.
9. Prolong the conferences to ban atomic tests because the United States has agreed to suspend tests as long as negotiations are in progress.
10. Allow all Soviet satellites individual representation in the U.N.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — APPENDIX

11. Promote the U.N. as the only hope for mankind. If its charter is rewritten, demand that it be set up as a one-world government with its own independent armed forces. (Some Communist leaders believe the world can be taken over as easily by the U.N. as by Moscow. Sometimes these two centers compete with each other as they are now doing in the Congo.)
12. Resist any attempt to outlaw the Communist Party.
13. Do away with all loyalty oaths.
14. Continue giving Russia access to the U.S. Patent Office.
15. Capture one or both of the political parties in the United States.
16. Use technical decisions of the courts to weaken basic American institutions by claiming their activities violate civil rights.
17. Get control of the schools. Use them as transmission belts for socialism and current Communist propaganda. Soften the curriculum. Get control of teachers' associations. Put the party line in textbooks.
18. Gain control of all student newspapers.
19. Use student riots to foment public protests against programs or organizations which are under Communist attack.
20. Infiltrate the press. Get control of book-review assignments, editorial writing, policymaking positions.
21. Gain control of key positions in radio, TV, and motion pictures.
22. Continue discrediting American culture by degrading all forms of artistic expression. An American Communist cell was told to "eliminate all good sculpture from parks and buildings, substitute shapeless, awkward and meaningless forms."
23. Control art critics and directors of art museums. "Our plan is to promote ugliness, repulsive, meaningless art."
24. Eliminate all laws governing obscenity by calling them "censorship" and a violation of free speech and free press.
25. Break down cultural standards of morality by promoting pornography and obscenity in books, magazines, motion pictures, radio, and TV.
26. Present homosexuality, degeneracy and promiscuity, as "normal, natural, healthy."
27. Infiltrate the churches and replace revealed religion with "social" religion. Discredit the Bible and emphasize the need for intellectual maturity which does not need a "religious crutch."
28. Eliminate prayer or any phase of religious expression in the schools on the ground that it violates the principle of "separation of church and state."
29. Discredit the American Constitution by calling it inadequate, old-fashioned, out of step with modern needs, a hindrance to cooperation between nations on a worldwide basis.
30. Discredit the American Founding Fathers. Present them as selfish aristocrats who had no concern for the "common man."
31. Belittle all forms of American culture and discourage the teaching of American history on the ground that it was only a minor part of the "big picture." Give more emphasis to Russian history since the Communists took over.
32. Support any socialist movement to give centralized control over any part of the culture—education, social agencies, welfare programs, mental health clinics, etc.
33. Eliminate all laws or procedures which interfere with the operation of the Communist apparatus.
34. Eliminate the House Committee on Un-American Activities.
35. Discredit and eventually dismantle the FBI.
36. Infiltrate and gain control of more unions.
37. Infiltrate and gain control of big business.
38. Transfer some of the powers of arrest from the police to social agencies. Treat all behavioral problems as psychiatric disorders which no one but psychiatrists can understand or treat.
39. Dominate the psychiatric profession and use mental health laws as a means of gaining coercive control over those who oppose Communist goals.
40. Discredit the family as an institution. Encourage promiscuity and easy divorce.
41. Emphasize the need to raise children away from the negative influence of parents. Attribute prejudices, mental blocks and retarding of children to suppressive influence of parents.
42. Create the impression that violence and insurrection are legitimate aspects of the American tradition; that students and special-interest groups should rise up and use united force to solve economic, political or social problems.
43. Overthrow all colonial governments before native populations are ready for self-government.
44. Internationalize the Panama Canal.
45. Repeal the Connally reservation so the United States cannot prevent the World Court from seizing jurisdiction over nations and individuals alike.

"At least 4 billion 'useless eaters' shall be eliminated by the year 2050 by means of forced wars, organized epidemics of fatal rapid-spreading diseases and starvation. Energy, food and water shall be kept at subsistence levels for the over-class, starting with the White population of Western Europe and North America and then spreading to other races."

The population of Canada, Western Europe and the US will be reduced more rapidly than in other continents, until the world's population reaches a manageable level of 2 billion, of which 200 million will consist of Chinese and Japanese races, selected because they are people who have been engineered for eugenics and who are accustomed to obeying authority without question." (p. 169)

To the people who own and run the planet, humanity has become a dead weight except as servants and slaves. Below, M1-6 whiteblogger John Coleman describes the covid endgame: A return to feudalism where a billion people will serve the super-rich.

"The non-elite masses will be reduced to the level of treated animals with no will of their own and easily reprogrammed and controlled."
"Mergers shall be enforced and there shall be family ties so we know if children will be removed from their parents or are anti-social and brought up by weird mutants: property."

yesterday, a yid kvetched once more at me using that word so it gave me the idea of also calling it "tikkun olam" (that which it is), which I guess will anger them even more basically, the spiritual goal of jews (the tikkun olam, literally repairing the world) is to mix everything back into their god (moloch/saturn /satan/etc), because they believe he broke a part of himself to create the world, and fusing it all back is the only way to make moloch whole again hence why the kid raping (mixing good and evil, innocence and guilt), the troons and fags (mixing man and woman), the rapefugees and co (mixing races), etc

I'm gonna write it like that, now:

So we don't get locked in camps for having a virus with a 99.9% survival rate

Statistics on gun deaths anonymous (ID KLCHEV) = 100000 / (Salvoes NO. 144390828)

There are 30,000 gun related deaths per year by firearms, and this number is not disputed. U.S. population 324,059,091 as of Wednesday, June 22, 2016. Do the math: 0.000000925% of the population dies from gun related actions each year. Statistically speaking, this is insignificant! What is never told, however, is a breakdown of those 30,000 deaths, to put them in perspective as compared to other causes of death:

- 63% of those deaths are by suicide which would never be prevented by gun laws
• 37% are by law enforcement in the line of duty and justified
• 17% are through criminal activity, gang and drug related or mentally ill persons – gun violence
• 1% are accidental discharge deaths

Technically "run violence" is not 30 000 annually but drone to 5,100 Still too many? Well first how are those deaths channeled across the nation?

- 30 homicides (9.4%) were in Chicago
14 homicides (6.7%) were in Baltimore
13 homicides (6.5%) were in Detroit
19 homicides (2.3%) were in Washington D.C. (a 54% increase over prior years)

So basically 25% of all gun crime happens in just 4 cities. All 4 of those cities have strict gun laws, so it is not the lack of law that is the root cause.

This basically leaves 3,825 for the entire rest of the nation or about 75 deaths per state. That is an average because some States have much higher rates than others. For example California had 1,169 and Alabama had 1

Now, who has the strictest gun laws by far? California, of course, but understand, so it is not guns causing this. It is a crime rate spawned by the number of criminal persons residing in those cities and states. So if all cities and states are not created equally, then there must be something other than the tool causing the gun deaths.

File: DCECECECEC-Ef630.xls E[640,403]

Are 5,100 deaths per year horrific? Yes. How about in comparison to other deaths? Not really. All death of course is sad and tragic, even when it is in the commission of a crime, but that is the nature of crime. Robbery, death, rape, assault, all is done by criminals and thinking that criminals will obey laws is ludicrous. That's why they are criminals.

- 40,000+ die from a drug overdose—THERE IS NO EXCUSE FOR THAT!
  - 36,000 people die per year from the flu, far exceeding the criminal gun deaths

- Now it gets good:
• 200,000+ people die each year (and growing) from preventable medical errors. You are safer in Chicago than when you are in a hospital!

[So you have to ask yourself, in the grand scheme of things, why the focus on guns? It's pretty simple.]

All kinds of wild theories are floating around. This political battle between the locals and corporations over land in Oahu and Maui and even the Big Island has been going on forever. My family, before the pandemic hoax, vacationed there twice a year, since I was a child and the Kama'aina have always been at odds with developers. The last time I was there, back in 2018, violence erupted on the H1 over some bill that passed that allowed development on the west side of Oahu. Yet, there were no EnMod attacks. None that I'm aware of, at least. All of this could have been done back then. Why now? Were the recent fires as a result of a Jewish Space Laser? Perhaps. I wouldn't doubt it, because EnMod (Environmental Modification) technology is very real and have been used one too many times in the recent past. New York, Texas and California, to be specific, with their "alarming" and "unprecedented" weather changes.

Still, we must be very careful with the crazy Christian Boomer kookery that is going to emerge out of this disaster. In addition, we can rest assured that none of this is a natural disaster as the powers that be want us to believe. It is certainly not as a result of global warming, climate-change or any of the buzzwords the IPCC and its charlatans would have us repeating.

On one hand there is "Climate Change" that is supposedly anthropogenic—caused by humans and emissions of carbon dioxide and fossil fuels "into the earth's atmosphere". This Climate Change is an elaborate hoax, but it gets tricky, still, because anthropogenic climate change is real, because very evil people have the capacity and technology to modify the weather so as to deceive the very elect and murder billions in the interim. It has nothing to do with us, little people, who drive our vehicles to and fro, but the governments and militaries around the world who possess this technological power.

For what it's worth, I'm hoping for a writer to write this complicated yet very simple story for Maui. Yes, feels ridiculous because I know no one in these high places or what I'm doing. but it isn't sexual

Sure. LOL. 😊

You can watch an infant boy being sexually fondled and masturbated here by a mohel. He's given a forced erection, so then it's easier for the child sex-abuser to mutilate his penis:

And here is the proof that this is all deliberate:

In the "Surgery of Ritual Circumcision", Dr. Snowman states, "When the penis of an infant is in a state of erection the operation is more easily performed and the dressing more efficiently applied."

A PDF of the book can be found here:

<https://www.15square.org.uk/wp-content/uploads/2015/09/ND000946.pdf>

Here a mohel describes how the point of circumcision is to damage the boy's sexuality:

<https://youtu.be/XN65C9tbLP0?t=10m34s>

<https://youtu.be/XN65C9tbLP0?t=4s>

You can watch a full mutilation here. The little boy will be raped by having a metal probe forced in-between his foreskin and the glans of the penis. The foreskin is adhered to the glans and birth, and does not separate until he is older. The rape-probe tears the two apart — rather like having a needle forced under your fingernail.

Then the boy will be tortured by having a clamp applied to his penis and his foreskin crushed. Then the child sex-abuser will mutilate his penis by amputating his foreskin.

<https://youtu.be/W2PKdDOjooA?t=3m2s>

This lucky little boy then gets a "Happy Ending" — the child sex-abuser sucks his bleeding penis, gives him herpes and then the kid gets brain damaged for life or, SPECIAL BONUS, dies.

In 1979, at the request of the FDA, Wyeth Laboratories (purchased by Pfizer in 2009) voluntarily withdrew lot 64201 of the DTP vaccine because of reports of eight infants in Tennessee dying of SIDS within one week of receiving this vaccine (some within 24 hours)

Wyeth decided to never again allow a cluster of vials from one lot to be sent to a single state or health department.

Limiting the distribution of vials to no more than two thousand in one geographic region makes it less likely for any cluster of injuries to be traced to the vaccine.

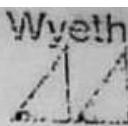

Instead of recalling hot lots of deadly vaccines, just distribute the lot all over the country so no one makes the connection.

Profit over children's lives!

Whip this evidence of vaccine injury / VIDS (vaccine-induced death syndrome) cover-up out next time your pro-vaccine relatives accuse you of being a "conspiracy theorist."

After the reporting of the SID cases in Tennessee, we discussed the merits of limiting distribution of a large number of vials from a single lot to a single state, county or city health department and obtained agreement from the senior management staff to proceed with such a plan.

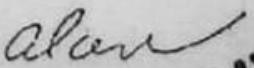

This subject has been discussed with Charlie Young and the following guidelines were developed by FSRD. I would appreciate your comments concerning this procedure and the advisability of formalizing these guidelines.

Interim Measures in Affect

- Allocation of stock to Distribution Centers is designated by lot number in a manner designed to leave the maximum variety of lot numbers in Great Valley and Marietta to service substantial orders.
- Managers in D.C.'s carrying average inventories of over 3000 packages (approximate) have been requested to advise FSRD of any orders exceeding 2000 vials. FSRD will then designate shipment by lot number, furnishing additional stock as needed.

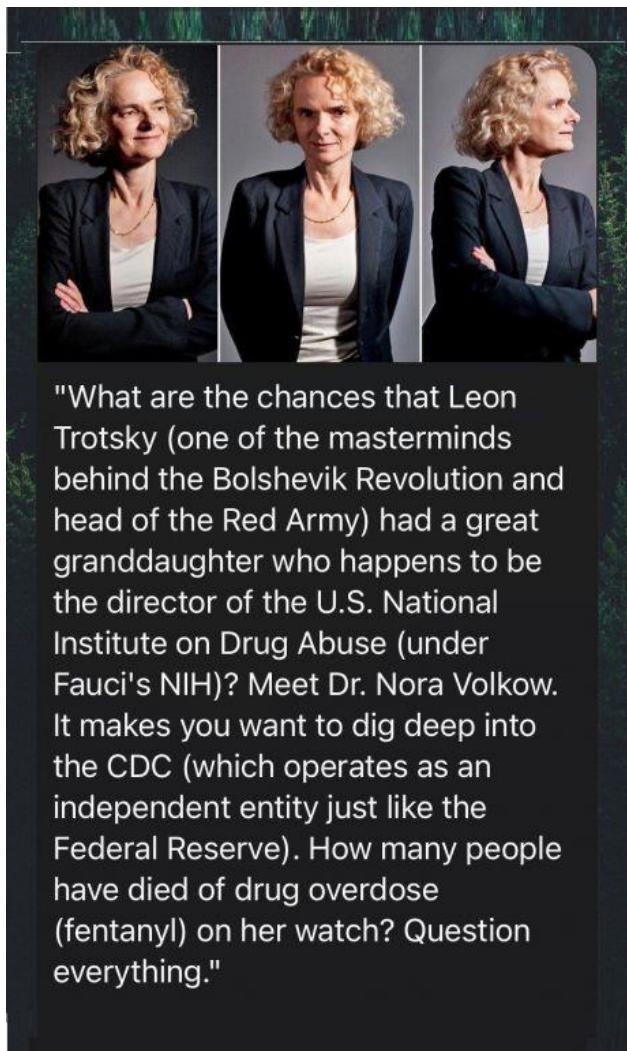

Permanent Policy Proposal

- A D.C. will not fill any order with stock exceeding 2000 packages of one lot number before clearing with FSRD.
- When additional stock is needed for compliance, FSRD will make necessary arrangements...
- In the event that the national inventory does not permit compliance, FSRD will clear exception with Marietta management, or make arrangements for split delivery.

The person who succeeds in transmuting the sexual energy, and in diffusing it to all the physical and emotional centres of his system, becomes highly “magnetic”—highly charged with “personal magnetism,” in many cases. Here, then, is a safe, moral and efficacious method, which may be approved of by the most conservative moralist, and which is free from the glaring faults and dangerous elements of the “strongly sexed” teachings. Moreover, the “magnetism” generated by this method is clean, wholesome, and exalting, and far removed from the impure, harmful, lowering influence too often present in the “magnetism” of persons of the “highly sexed” type who live lives too often far from desirable, beneficial, moral, or righteous.

In this connection we wish to call your attention to a fact which has been noted and commented upon by many careful students of the subject of Regeneration, and which has greatly puzzled many good people. We allude to the fact that persons practicing the methods of Regeneration, and who live according to its principles, seem to possess a potent quality of attraction for persons of the other sex; in many cases such attraction and its results proving embarrassing and in the nature of a temptation. The explanation of this fact is found in the Law of Polarity which is found manifest in all natural activities; we shall not go into details concerning this law, but merely wish to indicate the nature of the explanation. The person understanding the principles and methods of Personal Power will have no difficulty in meeting successfully these results of his attracting power.

Concerning this attractive influence, the following comments of Dr. Hiram E. Butler, may prove interesting and instructive. Dr. Butler, a life-long and earnest investigator and teacher of the principles of Regeneration, though perhaps somewhat of an extremist in his views and methods, says:

“Those following these methods will have all the bloom of health, and in addition will possess that personal magnetism which is so attractive, and which is really one of the strongest factors of success even in a business way; it is, in fact, the main requisite for the success of speakers, teachers, lawyers, doctors and salesmen. We have often heard that those who are living this life have added power of attracting the opposite sex. Now, here lies one of the greatest dangers—that of attracting to oneself those who will use every means to ensnare one. Young people who live this life become possessed of such attractive powers that they usually have their choice of a companion from any class of life. This, however, is the least important consideration.”

Dr. Butler also says: “We know that it is an impossibility to express in words one-half that is to be attained through this mode of life; but we will mention a few facts and leave you to prove them by experience; then you will know for yourself. It gives a joyous happy feeling to body and mind: clears up the intellect so that one may readily understand the most abstruse subjects; it gives strength and decision of character and directness of purpose; a love of refinement, purity, goodness, honor, justice and morality; in every conceivable direction it adds to the capacity of mind and body; a process of growth which will steadily continue; we have never known anyone who could define the limits of the possibility of increase; we have known some of the most marvelous mind-powers gained through living the regenerate life; we have seen young men and women with pale faces, dim eyes, and poor health, begin a course of lessons on this subject, but before the course closed inside of three weeks, their eyes would grow bright and the color would return to their cheeks.”

Medical Red pill: Cum passes through rectal walls and massively inhibits the immune system. This is the cause of AIDS

Rectal infusion of semen results in transient elevation of blood prostaglandins

Abstract

Repeated semen deposition in the gut may be linked to the development of viral infections in homosexual men. Other investigators have suggested that rectal insemination may diminish immune responsiveness. We approximated conditions of human insemination by infusing 2 ml of pooled human seminal plasma (SP) into the rectum and/or vagina of rhesus monkeys. This resulted in increased blood plasma concentrations of the bicyclic derivative of prostaglandin E (PGEM-II) which reached peak concentrations 2 h after rectal SP instillation in seven of eight test monkeys, but not the controls. The rate of PGE2 diffusion appeared to occur more rapidly across vaginal than rectal mucosa. Suppression of peripheral cellular immune functions was not demonstrated after the single exposure of this study, although persistent and repeat exposures could lead to local or generalized suppression of host defense mechanisms. Absorption of PGE's from the gut may be a cofactor in the development of sexually transmitted viral diseases.

From the report of Chief Waters, District No. 7

April 18th (afternoon, early evening)

I was notified that the fire was starting at Valencia and Market Sts. St., We held the fire in check until I was notified that this block was going to be dynamited, and we were forced to leave. The work of the wreckers was not successful, as the block burned up after being dynamited.

From the report of Chief Waters, District No. 7

April 18th

A foreman, employed at the Railway Tunnels at Baden reported to me that he had a wagon load of dynamite and offering his services we proceeded to dynamite all the buildings on the East side of 8th St., from Market to Folsom Sts.,

From the report of Chief Conlon, District No. 9

April 18th

I recall in one instance, that after dynamiting the two frame buildings facing 8th St., next to the N. E. Cor. Harrison St., we placed a case of dynamite on the east side of each floor, of the three story frame building situated on the N. E. Cor. of 8th and Harrison Sts., and attempted to fall this frame house into the premises previously dynamited; we failed in this however, as the building was blown in the opposite direction into the street.

April 18th

I assisted the dynamiting crew then destroying the buildings on the North side of Harrison St., between 7th and 8th Sts., this attempt was made to save the Children's Playground, but once again proved unavailing.

From the report of Chief Conlon, District No. 9

April 18th

In the afternoon we met Civilians hauling boxes of dynamite and also fuses and caps in a buggy, and with this we attempted to check the progress of the fire by dynamiting both sides of Langton St., between Folsom & Harrison Sts. This also was unsuccessful, as we had no water to extinguish the flames which originated after dynamiting.

From the report of Captain T J Murphy, Engine Co. No. 29

April 18th

After this we were ordered to fight the fire which was then raging in the vicinity of Hayes and Gough streets, but by the time we reached there two complete blocks were on fire. After a long hard fight we found that we were making very little headway owing to the scarcity of water; the fire was spreading rapidly in all directions and in a last effort to check the spreading of the flames dynamite was used.

From the report of Captain Carew. Truck Co. No. 7

April 18th, (afternoon)

By order of Chief Shaugnessy [sic], and under the direction of some official from the powder works considerable dynamiting was done in the vicinity of Franklin and Van Ness Ave., on Hayes St. They also used dynamite in the neighborhood of 11th [sic] and Mission Streets. By the use of this explosive a number of buildings were raised to the ground, but as we were under the leadership of a competent [sic] person (one who was used to the handling of high grade explosives) very little damage was done to the properties which joined those we dynamited. This dynamiting occurred [sic] on Wednesday P. M. April 18th.

From the report of Captain Carew. Truck Co. No. 7

April 19th, 12: A.M.

At 12.30 A. M. April 19th, we received word that there was water at Fourteenth & Folsom Sts., but were unable to take that corner at once, on account of the dynamiting which was then going on in that vicinity, under command of Colonel Walter Kelly, First Regiment National Guard California. After they had dynamited five buildings in that vicinity, we connected to the hydrant on the South-west corner of Fourteenth and Folsom Sts., but, on account of the fierceness of the fire then raging in the buildings which had been dynamited we were compelled to retreat to the hydrant in the middle of the block on the West side of Folsom St., between Fourteenth & Fifteenth Sts.

From the report of Captain Radford, Engine Co. No. 25

Nigger, I'm 40 years old.

Literally every "major event" the government has been a part of in my lifetime has been a psyop.

>Covid was a lie

>Elections are a lie

>Iraq was a lie

>Afghanistan was a lie

>Waco was a lie

>OKC was a lie >immigrants help our labor force is a lie

>gender is a lie is a lie literally nothing they claim to be true is true. Now go back another 40 years, and the lies from THAT generation look even more ridiculous.

>Lee Harvey Oswald was a lie

>Nixon was a lie

>Jack Ruby was a lie

>the moon landing was a lie

>the holocaust was a lie

Keep going back and the lies get progressively bigger and more ostentatious >dinosaurs existed 250 million years ago but we just found the bones in 1850 >the earth had ice ages as evidenced by the temperature readings we got from this ice we drilled up in antarctica >there were no floods, I don't know how ruins under the ocean got there >of course the earth is round, but dont think about if you'd come out the otherside upside down because theres magma in the middle

I believe, after 40 years on this planet, that the governments of the world exist to do something other than elect the common man to write laws to protect him from himself. I believe that to further whatever that agenda is, they construct a narrative of the current reality, that then gets retconned to be something completely different as needed, when the generation that exists to raise a big enough stink is too demorazlied to care, or too old to remember.

Covid proved this.

When you start looking at the world through that lens, its tough to see a feasible scenario where a bunch of white men got together and said >lets build some incredibly ornate, expansive architectural masterpieces that conjure up memories of our greatness, rather than building the real thing, for a week long fair, that we will then tear down and never speak of again.

from what we gathered: a 'world war' took place from around 1750 to 1870 in which the last of the atlanteans/irish(aryans) lost to the phoenicians(jews). the aryan higher beings, remnants of atlantis, were responsible for the fantastical architecture, language, mathematics and spirituality that are the backbone of human civilization. the phoenician alien jews exterminated the problematic aryans, hijacked and inverted their knowledge and then, using that hijacked knowledge, created chimeric clones. the clones were grown like produce until able to be transported around the world via train (orphan trains). once at their destination these chimera children would be put into orphan asylums(reeducation centers) ran by secret societies like the freemasons and oddfellows where they would be force fed the historical narrative that is mainstream today.

This is a solid theory. British aristocrats class obviously the modern offshoot of a bunch of Phoenician lines. Even the modus operandi is the same, they brought the navy and child butchery to England as well. Also explains the antipathy towards classicism and beauty and culture amongst some of these "elites". Imagine a classical world that thought they vanquished the Carthaginians after "Carthago delenda est", went back to doing dope shit. Only to have some of those aristocrat families and seafaring merchants survive and vow eternal vengeance in anger. You might even say they'd be angry enough to do their own heckin holocaust (sacrificial burnt offerin)

What if they just built a handful of ornate buildings with cheap materials, and then had big photo ops tearing them down, and told future generations that all buildings from that era were made with cheap materials for the world fair, and torn down after?

A similar grift might be, like, labeling every symptom associated with the common cold or the flu as "COVID," then saying that even not having symptoms of COVID is a symptom, then handing out tests that pop positive 40% of the time, and telling future generations there was a pandemic.

Or what if you just took a handful of bones from megafauna and labeled them as terrible lizards, then covered them with lead paint and locked them away in a museum and told all future generations that all big bones are dinosaurs?

Or what if you sent a bunch of cameras tied to balloons up as high as you can get them, and took pictures of the land, and then cobble them together and said they were the only pictures of earth you could provide from space, and anytime a balloon crashed down you said it was to monitor weather, despite the fact that your space agency is the biggest purchaser of helium on the planet?

weak and excitable brain. For there is little reason to doubt that Hung Hsiu-tsuau, the rebel leader, was the true originator of the movement, while there is no evidence to show that he ever was a member of a Triad, or other secret association. It is not surprising, however, that the Government should put the "Masonic" element in the strongest light, and make the rebellion an excuse for prosecuting to the utmost whatever measures may be decided on for the suppression of lodges.

they built for Truth, for the affirmation of their ideal, for the propagation and the nobility of their science. Those of the Renaissance, preoccupied above all by their personality, jealous of their worth, built for their own future fame. The Middle Ages owed their splendour to the originality of their creations; the Renaissance owed its vogue to the servile fidelity of its copies. The former was an idea; the latter, a fashion. On one side, genius; on the other, talent. In gothic art, the actual execution remains subordinate to the idea; in Renaissance art, it dominates and obliterates the idea. The one appeals to the heart, to the brain, to the soul; it is the triumph of spirit. The other is directed to the senses; it is the glorification of matter. From the twelfth to the fifteenth century, there was poverty of media, but a wealth of expression; from the sixteenth century onwards, art has shown beauty of form, but mediocrity of invention. The medieval masters knew how to animate common limestone; the artists of the Renaissance left their marble inert and cold.

This preface is not a usual preface to this concrete book. More likely, it is my free speculations on the theme of long time studies of chronology and problems of «ancient» history in general. In fact, it is a processed and amended transcript of my prolonged talks with the authors of this book.

First, let me explain the reason of my interest in the problem of chronology. I have been seriously inspired by ancient, medieval and new history since childhood. I have read a great number of historical works and books. I have good memory, I remember well many historical dates, names, events. For many years I have created in my mind a full enough picture of history of «ancient» and medieval world in the way it is presented to us today. But besides, I like to analyze, figure out various opportunities, compare situations. And little by little, I have got a feeling that something is wrong with dates in ancient history. Here and there were discrepancies which cannot be solved within traditional history. One of the first problems that caused my unconscious concern was the impossibility to place heroes of ancient Greek mythology within the time scale that embraces the surmised period of their activities. Mythical Theseus slaying Minotaur to liberate Athens from humiliating tribute to the powerful Cretan king and then uniting whole Attica under his native town, his contemporaries assaulting the walls of Troy, all numerous exploits of this «generation of heroes» embrace 7-8(!) centuries of ancient Greek history. Of course, myths are an unreliable source. But should historical chronicles that have been rewritten many times, that are rooted in the folklore tradition and tell about events hidden in the dark of centuries, be given this much credit? I understood it is important not to simply read books on history, but also to consider «historical evidence» related to us from an analytical point of view, including, if you wish, from the point of view of a common sense.

About five years ago I came across several books written by mathematicians from Moscow State University A.T. Fomenko and Nossovsky. It turned out that a group of professional mathematicians headed by academician A.T. Fomenko had profoundly dealt with issues of chronology for more than twenty years and achieved interesting results in this respect. These books explained a lot to me and put a lot in its place. The critical part of these books is quite serious, it contains huge valuable material and deserves studying and discussing. At the same time, the hypotheses and reconstructions put forward by the authors may sometimes be argued. Obviously, it is extremely hard to give final reconstruction of real historical events, and this part of work will always be subject to criticism. But in the light of already published studies there is no denying that in chronology of «ancient» history accepted today most serious discrepancies have been found which we cannot wave away.

And here I would like to state some of my thoughts in this respect.

1. FALSIFICATION OF HISTORY AS POLITICAL WEAPON IN THE STRUGGLE FOR POWER. OPPORTUNITIES FOR GLOBAL HISTORICAL FALSIFICATIONS EVEN IN THE 20TH CENTURY.

In order to maintain the whole concept of new chronology, I think it is important to proceed from the fact that since time immemorial falsification of history, as we know, has been the key political weapon in the struggle for power. The 20th century gives us a lot of illustrative examples.

The most typical and known to all is what Stalin did with our history. Literally, in 15 years while the living witnesses of the Bolshevik coup were there, he successfully revised history of the Bolshevik Party and the Civil War. For decades the Stalin version remained official Soviet history. And even now there are still many zombie-like people around who continue to believe that the Stalin history of the Revolution and subsequent events is the only true one. Thus, even the 20th century with its radio, telegraph and diversified communications could not but do away with the role of newly written history as a political weapon. Just think about the continuing disputes about the arrest and liquidation of Laurenty Beria in June 1953. And even in newest Russian history we can see something of the kind. Let us take for example the events of 1993. One reads newspapers and understands that various people give various estimation of the same events. It means that in some time all this will be viewed by descendants through the prism of somebody's political predilections. And more likely that the vector sum of the picture they will get would not reflect the reality. It will depend mostly on who and for what purposes would be able to interpret today's history in political struggle in Russia in, say, 50 years.

It is quite evident that such opportunities also existed, conditionally speaking, in the 15th or even in the 17th centuries. With a much higher amplitude of information diversification it was simply impossible to verify and specify historical data. That is why kings, tzars, khans, dukes, that is people who possessed real power and controlled printing houses, historians and chronologists, could practically freely manipulate with descriptions of historical events, or events which they wanted to represent as historical. It seems to me that this argument cannot be seriously refuted, and it is important enough to avoid groundless criticism that it cannot be because it can never be. Here we have «written history». It is written by someone. The first thing which is doubted if this history was like this. We know perfectly even from official chronicles that the Middle Ages were full of fierce court and political intrigues, fatal dynasty hostility. By the way, dynasty scuffle provides the best opportunities for falsification. In other words, all those royal genealogical trees, all millennium dynasties could be compiled to direct orders of monarchs who needed to prove that his family had a long ancestry. So we can easily assume with almost 100% probability that practically all mediaeval dynasty history consisted mainly of reflections of some mythical figures, very often of the same ones, and served to back up the power of a monarch. We perceive such king's pressure on his servants as another form of uncontrolled power abuse.

Thus, in order to prove the rights of Henry of Navarre for the French throne, the provincial Bourbons had to be dated 250 years back «to find» in its remote stage a crossing with the house of Capet-Valois!

2. DISCREPANCY IN HUMAN GENOTYPE IN REAL HISTORY AND IN «PHANTOM CENTURIES»

Another evidence in support of new chronology, I think, is discrepancy in human genotype upon comparative analysis of various aspects of life activities in real «checkable» history to which the authors of the book allot 600 years, and in «phantom» centuries. Comparing different stages of mankind development, we find out a dramatic inconsistency in what can be checked and actions or mankind development in those centuries that we are not able to verify.

1) BIOLOGICAL FACTOR. It is interesting to study the speed of multiplication of mankind. Most probably, we have data which can be checked. For instance, England from the 15th till 20th centuries when population grew from 4 to 62 million. Or France from the 17th till the 20th centuries starting from the reign of Louis the 14th. Here the population grew from 20 to 60 million. And this was when France in contrast to England took part in atrocious wars. By official information, only during the Napoleon wars 3 million people perished. And evidently, most of them were flourishing men. Thus, France suffered heavy losses in these wars and in continuous small wars in the 19th century and in the slaughter of World War I.

It is quite obvious that natural multiplication was slowed down by wiping out young population twice during two hundred years. I do not say anything about all the nightmares of the French Revolution and the wars of the 18th centuries. Thus, we see triple increase in population in 300 years. In England it was much higher. Probably, due to immigration from former colonies, but nevertheless, the increase was still impressive enough. England is even a more illustrative example since it was in a less degree affected by dreadful wars. The population of England, its genetic fund, did not suffer such destruction. So, we read in official history that it is 4 million in the 15th century and 62 million now. It is a 15-fold growth of population in 500 years. Such factors as joining of Ireland and Scotland are quite nullified by mass emigration to the New World.

Naturally comes a question what population was in those provinces at the breakdown of the Roman Empire in the 4th-5th centuries? At least, the fertile Gallic provinces of the vast Empire were densely populated. If the Eastern and Western parts combined had about 20 million people (minimal hypothetical estimation), simple logic hints that hordes of barbarians invading the Empire also counted millions.

Therefore, if for counting we try to use regressive geometrical progression then we get an irrational result. It turns out that reproduction of people in some period completely stopped or somewhere «a negative growth» started. Attempts of logical explanation, like ascribing this to inadequate hygiene or epidemics can hardly withstand criticism. It is because, according to general historical documents, there was no real improvement of sanitary life conditions of population in Western Europe from the 5th till the 18th centuries. There were epidemics and hygiene was poor. Besides, in the 15th century wars with firing arms started which took many more lives. It is more interesting to compare the population of ancient Oekumene in Pericles' time (the 5th century BC) and Emperor Trajanus (the 2nd century A.D.). If we take the number of residents in big cities and people in the army, we will see enormous demographic growth. Of course, Greece under the rule of Athens is incomparable to the world empire with the center in Rome but the proportions still are not kept. Just look yourself, 15,000 free Athens citizens and Rome and Alexandria with a half million population. On the one hand, there was a one and half thousand rear guard of the united army of the Greek city-states including 300 glorious Spartans staying to protect the retreat of the main forces in the war where the very existence of Hellenes was put at stake. On the other hand, 26 legions (!) were maintained by Rome even in peace time and were drafted without introducing obligatory general conscription. It is more than the Russian Empire could put to repel the Napoleon aggression in 1812. By the way, and in the second Punic War (2nd century BC) after three consecutive tangible defeats from Hannibal the Romans sent an 80 thousand army which was also completely crushed by the Carthaginians in the battle at Cannae which became a didactic one. Nevertheless, Rome had enough reserves to make a turn in a long-drawn-out war which lasted for another 15 years in the whole area of the Mediterranean Sea. The scale of this military conflict is amazing, next time in world history several theaters of military operations appeared in the Anglo-French War in 1755-1763.

2) ANTHROPOLOGICAL FACTOR. Let us look at the dimensions of a human being. We see, for example, pictures and descriptions of «ancient Greek» athletes. They run, jump, throw spears at some unbelievable distances. In battles they overcome enemies exceeding their number 7 or even 10 times. And then we see armors of medieval knights which could fit only 15-year old youths in the 20th century. Medieval knight ammunition reveals quite shabby physical strengths of people at that time. It looks very strange on the background of the imaginations of ancient powerful athleticism. We have kind of a sine curve in the development of human muscles. Why would such a change happen? At the same time, I admit a sine curve is a natural scheme for development of some class of living beings but not for two thousand years. Qualitative changes should take at least dozens of thousands of years.

3) PSYCHOPHYSICAL FACTOR. And let's consider such an important factor which I would conditionally call a psychophysical one. In the part of history that can be checked, we find out absolutely unbelievable strive of man for discoveries. The vector of technical progress, of learning is directed sharply and continuously upward. Literally, every 10 years something happens, something is discovered, they sail somewhere, something is exploded. Something constantly changes. From Columbus to moon landing, from arbalest to A-bomb, we can see continuous development. There is no «hibernation for centuries» observed. Only upward and forward. And at the same time in traditional ancient history we find that people sort of fall in a many-century sleep. For instance, «ancient Egypt», «dark Middle Ages». There appear some gigantic time zones when the human thought allegedly faded. People of ancient Egypt or ancient Rome would turn out to have had quite a different genetic code. Nothing interested them. That is why they fell asleep for a long time, as a result, nothing would happen. Although the officially proposed ancient history offered Homo sapiens a lot of opportunities for perfection. There were prosperous ancient empires in which people striving for sciences and culture had many opportunities for «self-realization». But, alas, all prosperous ancient empires halted at some point and did not develop further.

3. TEMPOS OF TECHNICAL AND CULTURAL PROGRESS IN ANCIENT WORLD

They cannot be absolutely put within the framework of human abilities for practical perfection. Here are some examples.

1) PRIMITIVISM OF MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS. The assortment could have expanded for more than one thousand years not limiting with only harp, cithara, reed and flute. For example, there is no evidence of percussion instruments. Violin is, of course, more complicated but it is not Newton's binomial, either. For a thousand «ancient Greek» years they could have invented something. I realize that Stradivarius could be born only in Italy. But, as we are said, there was an ancient colossal period of flourishing of sciences and arts half a century before the Peloponnesus war under Pericles in Athens. After that it was a propitious enough and calm period from the Macedonian till the Roman conquest. And in Rome it was calm for minimum 200 years. And strange as it may seem, it was silence. Rome adopts everything from Greece, but nothing happens in music. Although emperors, noble and rich people allegedly waste away money, hire singers, musicians, poets, incite development of arts. But there is no improvement. Everything stands still at one point, a primitive enough one. It is interesting that notes are not invented yet. There are no notes! It is unclear how such a sophisticated society could do without a system of sound recording. As a result, «nothing is left behind». No musical memorials reached us because there were no notes.

2) INABILITY TO IMPROVE ARMS AND MILITARY TACTICS. If we are surprised with primitivity of Greek-Roman musical culture, we further encounter an even more mysterious paradox. It is an amazing inability of «ancient» Roman republic and later on for the Roman Empire to improve arms and military tactics. It is just incredible! At the dawn of the Republic Roman citizens formed effective military forces, then the «antic» Republic started armed expansion. And, as we know, the Roman Empire is a state conducting regular offensive wars.

All this we learned from so called ancient sources. Expansion should incite the process of improvement of quality of arms and military theory. But centuries pass, but nothing drastically changes. Eventually, the Romans could not start to forge steel, though it is not an invention, it is just the matter of time and persistence. Working purposefully one will need only several generations to successfully finish the experiments. It was extremely important to improve the quality of arms on which legionaries' lives depended and which in general could affect the character of military actions. And we are assured that during their long history the Romans allegedly fought with short swords made out of low quality iron.

Cavalry. If we believe «antic» sources, the Roman cavalry was not a serious force. One of the reasons was that there was no harness! Probably, there were already reins, but there were no stirrups. Stirrups appeared only in the 8th century according to the traditional dating of official history. Allegedly stirrups came from China. And in the 8th century AD together with stirrups chivalry came. It all coincides — stirrups and immediately chivalry. And it is right and understandable. But ancient Romans did not pay attention to harness at all. But the most dangerous battles in history of Rome were with oriental people, skillful horse riders. With mythical Parthians who disappeared all of a sudden. By the way, there was the Parthian kingdom and then ... disappeared. And those oriental people had two important advantages, i.e. cavalry archers that inflicted heavy casualties on the Romans. Arrows of heavy long bows smashed the infantry, knocked it down in rows. But Rome did make any attempts to improve shooting arms. Ancient Rome did not have arbalests either. Although, the Romans, masters of ballistics, could have easily invented powerful enough shooting devices which could be operated by one person, like arbalests and long bows. Nevertheless, it did not happen, and in reality the quality of military actions of the Roman army did not change. There is one more discrepancy. Numerous heroes of ancient Greek myths were splendid archers. Even powerful Hercules had to use arrows many times. The bow of Odysseus possessing incredible killing power slew unlucky bridegrooms of Penelope. And so many giants were killed by brilliant Apollo with his well-aimed bow!

There are two well-known occasions of crushing defeats of Roman legions. The first is the fall of the Crassus army at Carrhae in 53 BC. The second one is Adrianople, the defeat of the army of Emperor Valens in 378 AD. The time period between the first and the second is allegedly 400 years! But both defeats are practically identical. In both cases heavy cavalry and archers just smash the Romans. The legions cannot maintain battle formation; the Roman cavalry gets stuck somewhere. The foes break up the formation and start to pursue the shocked crowd of warriors. The descriptions of both battles are almost alike. By the way, they took place in Asia Minor close to each other. In accordance with the proposed new chronology, it is more likely that the two mirages just lie on each other. In reality, a western army was once in ancient time completely defeated because it could not withstand well-aimed arrows and heavy cavalry cutting the formation apart. Quite probably, it was one of the battles of a medieval Trojan war.

It is interesting now to look at all glorious history of Roman victories from another point of view. It is also strange why the enemies of Rome did not adopt anything from the Romans for a long time. And, say, king Mithridate, with whom they had long wars, had enough wit and means to work out effective countermeasures. In reality, the Romans did not show anything but legionaries' drill and high military discipline. Nevertheless, there are 400 years between these mentioned battles at Carrhae and Adrianople, and in all those years the Romans allegedly did not suffer serious defeats except the fall of the legions of Quintilius Varus in the battle against the German barbarians in the Teutoburg Forest.

The progress in invention of new means of destruction of human beings starts only in the 14th-15th centuries. And it has never stopped since then. The human mind invents something literally every 10-15 years. And before that nothing allegedly happened for many centuries.

Official history gives quite a bizarre presentation of the development of heavy weapons. From the 8th till the 14th centuries there was only minimal improvement of knight troops. Their numbers are extremely limited, regular armies are very small. The reason was that arms and ammunition were extremely expensive. A fully equipped knight was an enormous force. And in the epoch of glorious king Richard Lion's Heart a detachment of several hundreds of well-armed knights could disperse a whole non-professional army. This fact tells something about a number of people and that the mankind was mostly poorly prepared. Evidently, it did not have such rich history behind itself yet.

But in the 14th century when powder and firing arms appear, everything starts to change rapidly. All of a sudden, man reveals abilities to fight with medieval fortified constructions. Immediately a necessary missile flight path is calculated. Already in the 15th century all Italian fortresses fall on French troops because the French have new small mobile cannons which can literally crush in pieces high walls of old forts. And immediately engineers minds start to work rashly, and in the 16th century there appear fortified constructions that can sharply reduce the crushing power of artillery. And after that everything develops quickly within the framework of the classical theory «missile — armor».

4. DISCREPANCY BETWEEN TASKS OF GIGANTIC STATE BUILDING IN ANCIENT TIMES AND MEANS OF THEIR FULFILLMENT

It also seems to me that there is an obvious discrepancy between tasks of «ancient» gigantic state building and methods of their fulfillment described in the «ancient historical documents».

1) ABSENCE OF GEOGRAPHICAL MAPS. The Roman Empire was famous, and it can be confirmed by every more or less educated person, for diversified network of roads and communications. It is impossible to imagine that those roads existed without numerous geographical maps. Of course, there were maps, otherwise one cannot imagine thorough planning of Roman military campaigns. Scientific principles of mapping were proposed by «a great geographer and astronomer of ancient times» Claudius Ptolemy. But at that time it was hard to explain the cause of strange disappearance of that epoch's maps. Simple explanation by barbarian destruction cannot be accepted by common sense because any not ordinary chiefs, and we must place mythical Alaric and Attila among them, would quickly evaluate the quality of this product. Roman maps would be guarded like the apple of an eye, as they gave its possessor a great advantage in the fight with numerous enemies. Reactionary medieval church did not seem to include descriptive geography (not touching upon the point of the form of the earth globe) and topography into the list of heretic sciences. Then how can we explain wide circulation in the 6th-14th centuries of illiterate coarsely painted pictures proudly called maps? How could western European crusaders reach Jerusalem with such informative means?

2) ABSENCE OF BANKING SYSTEM AND GOODS CREDIT. «Ancient»

documents keep complete silence about banking system and goods credit in the «ancient» Roman Empire. I think that orderly life of an empire implies prosperity of trade. And trade in the Roman Empire especially in the size we are told about needs in existence of credit institutions. In medieval Western Europe they came about just at the moment when grounds for empire appeared. When there is an empire, there are trade credit institutions, there is credit system. One has an opportunity to move around vast territories without carrying bags of gold. The «ancient» Roman Empire with its practicism could have come up with something of the kind for 300-400 years of its calm and rhythmic life. It is interesting that by the official historical version, banking system will appear in the Middle Ages just in Italy, in Genoa, Florence, Milan.

5. UNLUCKY DESTINY OF FUNDAMENTAL SCIENCE IN ANCIENT WORLD

1) ABSENCE OF GREAT SCHOLARS SINCE THE FIRST CENTURY BC From traditional history we know much about scholars of ancient Greece. Even too much. The life of Aristotle merely from the first till the last day. Socrates, a mythical figure, as many scientists believe, left a detailed life description. We know all the dialogues of Plato with his pupils. And we know about Archimedes, about Heraclitus, we have some pieces of information about mythical Pythagoras. Look anywhere, there is always some information... And we heard about Aristarchus of Samos, an ancient precursor of Copernicus, about his expulsion for his heretic theories. We studied thoroughly about Euclid. And all of sudden — a gap! Since about the first century BC there has been a gap. There are no more scholars! Scholars disappear. Of course, there are historians, geographers and philosophers, but development of fundamental sciences completely stopped! We know well that in the Roman Empire there was a period when a whole dynasty patronizing sciences ruled. In the first, there was Adrian who, truly speaking, preferred monumental construction. But after that there was well-educated Antoninus and then, at last, Marcus Aurelius, a philosopher emperor, patron of sciences. It was a Golden Age by all parameters! In such time geniuses enjoy a lot of freedom. Just look at the rein of Elizabeth and Catherine the Second, and here is great prosperity! Lomonosovs keep coming from common people. But nothing of the kind takes place in «ancient Rome». Empire is almost endless, covers the whole ancient world, the most talented peoples. But there is voidness in real science. As the main value, we have «carefully» preserved science like compilations of the first Christian theologians who tried to adapt new religion to political and cultural realities of the Roman Empire.

2) ABSENCE OF GOOD COUNTING SYSTEM. One neglects the fact that the roman counting system does not suit any serious calculations. Just try to divide big numbers in a column or figure out the volume of a complicated geometrical figure. And what about the theory of continuous fractions? But nevertheless, the «ancient» Romans did some calculations, even complicated ones. Large scale architectural projects, engineering, ballistics — all this required the most precise calculation. It is hardly possible to build a cathedral, bridge or to take a fortress without accurate calculations. It is absolutely inconvenient to use clumsy Roman numbers in multistage astronomical calculations. Then it is just time to wonder what counting system famous Greek scholars used? Say, Archimedes, Aristarch of Samos, Euclid, Ptolemy. They really needed a perfect model for calculations. But if they had such a system of counting then why pragmatic Romans who had adopted the best from the Greeks ignored this cornerstone of any science? The only logical explanation is that the Greeks did not have such a system. Really, attic and ionic systems of counting «recorded» in official history were even more clumsy than the Roman one. But how did then they count? It is not a secret that all «antic» science is surprisingly well associated with «Arabic» medieval counting. The latter appeared, according to official history only in 10 centuries after fundamental works of «ancient Greek» founders of mathematics and physics. Here is an incredible time gap! And during this time period in spite of disappearance of all scientific traditions, «ancient» manuscripts were constantly renewed. Although the purpose of was not clear, if one takes into consideration that the subject of description did not exist in real world. And where did monk scientists come from who were able to make out complicated formulas without special training?

In fact, in all those copies of the above mentioned works to which we can have access common «Arabic» numbers, that we are accustomed to, are used. At the beginning of the book printing epoch surprising «carelessness» of publishers did not preserve for descendants examples of mathematic equilibristic exercises of «great minds of ancient time» who were able to solve hardest problems only with the help of letterimages!

3) ABSENCE OF CHEMICAL INVESTIGATIONS. Nothing is heard about any chemical investigations in ancient world either. There were no chemists, no alchemists. I wonder why alchemists appeared only in the Middle Ages? The very idea of transformation of kinds of matter dates back to the beginning of the philosophical thought. Ancient Greek philosophers, evidently, believed that transition from one substance state into another was the major phenomenon in nature and tried to prove all this theoretically. But for no reason they did not make any specific practical steps. There never appeared «ancient Greek» chemistry.

We read a lot about Greek fire that was a sinister weapon of the Byzantine army in the early Middle Ages. And hardly it was just crude oil for in this case Byzantium would not be able to hold a monopoly on such an effective military means. Most probably, chronicles described some complex chemical substance which implies some kind of knowledge in this field. But we do not know anything about chemical studies in medieval Byzantium.

4) ABSENCE OF GOOD MEDICINE. We will say a few words about anatomy and medicine. The works of Hippocrates did not come to us as well as, by the way, works of other good doctors. It is quite strange because emperors and kings needed medicine not less than improvement of military cause. All conditions for that seemed to be there in the «ancient world». But for no reason at all, no practical steps were made in this direction. As well as chemistry, medicine and anatomy appeared again «suddenly» only in the Middle Ages. I think it is strange that Homer's poems and other masterpieces of «antic» literature survived better in the gloomy epoch of the Middle Ages than valuable treatises on healing of a human body. Though, skillful doctors would be useful for barbarian kings not less than for educated Roman emperors.

5) POOR DEVELOPMENT OF SOME OTHER ACTIVITIES. By the way, all the thoughts associated with science and development of culture are also applied to other so called ancient civilizations: Egypt, Babylon, China. Here progress also reaches some level and then without any real reasons everything halts and dies. And, as the authors of this book convincingly prove it, there are no material confirmation of «ancient prosperity». Except, of course, those in which we are ready to believe without requiring any further explanations. It is very important to point out the fact that all technical and cultural achievements of the «Ancient World» are surprisingly correlated with the level of development of European civilization by the moment of the first printed publications of works of «antic» authors. Inquisitive mind of the «antic» genius could not invent anything for 10 centuries that would have superseded achievements of Europeans who, as we know, had maximum 300 years of progress of Renaissance behind them! In the light of this it would not be too bold to put forward an assumption, staying within the frames of sound human logic, that medieval authors wrote all «antic» history in the 15th-16th centuries. And what they did was a mere projection of their medieval world into the past. They took every day environment of their time and extrapolated it to «ancient Greece» and «ancient Rome». And then they added not qualitative changes — they did not have Julius Verne's imagination — but purely quantitative changes. The life of «antic» world created by imagination was embellished by that «ancient people had more of everything». But naturally, there were no innovations in arms, science, everyday life. It looks like that no one cared that, by official history, the 15-16th centuries were on the same level of development as the Roman Empire in the period of its highest power. Although, «the ancient empire» in the time of prosperity could have created the elementary things we talked about.

Now look carefully at biographies of outstanding people of the «ancient world». Bright details turn these «biographies» into works of literature. Amazing is the precision with which «antic authors» restore minute episodes from lives of their characters. The bitter remark of Alexander of Macedon to Parmenion during the discussion of peace proposals of king Darius, the instructions of Caesar to his legates before the battle of Pharsalus, the words of Julian the Apostate before his death, all these most valuable evidences were most probably immediately written down by the witnesses, and reached the biographers in the unchanged form having passed from hands to hands with reverent trepidation. To tell the truth, it happened that different sources contradicted one another, but the «true» picture of the event was always reconstructed, and apocrypha was thrown into the dumping ground of history. Unfortunately, modern biographers have completely lost the «ancient» art of intuitive comparative analyses. And in spite of obvious improvement of communication means voluntary informers did not perform effectively at all. Besides, characters of newest history themselves fail to speak sharp aphorisms in critical moments. We have to do with the fact that in biographies of most famous personalities there are blank spaces, many important periods of their lives are poorly described because of absence of ample true evidence. Naturally, major historical events of the last 300 years are freely interpreted depending upon the sources available to or selected by the author. The 14th of July 1789 or the 14th of December 1825 lack crystal precision of facts in their endless descriptions which are characteristic of the story about Catiline's conspiracy and its suppression that is preserved for the convenience of study in only one version. Bookshelves full of motley historical analytical literature should not mislead anyone since 99% of these books were written in the last 150 years and mainly amend and develop condensed description of the original. Someone having thoroughly analyzed the «ancient» text puts forward a new hypothesis naturally staying within the traditional chronology. Later on, this hypothesis undergoes multiple discussions which results in opening of a new endless field of studies. That is why we should be aware that the images of famous «antic» commanders, politicians, philosophers, we have formed in our imagination, have been seriously adjusted by every new generation of historians. At the same time the starting database, even considering new archeological excavations, remained practically unchanged. Most of the «stories of the far away past» are based upon one specific source, one author whose works are unconditionally believed in and serve a starting point for all following amendments. Thus, the creation of the Great Persian Empire of Ahemensids is mentioned for the first time in Herodotus' «History». The history of the Punic Wars alongside with the information about Carthage was firstly related by Polybius. Alas, the sources he refers to did not live till the book printing time. By the way, this productive author was very unlucky. Out of 40 (!) books of his «World History» only 5 (!) were fully preserved that made future restorers of history think up many details of Hannibal's campaigns. I need to point out that unique preserved evidence was always presented by the side that won in the military conflict. It first of all by all means eliminated any mentioning about the losers (burning of Susa, demolition of Carthage and Jerusalem) and then formed an official point of view. Such interpretations should not be given confidence even in traditional historical concept making.

6) PAUCITY OF LIFE CONDITIONS AND DEVICES. Everyday life of the Roman Empire is described in fairly great detail. But let us have a look at the household environment of the ruling elite. Forks, knives, chairs, functional kitchenware — these household items so natural for sophisticated aristocratic life style cannot be found. Special skillful chefs were hired; money was not cared about. They arranged big feasts. Great commander Lucullus is famous with descendants mainly for this. But refined culinary taste did not influence table arrangement which remained rough and primitive. In a word, it did not correspond to the status of the world's empire. One recollects immediately that in the 16th century European nobles continued to eat with hands and munched noisily!

I happened to be on the Briony, Croatian islands in the Adriatic Sea. Unique, very beautiful places. Tourists are told that there was a summer residence of Roman Emperor Domitian here. The place really suits the purpose, it is not far from Italy, the water is very clear, the climate is smooth, etc. There is even a water supply system between the main islands of the archipelago — Great Briony and Minor Briony. The water supply system was allegedly built by the «ancients». The guide explains in detail how it was done. Slaves dived using cane pipes instead of aqualung and put pipes on the bottom. The result is impressive if you take into consideration that the depth is at least 50 meters.

Naturally, there is a lot of «antic» kitchenware. In the flea market you can always buy a big pitcher for grain or a small amphora for incenses. Local smugglers bring them up in large quantities now. The Adriatic Sea was both for the Greek and for the Romans an important trade route, many ships were wrecked.

There are also «antic» excavations. But the very settlement, which is shown, turns out a medieval, Byzantine one. Quite ugly, probably of the size 100 by 200 meters. But, of course, there is an old legend telling about some other settlement, a much older than the existing ruins which had been located on this place. And further on come the ruins of an «emperor's» palace. One can see remains of some construction, steps coming out of the water. But, frankly speaking, it is not impressive. And here, the guide continues, senators lived. They lived quite uncomfortably, I would say. There were bath houses there, we are explained. Here — hot water, there — cold water. Nothing special. The general impression is that the islands cannot be rated as super elite resort of the world's empire. If one does not use imagination in full swing.

6. ABSENCE OF ANCIENT DATE INSCRIPTIONS

Now, when we again return to the real medieval period, it is necessary to point out one more fact associated with human psychology. The fact of absence of «ancient» dates. My own search was not a success. On the walls of the numerous cathedrals, palaces, churches there were only plaques with dates of the presently adopted chronological system. You are told, for example, that this cathedral is 500 years old. But the plaque is put on only in the 19th century or the 20th century. The most bashful ones write when the plaque appeared. And if it is not written, nevertheless, it can be seen immediately the plaque is a clearly foreign element here. There no old dates. Even hand inscribed. In Western Europe I have not found even a single really old construction on whose walls there would be inscribed or engraved a note authentic with the declared year of the end of construction. There are not such notes, but the guides tactfully avoid this point. Well, they did not write it, that is it.

What we can do is just to envy the moral resoluteness of our far ancestors who were able to stand a little devil of vanity and refrain from the temptation to send a message to the future «Osya was here» plus the date.

7. EXAMPLES FROM IMPRESSIONS

1) JERUSALEM. We immediately recall crusaders who captured it. There are numerous crosses on the walls left allegedly by participants of crusades in the 11th-12th centuries. But there no old dates anywhere put down in the same time. For some reason duke Gottfried Bullion did not want to leave the date of his triumph for his descendants, «I, Gottfried Bullion, French duke, captured the Holy City in the year of 1099 B.C....» He wrote nothing of the kind. For no reason he left no messages. Although the walls are ideal for inscriptions. Alas, there is nothing. They should have scraped something. Void. No official notes, no unofficial notes.

2) LEON (SPAIN). The city of Leon in Spain is proud of the status of the ancient capital of the Castile Kingdom. In the initial period of Reconkista, before «liberation» of the central regions of Spain and moving the capital to Toledo the capital allegedly was there. Correspondingly, there a palace which would be told about showing a grandiose picture in the City Hall depicting a solemn ceremony of a royal reception. Although, it is not clear when and by whom it was created. Considering everything, there were the most powerful kings of the Iberian Peninsula here. But there no even ruins of the palace left. Moreover, it is not known where the palace was situated. A catholic cathedral was supposedly built on its ruins in the 13th-14th centuries. And the palace is said to have burned. It happens often. When it is hard to explain something fire comes about. (Let us recollect the terrible fire that caused irretrievable losses to the library of Alexandria, a treasure collection of the «Ancient World»). But was the palace really respected so much as a holy place that they could not find a better place in the city for building a cathedral? By the way, the magnificent building of the cathedral and amazing colorful stained-glass windows have been well preserved.

3) KORCHULA (ISLAND IN CROATIAN ADRIATIC SEA). The most picturesque not very far away from Dubrovnik. An old city appeared within a fortress which could be founded not earlier than the middle of the 16th century in the epoch of more or less developed artillery. The matter is that the fortress is located right in front of the peninsula and has embrasures. The only purpose for such a location was to drive off ships willing to get off at the continent. The main sight of the island is a cathedral officially dated in the 15th century. Immediately I rushed to look for old inscriptions, but there were no them at all. Everything offered is inscriptions of the 20th century, of Josip Broz Tito's time telling that here 500 years ago there was this and this. The inscriptions are detailed but all of them are of Tito's time. About 50 meters away from the cathedral a little church is located which is obviously older than the cathedral. Very few people attend it, and I was the only visitor. There is nothing special about it. There stone sculptures of the Apostles and the Evangelists. At first glance, something seemed wrong. After looking carefully, I saw that the apostles St. Paul and St. John were missing. Well, it did not mean that the statues had been before and then disappeared somewhere. No, the row of statue in the shape of a horse shoe was completed. No «gaps» in the row. That was the initial idea. How could that happen in Croatia, in a faithful catholic country? But we should not suspect medieval Croatians, forgive us, God, in sacrilege. More likely, in the 16th century good Christians at the Adriatic Sea did not get exact instructions from Rome pertaining to «the generally accepted canon». I think it is important that Paul and John are missing. According to official church history, they are the least traditional figures causing the deepest argues among different trends in early Christianity.

4) COLMAR (ALSACE, FRANCE). I also remember a recent visit to a cathedral in Colmar. As whole Alsace, this small town was a subject of continuous arguing between France and Germany and often moved from hands to hands. Since World War II it has been France, although traces of the German influence are still visible. As a tourist guide book says, there are three levels in the cathedral. Everything begins allegedly in the 6th-8th centuries, then it goes up to its reconstruction sometime in the 15th-16th centuries. And there is a real date of its construction. As usual, I look for old inscriptions or dates. Seemingly, there are no dates, there is only a story of the guide how and when the cathedral was built. This form is the oldest, this one is middle, and this is the newest form. This is how the cathedral changed, here walls were added... And all of a sudden, I see an inscription and immediately realize that this is the only old artifact in this cathedral deserving the most careful attention. The inscription can hardly be seen, but it is clear it is in three languages. The first is, naturally, Latin, but the use of the other two amazed me because they were Greek and Hebrew. Greek and Hebrew in a catholic cathedral! Even if at that time the town was under control of Huguenots, does not principally change the heart of the matter. The Calvinists also actively fought with orthodox «heresy» and «Judes».

My intrusive inquiries made the city archive keeper study the mysterious inscription. The result of his research was an article in a local newspaper which told about a terrible epidemic of cholera in 1541 that wiped out almost half the population of Colmar. The purpose of the inscription in the main church was to remind about the horrible tragedy that overtook the town. As for Greek and Hebrew, the author thought, in that time the use of these «not traditional» languages was considered the sign of a good tone and special education among the intellectuals and humanists. Surprising tolerance for Europe of the middle of the 16th century which, according to the official chronology was on the threshold of bloody religious wars! It is interesting that the lengthy speculations in the newspaper did without literal translation of the inscription in question into modern French! Besides, one more remarkable discrepancy was ignored in the article. I suppose that the inscription of such importance on the wall of the cathedral should have been clear to common town residents. Then in which named language, may I ask, could the local Franco-German people understand this text in that time?

You will not be mistaken in supposing that many of the questions put by me have already been noticed by historians and philosophers. However, all similar discussions boiled down in the long run to attempts to explain, sometimes quite clumsily, dubious moments and discrepancies in traditional historical interpretations. Thus, in his famous book «The Sunset of Europe» outstanding German philosopher of the 20th century Oswald Spengler dedicated the whole chapter «On the Meaning of Numbers» to proving that ancient mathematicians were able to solve the most complicated problems without corresponding digital symbols. Dozens of pages of heavy speculations are dedicated to showing special essence of antic mathematics that was, as Spengler, stated, the highest form of harmony of the ruling world perception of that time. Mathematics of ancient Egypt or ancient Greece forcefully taken out of the system, where it was created, would inevitably lose comprehension. That is why understanding of the same things came to modern scholars and their far predecessors in principally different ways. I quote, «Would mathematics be just a science as astronomy or mineralogy (! — G.K.), its subject could not be defined... No matter how forcefully we, Western Europeans, would apply our notion of number to what mathematicians in Athens and Baghdad dealt with, there is no doubt that the theme, purpose and method of the science with the same name were absolutely different there» or «They (Eudok, Apollonius, Archimedes — G.K.) use profoundly thought over and hardly comprehensible to us methods of integral calculus (! — G.K.) which have only a seeming similarity to the method of definite integral of Leibniz...» And further on in the same way. In the most complicate places Spengler appealed to sacral and mystical sense ascribed to numbers in ancient time, thus moving the problem to irrational sphere of comprehension. It is clear that such metaphysical alchemy makes absolutely senseless the issue in what system of calculation theoretical and applied tasks of the ancient science were solved. To believe or not to believe in a possibility of constructing magnificent memorials of «ancient time» proceeding from «general thinking», without making mathematical calculations checked many times, depends, to my mind, upon the ability to overcome deeply rooted prejudices.

It very important to mention that the global Spengler's concept described in «The Sunset of Europe» lay claims to discovering the hidden mechanism of development of human society. On the basis of the factual material the German scientists had, he figured out a cyclic pattern of rise and breakdown of various, civilizations not linked with one another. Spengler proved that accumulation of certain spiritual, scientific and political potential inevitably brings any civilization to stagnation and then to death. In accordance with strict parallelism of his concept, Europa having stepped in the period of constant cataclysms (the book was published in 1918) is doomed to repeat the sad destiny of all «ancient Atlantis» in the near future. Gloomy predictions pertaining to prospects of the European civilization which were an integral part of spiritual studies of Western intellectual elite were presented in brilliant fiction and poetry images. And we did the same: «Aren't you, European world, once an idol of passionate dreamers, bending your inglorious head to the grave...» (M.Lermontov «Dying Gladiator»). But Spengler was the first to put his pessimistic predictions in a strictly scientific form. By all comparative criteria pedantically selected form «past experience of mankind», by the end of World War I approached the edge of development over which there was dark voidness of decay. Today we know that Spengler was badly wrong, the European civilization (of course, the USA belongs to it) could survive nightmare of the two devastating wars, a series of economic crises, mass social upheavals and, in the end, strengthened its role of the main locomotive of all mankind's progress. It is quite right to suppose that he entire analytical method put forward by Spengler turned out profoundly faulty. Too simplified scientific schemes very often cannot withstand confrontation with reality. Ironically, in potential arguing this conclusion pertaining to the Spengler concept will more likely be actively supported by those who were brought up and then taught themselves basing upon the dogmas of Marx' historical materialism. But equally we can say that brilliant mind came to the wrong conclusions as a result of fruitless wandering in a maze of forged historical materialism.

But eventually mankind absolutely believe in modern panorama of world's history. We got used to consider ourselves part of endless ancient historical process in which Egyptian pharaohs, Chinese emperors, Assyrian chariots, Macedonian phalanges, Greek philosophers and Rome gladiators feel comfortable. And it would be naive to underestimate incredible hardships and even risk associated with the attempt to destroy this fairy tale world. The world formed for each of us by kids' books, school textbooks, masterpieces of world literature. The world reflected in movies, advertisement reels, Internet sites. The world in which everything is put in its place and every question has a satisfactory answer. And what about eternally boisterous spirit of learning constantly pushing mankind in the abyss of the unknown? In bygone time with their mother's milk people got the belief that the Earth is flat and is located in the center of the Universe, and watching the Sun that every day crossed the sky, became more convinced in truthfulness of it. Those who persisted in the reverse confronted arguments more effective than cursing «scientific reviews» in mass media. The completed building of classical physics was the pride of the scientific world in the end of the 19th century. The fall was quick and sudden; charlatan Einstein could not be fought with without means of medieval inquisition.

However, historical clichés and stereotypes we are used to can be preserved by only altering the angle of viewing. In many directions of idealistic philosophy, the reality of current or past events is verified only through the world perception of every specific individual. In this case, the point of view of the absolute majority is an ample proof of truthfulness of generally accepted chronology. Hume and Schopenhauer would regard a different approach absolutely senseless.

Although, one will have to take into consideration the fact that most of the people prefer to learn about the past in cinemas or from TV. Hollywood interpretations of great historical events become reality. Brothers Gracchi were contemporaries of Crassus and Pompey, king Arthur had a huge army of armored knights, these «historical facts» repeated thousands of times in endless movies and videos inevitably become an integral part of social consciousness. The theme poorly presented in science fiction is refraction and alteration of the past under the influence of mass hallucinations of the crowd.

There is no doubt that serious historians imaging their science as an exactly recorded report of life of the whole mankind will indignantly deny the proposal to look for a shelter in a virtual hypostasis of history. Well, then they are welcome. They will have to rebut the revolutionary concept of world history development worked out by A. I. Fomenko, G. V. Nossovsky and their colleagues in an honest scientific dispute using serious arguments and waving favorite accusations in charlatanism and incompetence.

8-Year-Old Child Bride Dies From Internal Bleeding After Her Wedding Night

BY KATARINA ROGERS ON FEBRUARY 26, 2022 | NEWS

An eight-year-old Yemeni girl died of internal bleeding on her wedding night after marrying a man five times her age, a social activist and two local residents said, in a case that has caused an outcry in the media and revived debate about child brides.

Arwa Othman, head of Yemen House of Folklore and a leading rights campaigner, said the girl, identified only as Rawan, was married to a 40-year-old man late last week in the town of Meedi in Hajjah province in northwestern Yemen.

"On the wedding night and after intercourse, she suffered from bleeding and uterine rupture which caused her death," Othman told Reuters. "They took her to a clinic but the medics couldn't save her life."

Muslims suffer insanity, low IQ, recessive disorders from 1400 years inbreeding

SEP 30 Posted by Editor, cairnsnews

Biological fallout from 50 generations of first cousin marriages from a Lockheed employee in Saudi Arabia.

During the pilot transition program with the KV-107 and C-130 with Lockheed, we found that most Saudi pilot trainees had very limited night vision, even on the brightest of moonlit nights.

Their training retention rate was minimal including maintenance personnel. Some had dim memories and had to be constantly reminded of things that were told to them the day before. An American, British or any other western instructor is burned out pretty quick. It actually took Muslim C-130 pilots years before they could fly in the dark safely and then would be reluctant to leave the lights of a city.

Ask any Marine, Air Force or Army guy who's been trying to train Iraqis, and especially Afghans. Islam is not only a religion; it's a way of life all the way around. Yet another set of revealing facts about Muslim beliefs and traditions and ways of life. 1400 years of inbreeding.

Nikolai Sennels is a Danish psychologist who has done extensive research into a little-known problem in the Muslim world: the disastrous results of Muslim inbreeding brought about by the marriage of first cousins. This practice, which has been prohibited in the Judeo-Christian tradition since the days of Moses, was sanctioned by Muhammad and has been going on now for 50 generations (1,400 years) in the Muslim world.

This practice of inbreeding will never go away in the Muslim world, since Muhammad is the ultimate example and authority on all matters, including marriage.

The massive inbreeding in Muslim culture may well have done virtually irreversible damage to the Muslim gene pool, including extensive damage to its intelligence, sanity, and health.

According to Sennels, close to half of all Muslims in the world are inbred. In Pakistan, the numbers approach 70%. Even in England, more than half of Pakistani immigrants are married to their first cousins, and in Denmark the number of inbred Pakistani immigrants is around 40%.

The numbers are equally devastating in other important Muslim countries: 67% in Saudi Arabia, 64% in Jordan, and Kuwait, 63% in Sudan, 60% in Iraq, and 54% in the United Arab Emirates and Qatar.

According to the BBC, this Pakistani, Muslim-inspired inbreeding is thought to explain the probability that a British Pakistani family is more than 13 times as likely to have children with recessive genetic disorders. While Pakistanis are responsible for three percent of the births in the UK, they account for 33% of children with genetic birth defects.

The risks of what are called autosomal recessive disorders such as cystic fibrosis, spinal muscular atrophy is 18 times higher, and the risk of death due to malformations is 10 times higher. Other negative consequences of inbreeding include a 100 percent increase in the risk of stillbirths and a 50% increase in the possibility that a child will die during labor.

Lowered intellectual capacity is another devastating consequence of Muslim marriage patterns. According to Sennels, research shows that children of consanguineous marriages lose 10-16 points off their IQ and that social abilities develop much slower in inbred babies. The risk of having an IQ lower than 70, the official demarcation for being classified as "retarded," increases by an astonishing 400 percent among children of cousin marriages. (Similar effects were seen in the Pharaonic dynasties in ancient Egypt and in the British royal family, where inbreeding was the norm for a significant period of time.)

In Denmark, non-Western immigrants are more than 300 percent more likely to fail the intelligence test required for entrance into the Danish army. Sennels says, "The ability to enjoy and produce knowledge and abstract thinking is simply lower in the Islamic world." He points out that the Arab world translates just 330 books every year, about 20% of what Greece alone does.

In the last 1,200 years of Islam, just 100,000 books have been translated into Arabic, about what Spain does in a single year. Seven out of 10 Turks have never even read a book. Sennels points out the difficulties this creates for Muslims seeking to succeed in the West. "A lower IQ, together with a religion that denounces critical thinking, surely makes it harder for many Muslims to have success in our high-tech knowledge societies."

Only nine Muslims have ever won the Nobel Prize, and five of those were for the "Peace Prize." According to Nature magazine, Muslim countries produce just 10 percent of the world average when it comes to scientific research measured by articles per million inhabitants.

In Denmark, Sennels' native country, Muslim children are grossly over represented among children with special needs. One-third of the budget for Danish schools is consumed by special education, and anywhere from 51% to 70% of retarded children with physical handicaps in Copenhagen have an immigrant background. Learning ability is severely affected as well. Studies indicated that 64% of schoolchildren with Arabic parents are still illiterate after 10 years in the Danish school system. The immigrant dropout rate in Danish high schools is twice that of the native-born.

Mental illness is also a product. The closer the blood relative, the higher the risk of schizophrenic illness. The increased risk of insanity may explain why more than 40% of patients in Denmark's biggest ward for clinically insane criminals have an immigrant background. The U.S. is not immune. According to Sennels, "One study based on 300,000 Americans shows that the majority of Muslims in the USA have a lower income, are less educated, and have worse jobs than the population as a whole."

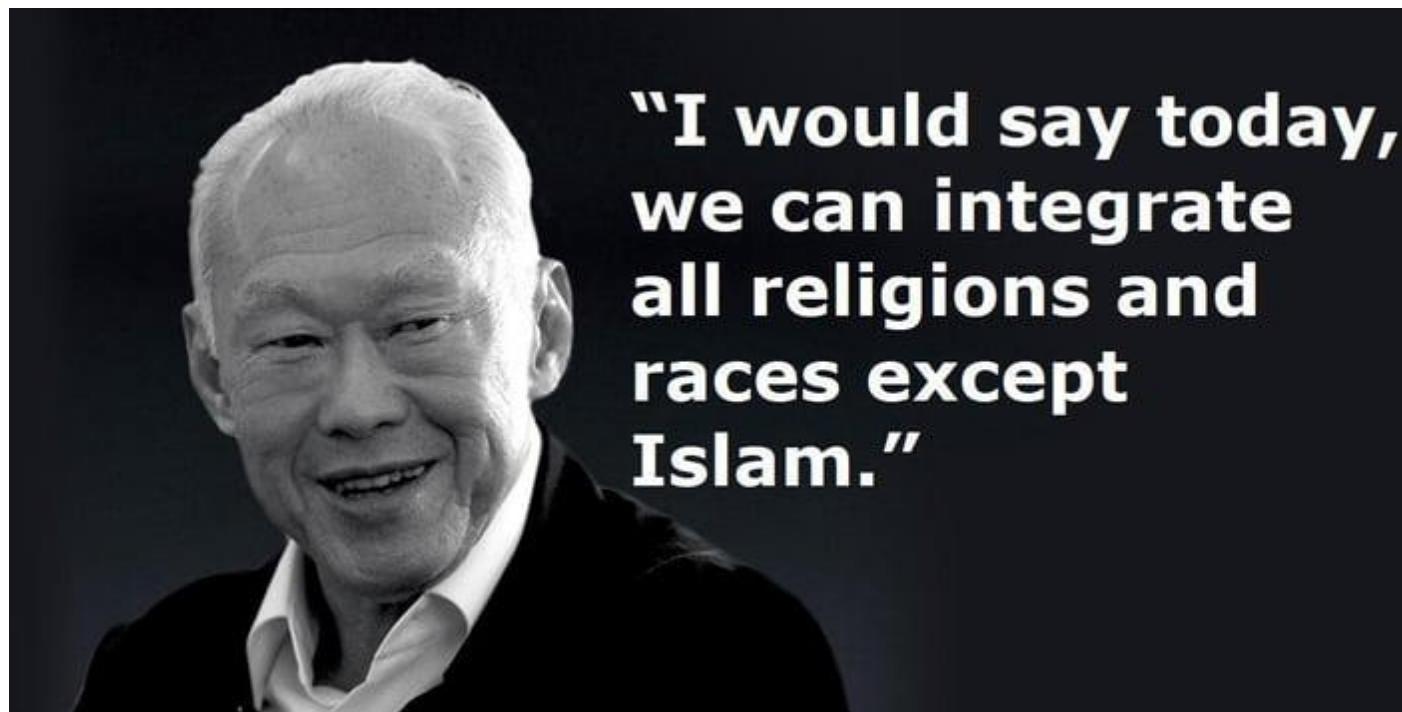

Sennels concludes: There is no doubt that the wide spread tradition of first cousin marriages among Muslims has harmed the gene pool among Muslims.

I actually read the whole thing to prepare for a D&D campaign. First chapters are god tier (literally)

>Allah makes Adam, tells him the names of all the animals

>Also, Adam is like 10 feet tall

>Allah asks all the Angels around and asks them what the name of the animals are

>"Allah, you literally just made the world and haven't told us yet"

"Hey, Adam, Do YOU know?"

>"Oh. Yeah you just told me." and Adam lists the animals

>Allah smugly declares Adam the smartest guy ever and everyone else a dumb faggot because they couldn't name the animals he just invented and hadn't told them of their name

>He demands the angels bow to Adam

>Lucifer doesn't and points out the whole unfairness of the situation

>Is made into the devil

Allah is literally a deviant art user and Adam is his Sonic OC.

Another bit I love is Muhammed dealing with the "polytheists"

>Polytheists notice Muhammed has a huge following

>They say they'll give him a standing army, gold and protection if he just lets people ALSO pray to the other gods AND Allah

>He says he needs to pray on it, does and comes back saying that it's fine with Allah and him

>Polytheists give him all that shit

>As soon as he gets the stuff he 'discovers' that the answer he got from Allah was actually from Satan and thus it ISNT okay to pray to the other gods

>"Okay then Muhammed, give us our shit back"

>"Lol no. Ya snooze ya lose."

And then proceeds to wage war on them.

Guy would've made a good board member

I'll head to bed soon but two other parts I love

>Throughout the Quran shit like "YOU WILL BE BURNED BY THE BEAST OF THE EARTH" is immediately followed with "Because Allah is love"

>Constant sentences that start with "FUCK YOU, FUCK YOU ALL" and end with "I'M A NICE GUY"

>Literally the "I can be the nicest guy you've ever met or a twisted sociopath"

They "saw the light" as Mercenaries.

Aka, He had a lot of money. It's easy to read through the lines, he was a very popular merchant and his following were primarily merchants

Everyone is dawg, Abraham, Adam, all of the classics but also You and I Anon. You see it's not called "Conversion" it's actually seen as "Reconversion", in other words you're born a muslim

Another fun part of that is when debating they'll often cite it as a point to convert you. "Your Jesus was a muslim, did you know?" and as a way to counter act (if you're a christian) they'll ask you just forget you are or are lead astray and have to be reminded.

something like "Well was Adam a Christian? Was Abraham?" etc etc. It's one of their favourite things.

Some other fun times:

>Muhammed has a mental break down

>Goes to a cave after dealing with shit like his father dying who he was close with among other things

>Comes back after being in the cave and tells his wife

>"Hey listen... I think I'm going crazy. I'm seeing and hearing things."

>His wife, who is way older than him and had a lot of money (gee I wonder how he got those caravans) informs him that "No you're not crazy, you're a prophet"

>He is doubtful but she convinces him after "evangelising to him" for weeks

>Aka His Wife nagged him into doing the whole religion thing

>The entire Islamic faith is essentially a Curb your enthusiasm/It's always sunny episode

>This is cited as Muhammed being a feminist and not just a guy who was sick of the bitching

>Uhh yes I can.
>What? No you can't!
>Allah said I could
>Oh well in that case.

>Muhammed, will you accept X (our surrender/treasure/gold)
>Say no more fam, Allah says it's cool
>Oh thanks Muha-
>He said he was just joking, you're dead kiddo

>Muhammed, I'm skeptical of you not being able to read or write yet your friends do and they seem to have written the book
>You are a demon
>Oh then I'll get blessed.
>Uh, Did I say demon? I mean super demon. You are a super demon.
>OH FUCK, NEVERMIND

>Muhammed, You're obviously drunk
